Japs' Plane Location Mystery

Zero Has Become Cypher in Recent Operations in Pacific; Two Theories Advanced

Shift Is Likely

Japs May Be Employing Planes in China and Burma

Washington, Dec. 28 (AP)—One of the questions intriguing Washington authorities today is this:

What has happened to the Japanese air force?

For more than a month it has been conspicuously impotent in the communiques from Pacific war theatres, both in numbers and in fighting ability.

The Japanese have suffered heavily in the number of planes destroyed since last June but it is obvious that they have a considerable force left. Authorities here believe that the explanation of their current inability to fight effectively in the air probably involves other and more complex factors than simple attrition.

One of these may be that the Japs have been forced to concentrate planes and supporting ground units in the South China and Burma areas both for defense against the British thrust into Burma from India and for their own drive in China's Yunnan Province.

If this explanation is true, it can only mean, according to qualified, but unquotable authorities here, that the Japanese air force is insufficient to protect all the vital spots where they must expect attack in the months ahead.

The record of recent enemy air activity in the South Pacific is highlighted by these facts:

Since the great sea-air battle of mid-November, the Japs have bombed the American airfield on Guadalcanal only about four times and then only with lone planes. Previously there had been daily raids in force and frequent night attacks.

At Munda, on New Georgia Island, the Japanese built an air base to counter our force at Guadalcanal. American planes began attacking it about three weeks ago just when it was ready for use and when greatest damage could be done. The Japs lost 30 planes at Munda, according to official navy reports, and we lost two so far as has been announced. In the last reported attack there, 14 enemy planes were shot down and 10 were destroyed on the ground while no American planes were lost.

Following up the raids on Munda, Flying Fortresses struck at the major Jap base at Rabaul, New Britain. A Japanese fighter force took to the air but did not attack.

Those are the high spots of recent air combat in the South Pacific. They are not without parallel in fighting far to the north—for Japan's weak airforce at Kiska in the Aleutian Islands was wiped out last fall after about three months of vain resistance to American bombers and fighters.

Marine officers back from Guadalcanal report that the Jap pilots encountered there in the last few weeks are decidedly inferior fighters. They characterize them as being generally third-raters.

Japanese planes likewise seem to have been proved entirely inferior to American types. The Zero, with all its highly-touted maneuverability, simply cannot stand up in combat with American planes.

Another element reported to contribute to the weakness of Japan in the air is her inflexibility of tactics. American fighter plane methods have been modified in accordance with actual combat experience. The Japs always fight the same way and their vulnerable points are therefore well known.

It was the battle of Midway last June—the greatest sea-air battle of the war so far—that really started them down hill. For there they lost four carriers and hundreds of pilots and planes. Since Midway their plane and pilot losses have mounted steadily and their effectiveness in battle has as steadily declined.

Connecticut Boy Drowns Trying His New Skates

Greenwich, Conn., Dec. 28 (AP)—A desire to try out new Christmas skates caused the death yesterday of George Novak, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Novak of Port Chester, in the icy waters of the Byram river.

Detective Thomas G. Dean of Greenwich said that Ralph Simpson, 12, who accompanied Novak and the latter's brother, James, eight, told him the drowned youth had said just before the accident that he was going to try out the ice to see if it was safe.

Simpson and young Novak, who were skating at some distance, ran for help and Akwal Wolder of East Porchester dived for the body which was recovered in 10 feet of water on the Connecticut side of the river.

Canadian Trains Collide; 33 Die, 119 Are Injured

Troop Train Engine Crashes Into Stationary Local; Soldiers Form First Aid, Rescue Squads

Almonte, Ont., Dec. 28 (AP) — Thirty-three holiday passengers were killed and 119 injured, many critically, when the locomotive of a Canadian Pacific troop train plowed through the three wooden cars of a local train standing in the station here last night, officials of the railway said today.

A corrected casualty list was released by the railway after earlier reports had listed a total of 232 casualties, including 32 dead.

Virtually all the dead and injured were in the three coaches which were taking aboard men, women and children at Almonte on the run from Pembroke, Ont., to Ottawa.

The troop train was only slightly damaged. It was moving from the Petawawa military camp.

Throughout the night, in the flickering light of a bonfire built from the wreckage of the smashed cars, rescue workers toiled to release trapped passengers and remove the dead.

Scattered in the deep snow were reminders of the recent holiday festivities, torn bundles in the brilliant color of Christmas wrappings.

Soldiers aboard the troop train coming from Petawawa, Ont., quickly formed first aid and rescue squads, and still were combing the wreckage hours later for additional victims.

All doctors and ambulances in nearby districts were summoned, and hospitals as far away as Ottawa prepared to receive the injured.

The wreck was one of the worst in the railroad's history. The Almonte city hall and a nearby theatre were turned into emergency hospitals.

An investigation was begun at Ottawa by the board of transport commissioners for Canada.

Taxpayers' Organization Submits Plan to Dewey

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 28 (AP)—Overhauling of what it termed New York's "Helter-Skelter" tax structure and a lowering of state taxes were urged upon Governor-Elect Thomas E. Dewey today by the citizens public expenditure survey, a taxpayer organization.

The survey said it called for this four-point program in a statement presented to Dewey:

1. Use of the indicated $80,000,000 state surplus to cut taxes; 2. revision of the tax structure, eliminating or integrating the nine "emergency" levies; 3. elimination of tll non-essential spending, and, 4. "streamlining" State Departments and reviewing state-local fiscal relationships.

"Many thousands of taxpayers face a serious financial crisis," said L. Richard Guylay, executive vice-president of the survey with "rising living costs and crushing federal taxes."

Italians Withdraw Funds

London, Dec. 28 (AP)—Increasingly frequent allied air raids and fear of invasion from North Africa are causing the Italian people to make large-scale withdrawals of bank deposits, it is reported in local financial circles. The financial news said that the new wave of hoarding came at a time when "advanced inflation already had undermined confidence in the lira." "Prices in the Italian black market have been soaring and the lira has slumped in neutral countries," the paper added. The Italians were said either to be hoarding bank notes or purchasing land or art treasures.

Tentative Tax Rate For '43 Set at $42.80

Kingston's tax rate for 1943 will be $42.80, or a few cents less, if the tentative city budget prepared by Mayor William F. Edelmuth is adopted by the Common Council at its regular monthly meeting in January.

This is a decrease of $1.64 from this year's tax rate which was $44.44 per thousand valuation.

A public hearing on the tentative budget will be held by Mayor Edelmuth on Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the council chambers at the city hall.

In the tentative budget that has been prepared there is an increase in pay of $10 a month granted the police and fire department members, owing to the increased cost of living. There will also be given the usual increments to those on the civil service list.

Mayor Edelmuth said today that the debt service and interests on city bonds was larger than it was the past year, and the increase amounted to approximately $14,000. This was due to the fact that more bonds mature in 1943.

Old Tubes to Be Turned In

Washington, Dec. 28 (AP)—Owners of radio sets soon will be required to turn in their old tubes when they buy new ones. In making this announcement today, the War Production Board said the requirement would permit the salvaging of tube bases which, in some cases, can be refabricated. The turn-in requirement probably will go into effect early in 1943.

Woman Is Burned As Gas Ignites

Mrs. John Rydzewski, 19, Is Taken to Hospital for Face Burns

Mrs. John Rydzewski, 19, of 29 Jarrold street, was burned about the face when coal gas from the kitchen stove ignited at 10:26 o'clock this morning. She was rushed to the Kingston Hospital in the police radio car manned by Officers Wesley Cramer and Walter McDonough, and after treatment returned to her home.

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy, who investigated the accident, said that Mrs. Rydzewski opened the lid of the coal stove in the kitchen and was poking the fire to stir it up after placing fresh coal on the fire. Coal gas accumulated, due probably to the fact that the chimney damper was not opened, and when the hot coals were exposed they ignited the coal gas.

As the coal gas ignited it flashed up into her face, burning it, and also set fire to some clothing hanging on a line in the kitchen near the stove.

The fire department was called, and soon had the fire under control. The damage was slight.

Registration Is Due

Registration of all wholesalers and retailers of coffee in Kingston will be held at the office of the Kingston War Price and Rationing Board on December 29, 30 and 31. All inventory data must be in the hands of the rationing board by the first of the year.

Status of Indian Empire No Longer Causes Anxiety

By DeWITT MACKENZIE

New Delhi, Dec. 27 (Delayed)—Looking back from nine months to the black days when the sprawling sub-continent of India was unprepared to defend itself against a Japanese invasion it's good to be able to report with certainty that this great empire's security is no longer a cause of anxiety.

Of course the defense of India is still a matter of concern, just as is the defense of England, or our own United States for that matter. There always must be an element of danger so long as the Mikado's barbarians are sitting just across the bay of Bengal in Burma.

However, we can say that Hindustan today is so well set for military action that it feels capable of dealing with an emergency. The time of sleepless nights has passed.

I arrived in the Indian capital last night and the first thing I did was to check on the military situation to make sure it looked as good at close range as it has from a distance. It seems even better here where we are up against actualities.

India has a big army of at least a million under arms here at home, apart from the hundreds of thousands of men who are fighting overseas. The training of new troops is proceeding well. Other defensive projects are said to be in an equally satisfactory condition.

So far as concerns the possibility of a Japanese invasion, the readers of this column will recall that from the outset of the Nipponese conquests in Indonesia and Burma I said that an attempt to conquer India proper was remote despite this country's military and political weaknesses. This estimate was based on the undoubted fact that an invasion would not be strategically sound except from the standpoint of some emergency such as might develop, for example, in the Russo-German theatre.

The Japs already had overrun all and maybe more than they could hope to digest. So why ask for trouble by trying to swallow giant India. The Nipponese military leaders will steal all they can get away with, but the intimations have been that they are trying not to let their eyes get bigger than their stomachs.

Still there always was the bare possibility that Hitler might persuade his allies to strike at India

Navy Is Mobilized

London, Dec. 28 (AP)—The German-controlled Paris radio reported today that Generalissimo Francisco Franco had ordered mobilization of the small Spanish navy. There was no immediate confirmation from any other source, and the significance of the report was not immediately clear. Informed London observers hazarded the opinion that the mobilization, if true, mainly was a gesture to accompany the new Spanish-Portuguese pact. In any case, they said, the move would be of small military importance, since the Spanish navy at last official reports consisted principally of six cruisers, one fairly new 10,000-tonner and five of 6,000 tons each. There also were said to be 18 destroyers, six small torpedo boats, nine submarines and five minelayers.

Retail Official Says Announcement Unfair

Chicago, Dec. 28 (AP).—A National Retail Association official said today that the government announcement of a plan for rationing canned, frozen and dried fruits and vegetables would bring about "just what they want to avoid—unfair distribution."

Mrs. Rose Marie Kieffer, secretary of the National Association of Retail Grocers, said "we deplore government officials giving the unscrupulous portion of the public a month to do their hoarding. Rather than realize their hope of equitable distribution at the start of rationing, they will by this announcement produce an unfair distribution."

Fulmer Condemns Food Statement Month in Advance

Rationing Authorities Are Accused of Promoting Hoarding; Buying Wave Reported

(By The Associated Press)

The Chairman of the House Agricultural Committee, Rep. Fulmer (D.-S.C.) joined today in condemnation of the food administration's announcement, more than a month in advance, of its plan to ration more than 200 kinds of commercially processed foods.

Fulmer told reporters rationing authorities had "promoted a buying wave and encouraged hoarding."

Price Administrator Leon Henderson, in announcing last night Food Administrator Wickard's orders to ration canned food, frozen and dried fruits and vegetables, as well as soups, tomato products and juices, said "the reasons for announcing the program this far in advance may be found in the magnitude of the job to be done before rationing can begin."

Henderson asserted 1,500,000 O.P.A. volunteers would have to be recruited and trained in connection with the registration for ration book No. 2, under which foods will be distributed. He appealed to Americans to "play fair with the nation's food supply" and not stock up. Secretary of Agriculture Wickard and O.W.I. Director Elmer Davis supplemented this appeal in radio addresses.

Some stores reported "runs," but many already had established limits tof one or two cans of each food to a customer. Chain store executives in New York said the announcement "makes it legal," explaining they have limited sales for months. A survey showed 17 of 18 stores in one Ohio district doing the same. Samuel Leask, southern California director of O.P.A., said many grocers there had limited canned goods purchases for some time, at O.P.A.'s request.

In New Haven, Conn., several retail stores reported inquiries from persons seeking to buy canned goods by the dozen. Independent stores there were selling only two or three cans to each person, and chain stores for several weeks had limited sales to one can of

Dried, Frozen Fruits, Vegetables, Juices and Soups Included on Point Basis

Washington, Dec. 28 (AP)—You will need a ration book with your can opener beginning in February.

In an extraordinary broadcast to the American people, Food Administrator Claude R. Wickard outlined plans last night to ration all canned, dried, and frozen fruits and vegetables, and their juices, including soups, as soon as the machinery can be set up.

The purpose, as Wickard explained it, is to insure an equitable distribution on the home front while supplying the armed forces and our fighting allies, who together will need about 25 per cent of all the food that we produce next year.

In a warning against hoarding, the Office of Price Administration emphasized that consumers must list stocks on hand when registering for war ration book two, the "point" rationing book which will be used for canned goods, and later for meats and other commodities.

Fresh fruits and vegetables, and those preserved at home, will not be affected.

Wickard, declaring that nearly half of next year's production of canned and dried fruits and vegetables will be needed for military purposes, said:

"On the average, 33 pounds of canned, frozen, or dried fruits and vegetables are expected to be available for each person in 1943 as compared with an average of about 46 pounds a year from 1937 to 1941.

"But that doesn't mean," he said, "we will be poorly fed. At present—assuming that we meet production goals and that military and lend-lease needs stay in line with present estimates—it looks as if we will have a civilian food supply about as big as we had in the last half of the 1930's. Here are the prospects for some of our foods:

"Dairy products—90 to 95 per cent as much per capita for our civilian population in 1943 as was consumed in the 1935-39 period.

"Meats—100 to 105 per cent of the 1935-39 period.

"Poultry—150 to 160 per cent.

"Eggs—90 to 95 per cent.

"Potatoes—95 to 100 per cent.

"Fresh citrus fruits—125 to 130 per cent.

"Fresh vegetables—90 to 95 per cent.

"Cereals—Abundant supplies, we can have all that we want to eat."

Dakar Comes to Life With Arrival Of Americans; Big Things Expected

(The arrival of American troops in Dakar was disclosed last week by Joseph Morton of The Associated Press, the only American war correspondent on hand to report the stirring news in a dispatch direct from that French West African port. In the following dispatch Morton gives more details of the situation the Americans found in Dakar).

By JOSEPH MORTON

Dakar, Dec. 26 (Delayed) (AP)—The mysterious and strategic port of Dakar, closed for many months to the allies and Axis alike, is beginning to awaken from a long siege of war-imposed sleeping sickness.

With the arrival of American troops, an air of expectancy and impending big doing has penetrated the city. The 40,000 white residents, most of them youthful and lively, are facing the prospect of once again having something important to do, and somewhere to go.

The man in the street anticipates that the swing of French West Africa to the allies will mark a big change in the badly-crowded metropolis teeming with soldiers and sailors. He is tired of pillbox construction, bicycles, pony carts, charcoal-burning automobiles, choked apartments and hotels, super-rationing, propaganda, counter-propaganda, and counter-counter-propaganda.

Now that West Africa is all on one horse, he would like to get on with the war. He wants an end to the complexity caused when the old fifth column (of pro-allies) became legal overnight, and collaborationists changed horses in mid-stream, or started a new fifth column.

Six-Year-Old Girl Dies of Dysentery

Marks Third Similar Death in City This Year; Taken Ill Dec. 21

Harriet, the six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Morris, of 78 Hunter street, died on Saturday afternoon in the Benedictine Hospital from an attack of dysentery. Her death was the third death of dysentery in Kingston this year. Her sister, Carolyn, 3 years old, was removed to the hospital on Sunday suffering from dysentery, and her condition today was reported as fair.

Harriet was taken ill on Monday evening, December 21, after she had taken part in the annual Christmas exercises in the chapel of the Rondout Presbyterian Church. That night after she had spoken a piece she complained of pains in her stomach. She was taken home and on Saturday morning her condition was such that it was decided to remove her to the hospital where she died a few hours later.

Dr. L. E. Sanford, health officer, said today that the health department was making a thorough investigation. He said that Carolyn, who is now in the hospital, had been stricken with dysentery the first of December, but had apparently fully recovered at that time.

Cultures will be taken of the entire family which consists of the parents, four sons, Leonard, Clifford, James and Vernon, and Carolyn.

Dr. Sanford said that he had investigated the food the family had eaten without tracing the source of the infection.

Funeral notice will be found in the local death record.

Gains Announced

Allies Tell of Improved Positions in Africa, Far East

By JAMES M. LONG
(Associated Press War Editor)

The Red Army was reported today swiftly drawing shut a second and still larger circle of entrapment around the Nazis in the salient to Stalingrad, threatening uncounted new German forces with the fate of the 22 divisions already declared hemmed in and doomed.

The jaws of the new trap were said to be only 45 miles apart northeast of Tsimlyansk, on the lower Don, mid-way between Rostov and Stalingrad.

As the Russian comeback offensive surged ahead in the bitter cold on all four major fronts on Hitler's eastern flank, the correlated Allied sweep across North Africa pressed to within 180 miles of Tripoli, where Marshal Rommel's retreating columns were reported streaming on into Tunisia for a last stand.

In every phase of fighting, on land and in the air, from the Russian front to North Africa, the Allies were keeping to the attack and the Axis battled for time, on the defensive.

The continued British advance upon Tripoli was announced in a Cairo communique which said "yesterday our troops were in contact with the enemy in the Wadi Bei El Chebir area, 40 miles west of Sirte."

That represented a thrust of almost half the distance to Tripoli from El Agheila since Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British Eighth Army overran that Libyan defense line two weeks ago.

From both sides, Allied bombers battered the Axis-held ports of Tunisia in hard week-end blows. Flying Fortresses pounded Bizerte and Sfax. Only two of the big bombers were lost, and two ships at Sfax were reported sunk. The Cairo communique announced raids Saturday night on Tunis and Sousse.

On the mud-clogged Tunisian land front, Gen. Henri Honore Giraud's French North African troops were proving their worth in the Allied battleline.

They announced an important advance south of Pont-Du-Fahs, some 30 miles south of Tunis, where they hold the southern flank of the Allied line with Americans in the center and British to the north.

This was one of two French forces reported to have thrust through stiffening German defenses to positions roughly 35 miles from the Gulf of Hammamet on the Tunisian east coast, threatening thus to cut the Axis Tunisian front in two. The second column was near Kairouan, about 50 miles farther south and 35 miles west of Sousse.

An Allied headquarters communique said French troops "have displayed high fighting qualities" and "are being reinforced and re-equipped."

It was not known whether these forces would continue to be under direct command of General Giraud since his designation as high commissioner of French Africa, to take the place of the assassinated Admiral Jean Darlan.

Allied ground forces continued to hold the important hill position six miles northeast of Medjez-El-Bab, which they won Christmas Day in a fierce fight in which the height changed hands three times.

Along this battlefield, 28 miles from Tunis, the Germans were reported working with feverish haste to bolster their defenses, using huge tanks as pillboxes, stringing up wire, and strewing mines.

Russian dispatches said the jaws of the new trap in the Don bend was being closed by the capture of the villages of Biriukov and Solonetzky.

Biriukov is 22 miles northeast of Tsimlyansk, on the Don, and apparently was seized in a thrust from the east, by-passing Kotelnikovski.

Solonetzky, 45 miles northeast of Biriukov, was wrested from the Germans by an arm of the middle Don offensive from the north.

A Moscow communique said that in the drive down the lower Don 600 Germans were slain in a night battle as the Red Army forged steadily on.

In the middle Don offensive where the Russians are pressing westward into the Ukraine and southward toward Rostov, 600 more Germans were reported killed and an important Nazi stronghold was captured.

The Russians said the Germans, in their retreat, were abandoning large quantities of stores and war

Kingston's tax rate for 1943 will be $42.80, or a few cents less, if the tentative city budget prepared by Mayor William F. Edelmuth is adopted by the Common Council at its regular monthly meeting in January.

This is a decrease of $1.64 from this year's tax rate which was $44.44 per thousand valuation.

A public hearing on the tentative budget will be held by Mayor Edelmuth on Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the council chambers at the city hall.

In the tentative budget that has been prepared there is an increase in pay of $10 a month granted the police and fire department members, owing to the increased cost of living. There will also be given the usual increments to those on the civil service list.

Mayor Edelmuth said today that the debt service and interests on city bonds was larger than it was the past year, and the increase amounted to approximately $14,000. This was due to the fact that more bonds mature in 1943.

Old Tubes to Be Turned In

Washington, Dec. 28 (AP)—Owners of radio sets soon will be required to turn in their old tubes when they buy new ones. In making this announcement today, the War Production Board said the requirement would permit the salvaging of tube bases which, in some cases, can be refabricated. The turn-in requirement probably will go into effect early in 1943.

Woman Is Burned As Gas Ignites

Mrs. John Rydzewski, 19, Is Taken to Hospital for Face Burns

Mrs. John Rydzewski, 19, of 29 Jarrold street, was burned about the face when coal gas from the kitchen stove ignited at 10:26 o'clock this morning. She was rushed to the Kingston Hospital in the police radio car manned by Officers Wesley Cramer and Walter McDonough, and after treatment returned to her home.

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy, who investigated the accident, said that Mrs. Rydzewski opened the lid of the coal stove in the kitchen and was poking the fire to stir it up after placing fresh coal on the fire. Coal gas accumulated, due probably to the fact that the chimney damper was not opened, and when the hot coals were exposed they ignited the coal gas.

As the coal gas ignited it flashed up into her face, burning it, and also set fire to some clothing hanging on a line in the kitchen near the stove.

The fire department was called, and soon had the fire under control. The damage was slight.

Registration Is Due

Registration of all wholesalers and retailers of coffee in Kingston will be held at the office of the Kingston War Price and Rationing Board on December 29, 30 and 31. All inventory data must be in the hands of the rationing board by the first of the year.

Status of Indian Empire No Longer Causes Anxiety

By DeWITT MACKENZIE

New Delhi, Dec. 27 (Delayed)—Looking back from nine months to the black days when the sprawling sub-continent of India was unprepared to defend itself against a Japanese invasion it's good to be able to report with certainty that this great empire's security is no longer a cause of anxiety.

Of course the defense of India is still a matter of concern, just as is the defense of England, or our own United States for that matter. There always must be an element of danger so long as the Mikado's barbarians are sitting just across the bay of Bengal in Burma.

However, we can say that Hindustan today is so well set for military action that it feels capable of dealing with an emergency. The time of sleepless nights has passed.

I arrived in the Indian capital last night and the first thing I did was to check on the military situation to make sure it looked as good at close range as it has from a distance. It seems even better here where we are up against actualities.

India has a big army of at least a million under arms here at home, apart from the hundreds of thousands of men who are fighting overseas. The training of new troops is proceeding well. Other defensive projects are said to be in an equally satisfactory condition.

So far as concerns the possibility of a Japanese invasion, the readers of this column will recall that from the outset of the Nipponese conquests in Indonesia and Burma I said that an attempt to conquer India proper was remote despite this country's military and political weaknesses. This estimate was based on the undoubted fact that an invasion would not be strategically sound except from the standpoint of some emergency such as might develop, for example, in the Russo-German theatre.

The Japs already had overrun all and maybe more than they could hope to digest. So why ask for trouble by trying to swallow giant India. The Nipponese military leaders will steal all they can get away with, but the intimations have been that they are trying not to let their eyes get bigger than their stomachs.

Still there always was the bare possibility that Hitler might persuade his allies to strike at India

Navy Is Mobilized

London, Dec. 28 (AP)—The German-controlled Paris radio reported today that Generalissimo Francisco Franco had ordered mobilization of the small Spanish navy. There was no immediate confirmation from any other source, and the significance of the report was not immediately clear. Informed London observers hazarded the opinion that the mobilization, if true, mainly was a gesture to accompany the new Spanish-Portuguese pact. In any case, they said, the move would be of small military importance, since the Spanish navy at last official reports consisted principally of six cruisers, one fairly new 10,000-tonner and five of 6,000 tons each. There also were said to be 18 destroyers, six small torpedo boats, nine submarines and five minelayers.

Retail Official Says Announcement Unfair

Chicago, Dec. 28 (AP).—A National Retail Association official said today that the government announcement of a plan for rationing canned, frozen and dried fruits and vegetables would bring about "just what they want to avoid—unfair distribution."

Mrs. Rose Marie Kieffer, secretary of the National Association of Retail Grocers, said, "we deplore government officials giving the unscrupulous portion of the public a month to do their hoarding. Rather than realize their hope of equitable distribution at the start of rationing, they will, by this announcement produce an unfair distribution."

Fulmer Condemns Food Statement Month in Advance

(By The Associated Press)

The Chairman of the House Agricultural Committee, Rep. Fulmer (D.-S.C.) joined today in condemnation of the food administration's announcement, more than a month in advance, of its plan to ration more than 200 kinds of commercially processed foods.

Fulmer told reporters rationing authorities had "promoted a buying wave and encouraged hoarding."

Price Administrator Leon Henderson, in announcing last night Food Administrator Wickard's orders to ration canned food, frozen and dried fruits and vegetables, as well as soups, tomato products and juices, said "the reasons for announcing the program this far in advance may be found in the magnitude of the job to be done before rationing can begin."

Henderson asserted 1,500,000 O.P.A. volunteers would have to be recruited and trained in connection with the registration for ration book No. 2, under which foods will be distributed. He appealed to Americans to "play fair with the nation's food supply" and not stock up. Secretary of Agriculture Wickard and O.W.I. Director Elmer Davis supplemented this appeal in radio addresses.

Some stores reported "runs," but many already had established limits tof one or two cans of each food to a customer. Chain store executives in New York said the announcement "makes it legal," explaining they have limited sales for months. A survey showed 17 of 18 stores in one Ohio district doing the same. Samuel Leask, southern California director of O.P.A., said many grocers there had limited canned goods purchases for some time, at O.P.A.'s request.

In New Haven, Conn., several retail stores reported inquiries from persons seeking to buy canned goods by the dozen. Independent stores there were selling only two or three cans to each person, and chain stores for several weeks had limited sales to one can of

Washington, Dec. 28 (AP)—You will need a ration book with your can opener beginning in February.

In an extraordinary broadcast to the American people, Food Administrator Claude R. Wickard outlined plans last night to ration all canned, dried, and frozen fruits and vegetables, and their juices, including soups, as soon as the machinery can be set up.

The purpose, as Wickard explained it, is to insure an equitable distribution on the home front while supplying the armed forces and our fighting allies, who together will need about 25 per cent of all the food that we produce next year.

In a warning against hoarding, the Office of Price Administration emphasized that consumers must list stocks on hand when registering for war ration book two, the "point" rationing book which will be used for canned goods, and later for meats and other commodities.

Fresh fruits and vegetables, and those preserved at home, will not be affected.

Wickard, declaring that nearly half of next year's production of canned and dried fruits and vegetables will be needed for military purposes, said:

"On the average, 33 pounds of canned, frozen, or dried fruits and vegetables are expected to be available for each person in 1943 as compared with an average of about 46 pounds a year from 1937 to 1941.

"But that doesn't mean," he said, "we will be poorly fed. At present—assuming that we meet production goals and that military and lend-lease needs stay in line with present estimates—it looks as if we will have a civilian food supply about as big as we had in the last half of the 1930's. Here are the prospects for some of our foods:

"Dairy products—90 to 95 per cent as much per capita for our civilian population in 1943 as was consumed in the 1935-39 period.

"Meats—100 to 105 per cent of the 1935-39 period.

"Poultry—150 to 160 per cent.

"Eggs—90 to 95 per cent.

"Potatoes—95 to 100 per cent.

"Fresh citrus fruits—125 to 130 per cent.

"Fresh vegetables—90 to 95 per cent.

"Cereals—Abundant supplies, we can have all that we want to eat."

Harriet, the six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Morris, of 78 Hunter street, died on Saturday afternoon in the Benedictine Hospital from an attack of dysentery. Her death was the third death of dysentery in Kingston this year. Her sister, Carolyn, 3 years old, was removed to the hospital on Sunday suffering from dysentery, and her condition today was reported as fair.

Harriet was taken ill on Monday evening, December 21, after she had taken part in the annual Christmas exercises in the chapel of the Rondout Presbyterian Church. That night after she had spoken a piece she complained of pains in her stomach. She was taken home and on Saturday morning her condition was such that it was decided to remove her to the hospital where she died a few hours later.

Dr. L. E. Sanford, health officer, said today that the health department was making a thorough investigation. He said that Carolyn, who is now in the hospital, had been stricken with dysentery the first of December, but had apparently fully recovered at that time.

Cultures will be taken of the entire family which consists of the parents, four sons, Leonard, Clifford, James and Vernon, and Carolyn.

Dr. Sanford said that he had investigated the food the family had eaten without tracing the source of the infection.

Funeral notice will be found in the local death record.

Dakar Comes to Life With Arrival Of Americans; Big Things Expected

(The arrival of American troops in Dakar was disclosed last week by Joseph Morton of The Associated Press, the only American war correspondent on hand to report the stirring news in a dispatch direct from that French West African port. In the following dispatch Morton gives more details of the situation the Americans found in Dakar).

By JOSEPH MORTON

Dakar, Dec. 26 (Delayed) (AP)—The mysterious and strategic port of Dakar, closed for many months to the allies and Axis alike, is beginning to awaken from a long siege of war-imposed sleeping sickness.

With the arrival of American troops, an air of expectancy and impending big doing has penetrated the city. The 40,000 white residents, most of them youthful and lively, are facing the prospect of once again having something important to do, and somewhere to go.

The man in the street anticipates that the swing of French West Africa to the allies will mark a big change in the badly-crowded metropolis teeming with soldiers and sailors. He is tired of pillbox construction, bicycles, pony carts, charcoal-burning automobiles, choked apartments and hotels, super-rationing, propaganda, counter-propaganda, and counter-counter-propaganda.

Now that West Africa is all on one horse, he would like to get on with the war. He wants an end to the complexity caused when the old fifth column (of pro-allies) became legal overnight, and collaborationists changed horses in mid-stream, or started a new fifth column.

Jaws of New Soviet Trap Are Only 45 Miles Apart Northeast of Tsimlyansk

Gains Announced

Allies Tell of Improved Positions in Africa, Far East

By JAMES M. LONG
(Associated Press War Editor)

The Red Army was reported today swiftly drawing shut a second and still larger circle of entrapment around the Nazis in the salient to Stalingrad, threatening uncounted new German forces with the fate of the 22 divisions already declared hemmed in and doomed.

The jaws of the new trap were said to be only 45 miles apart northeast of Tsimlyansk, on the lower Don, mid-way between Rostov and Stalingrad.

As the Russian comeback offensive surged ahead in the bitter cold on all four major fronts on Hitler's eastern flank, the correlated Allied sweep across North Africa pressed to within 180 miles of Tripoli, where Marshal Rommel's retreating columns were reported streaming on into Tunisia for a last stand.

In every phase of fighting, on land and in the air, from the Russian front to North Africa, the Allies were keeping to the attack and the Axis battled for time, on the defensive.

The continued British advance upon Tripoli was announced in a Cairo communique which said "yesterday our troops were in contact with the enemy in the Wadi Bei El Chebir area, 40 miles west of Sirte."

That represented a thrust of almost half the distance to Tripoli from El Agheila since Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British Eighth Army overran that Libyan defense line two weeks ago.

From both sides, Allied bombers battered the Axis-held ports of Tunisia in hard week-end blows. Flying Fortresses pounded Bizerte and Sfax. Only two of the big bombers were lost, and two ships at Sfax were reported sunk. The Cairo communique announced raids Saturday night on Tunis and Sousse.

They announced an important advance south of Pont-Du-Fahs, some 30 miles south of Tunis, where they hold the southern flank of the Allied line with Americans in the center and British to the north.

This was one of two French forces reported to have thrust through stiffening German defenses to positions roughly 35 miles from the Gulf of Hammamet on the Tunisian east coast, threatening thus to cut the Axis Tunisian front in two. The second column was near Kairouan, about 50 miles farther south and 35 miles west of Sousse.

An Allied headquarters communique said French troops "have displayed high fighting qualities" and "are being reinforced and reequipped."

It was not known whether these forces would continue to be under direct command of General Giraud since his designation as high commissioner of French Africa, to take the place of the assassinated Admiral Jean Darlan.

Allied ground forces continued to hold the important hill position six miles northeast of Medjez-El-Bab, which they won Christmas Day in a fierce fight in which the height changed hands three times.

Along this battlefield, 28 miles from Tunis, the Germans were reported working with feverish haste to bolster their defenses, using huge tanks as pillboxes, stringing up wire, and strewing mines.

Russian dispatches said the jaws of the new trap in the Don bend was being closed by the capture of the villages of Biriukov and Solonetzky.

Biriukov is 22 miles northeast of Tsimlyansk, on the Don, and apparently was seized in a thrust from the east, by-passing Kotelnikovski.

Solonetzky, 45 miles northeast of Biriukov, was wrested from the Germans by an arm of the middle Don offensive from the north.

A Moscow communique said that in the drive down the lower Don 600 Germans were slain in a night battle as the Red Army forged steadily on.

In the middle Don offensive where the Russians are pressing westward into the Ukraine and southward toward Rostov, 600 more Germans were reported killed and an important Nazi stronghold was captured.

The Russians said the Germans, in their retreat, were abandoning large quantities of stores and war

Nuzzo Is Installed At Special Meeting

Dusing, Present Business Agent, Challenges Right

Newburgh, N. Y., Dec. 28 (AP)—Samuel Nuzzo, installed at a special meeting yesterday as chief business agent of Local 17, International Hod Carriers and Common Laborers Union, made no attempt today to move into union headquarters and his election opponent declared "he'd better not try."

Nuzzo is on trial, now in adjournment until January 4, for misappropriating $9,844 in union funds when he was formerly business agent. Most of Local 17's 1,200 claimed members are engaged on a $300,000,000 New York city aqueduct project in the Hudson valley.

Frederick W. Dusing of Kerhonkson, who has been business agent since Nuzzo's ouster in a February election conducted under court order, declared "We're still in the driver's seat and we intend to stay there."

Nuzzo did not take over union headquarters, at 245 Broadway, although his trial lawyer, Henry Hirschberg, said this would be done "as soon as possible." Nuzzo stated "we're going to wait and do it right."

Nuzzo's installation took place after the regular meeting had been officially adjourned yesterday and Dusing challenged the right of Patrick Waldron, a representative of Joseph V. Moreschi, general president of the international, to call a special meeting for the ceremony.

Kenneth Canfield, Local 17 president, declared Waldron's action "proved without the slightest doubt that the international is firmly behind the corrupt Nuzzo faction. The Dusing administration will continue to conduct the business of this local on the same high plane as it has in the past."

Nuzzo was installed by Waldron on the basis of a November 15 election ordered by the local's election committee and won by Nuzzo over Dusing 135 to 27. This election was ruled valid by Moreschi and on Saturday by the union's general executive committee.

On November 29, however, another election, sponsored by Local 17's executive board, was conducted with Dusing receiving 249 votes to Nuzzo's 13.

Fulmer Condemns Food Statement Month in Advance

each variety. President Alfred J. Poth of the Connecticut State Retail Grocers' Association said the situation presented a "personal problem" for each grocer.

William Eden, director of purchases for American Stores Co., said in Philadelphia: "The only thing for a retailer to do is to take his goods off his shelves, especially in the self-serving markets."

Rep. Fulmer commented in Washington:

"The procedure is ridiculous. The announcement this far in advance can only result in a wave of buying and hoarding which will aggravate the situation. It is only natural that housewives who use canned foods extensively will start stocking up, especially when they are warned in advance that they had better get all they can while the getting is good."

Fulmer said the decision to ration canned foods amounted to belated official recognition of the truth of the Agricultural Committee's repeated warnings of the past that a food shortage was developing.

"This thing should have been taken in hand long ago instead of waiting this long," he commented. "And when it was decided that rationing was necessary, there should not have been an advance official tip-off. Instead, the first announcement should have frozen sales of all such food until the rationing machinery was set up."

Administrator Henderson pointed out that each consumer registering for the new ration book would have to declare all commercially processed foods in his possession, and "heavy penalties are provided for any applicant who makes a false declaration."

much of every kind of food as he wants, and while "there may not be as much pleasure in eating," Wickard declared that "there will be enough for an adequate and healthy diet."

Food Goes to Allies

Speaking on the same program, Elmer Davis, director of war information, observed that some American food goes to the allies and said that "to hear some people talk, you would think that most of it is going to our allies."

"That is not so," he declared. "What goes to our allies is less than what goes to our own armed forces; and don't forget that to some extent this exchange of food works both ways. Some British food, and a great deal of Australian food, is supplied by the governments of those countries to our troops who are stationed there. . . .

Prior to the broadcast, Donald E. Montgomery, retiring consumers' counsel in the Agriculture Department, issued a statement protesting against advance announcement of plans for food rationing.

He called for the rationing of all foods except cereals and perishable fruits and vegetables, but declared that no previous announcements should be made, in order to "avoid tipping off trade speculators, pantry hoarders and pocketbook patriots."

Wickard and Davis said advance announcement was necessary to give the public time to become familiar with the point rationing system, which O.P.A. explained as follows:

"With a few minor exceptions, such as individuals living in institutions every member of the civilian population from the new born infant to the oldest inhabitant will have exactly the same number of points to spend during each ration period. These periods will be announced in advance.

"Point values will be identical in every store in the country and a housewife may shop for the family in any store she likes.

"The new point 'currency' for processed foods will be represented by the blue stamps in war ration book two, which contains both red and blue stamps. There are a total of 96 blue stamps and a numeral on the face of each shows its point value. Each stamp also bears a letter of the alphabet. These letters designate the ration period when stamps may be used.

"For example, all blue stamps bearing the letters A and B; or A through F; or any other combination, might be designated for use during a specific period. Since each letter of the alphabet appears on stamps totaling 16 points—one '8', one '5', one '2', and one '1'—the letters made valid in any one period determine the number of points that may be spent to buy the rationed foods. If only A and B stamps were validated, only 32 points could be spent during the first ration period, while if stamps marked A through F were designated, the holder would have 96 points to spend.

Three Important Facts

"There are three important facts to be remembered in this connection:

"The total number of points that will be allotted to each civilian has not yet been determined; Nor has the specific point value of any of the foods to be rationed. Points will be set for each commodity according to its supply at the time the ration period is announced.

"Possession of points merely entitles you to buy your share; you must pay for the rationed merchandise, as usual, in dollars and cents.

"The housewife has complete freedom of choice. She can spend her points any way she wishes, although, of course, the items that are scarce will have a higher point value, and hence, will use up her points faster.

"Food stores will be required to display prominently an official OPA poster showing point values of the various kinds of rationed foods according to container size. As point values are changed to reflect the shifting supply situation, new posters will be issued.

"It is not expected that it will be necessary to announce changes in point values more often than once a month. X X X

"There are three main points the consumer should remember about war ration book two.

"The color of the stamps (there are both red and blue) identifies the rationed commodities. Blue for the processed foods program. Red will be used later for meats.

"The letter of the alphabet on the stamp designates the ration period during which the stamp may be used. These periods will be announced in advance.

"The number on the stamp is its point value."

Best Film of Year

New York, Dec. 28 (AP)—Noel Coward's current film, "In Which We Serve," recently the subject of a British-American Dialogue Censorship Dispute, has been chosen as the best film of the year, the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures announced today. The British-made picture, of which Coward was producer, director and star, had certain "Anglo-Saxon" words deleted before its showing in this country. At the time of the Dialogue Censorship, British Information Minister Brendan Bracken told the House of Commons that Hollywood Censors were too "Old Maiden Aunt-Like."

Postal Traffic Ends

Bern, Switzerland, Dec. 28 (AP)—Postal traffic between Switzerland and the United States as well as between this country and France, Spain and Portugal has been suspended by Italian occupation authorities in France. Swiss mail addressed to the United States since France was completely occupied by the Axis powers was returned to the senders this week with the notation that there was no route by which it could be sent. At the same time, all mail reaching the Swiss border from Spain and Portugal has been seized and returned.

No Meal Coupons

Washington, Dec. 28 (AP) The restaurant habitue at least for some time to come won't have to bother about ration coupons for meals. The Office of Price Administration made that clear today, saying that at least at the beginning of the canned foods rationing program, sometime in February, there would be no coupons for meals.

Supplies Are Bombed

Washington, Dec. 28 (AP)—The navy announced today that the Japanese had dropped supplies by parachute to their hard-pressed forces on Guadalcanal Island, but the parachutes and their cargo were discovered on the ground and bombed and strafed by United States army planes.

HOME BUREAU

Lake Katrine

The Lake Katrine Home Bureau Unit will meet at the home of Mrs. William T. Hookey, January 7. The meeting will start at 2 o'clock with Mrs. Auley Roosa giving the lesson. The topic will be "Simplification of Housework, (Time Savers and Short Cuts)."

Land has been sown to a rubber-bearing plant in Sweden, but further development depends upon the possibility of getting more seed from Germany.

New York, Dec. 28 (AP)—Motors, rubbers and gold mines touched new highs for the year or longer in today's stock market while many leaders elsewhere failed to make progress.

Prices turned a shade mixed after a fairly steady start and, near the fourth hour, fractional variations either way clouded the direction. Sizable blocks of low-quoted issues again expanded volume.

Continuance of cheerful war news aided selected favorites. The recent advance, however, inspired some profit cashing on the idea that usual year-end rally might already have taken place. Belated tax offerings provided a mild handicap.

Bonds were narrow and commodities relatively steady.

Registering best marks for 1942 in the share division were General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Firestone Tire and Dome Mines. In front most of the time were Homestake Mining, Commonwealth & Southern Preferred, United Aircraft, North American and Allied Chemical. Intermittent losers included American Telephone, Santa Fe, Anaconda, Standard Oil (N. J.), Montgomery Ward, Republic Steel, Westinghouse and International Harvester.

Washington, Dec. 28 (AP)—Manufacture of desk pencil sharpeners was halted today by the WPB which also forebade the making of copper engraving for calling cards, greeting cards, and business stationery. Village Is Reproduced

Freeman Photo

Edwin Kolts of 315 Hasbrouck avenue carries letters in the city as a profession, but as a hobby he likes to work in his shop, producing scenes as shown in above photo. This Christmas group, complete with church, 12 houses, skating pond, people, and Santa and all his reindeer, took six months to build. The church is complete in every detail from its 59 steeples, ringing bell, pews, Bible and communion cup, to the strains of an organ, playing as though it came from the interior. There is a varying light effect from dusk to night, with lights in all the houses, shining out on the winter landscape. The background around the set was painted by Billy Barnett, and continues the scene with mountains and cloudy sky.

materials throughout this entire area. They declared that most of the vast triangle east of the Moscow-Rostov railroad and north of the Likhaya-Stalingrad line was in Russian hands.

The offensive was reaching so deep into the German rear that crated planes were reported being found at rail line stations such as Tatsinskaya, 50 miles east of Likhaya.

On the Velikie Luki front northwest of Moscow the Russians reported capturing four more communities, and the Moscow communique said "the German command is throwing its soldiers into fruitless counterattacks."

Southeast of Nalchick, on the Caucasus front, the communique said, a large village was captured by the Red Army after a fierce battle, and the Germans were dislodged from several hill positions.

The German high command acknowledged the pressure of Russian attacks along the entire front and said German troops fought "successful defensive battles" in the Don bend.

Pacific Drive Gains

Allied air power, on the offensive across the southwest Pacific from Burma to the Solomon Islands, was credited today with knocking down 33 to 36 Japanese airplanes, damaging at least four ships and bombing eight or more Japanese bases in week-end attacks.

These underlined the grim warning which the Japanese people were given by their Premier and War Minister, Gen. Hideki Tojo, that "the real war is starting from now."

One of the heaviest blows against the Japanese in the air was dealt by American lockheed lightnings in the skies above the Buna coastal battlefront in New Guinea.

Outnumbered more than three to one, 12 of the swift American pursuit planes engaged a force of 25 fighters and 15 bombers. A communique from allied headquarters in Australia said the lightnings shot down 15 planes—13 fighters and two bombers. None of the lightnings was lost, and only one was listed as damaged.

Allied medium bombers shot down three other Japanese fighters in this section and anti-craft fire downed another.

Other allied bombers heavily damaged a 15,000-ton transport and set three cargo vessels afire at Rabaul, New Britain.

Also attacked by allied planes were enemy warehouses at Madang and Finschhafen, near Vitiaz Strait in Northeastern New Guinea; supply depots and road transport near Laivai, in Timor; the airdrome at Cape Gloucester and a schooner in Jacquinot Bay, New Britain.

Allied ground forces were said to have made gains on both flanks of the last heavily fortified Japanese lines at Buna.

The Chinese air defense headquarters at Kunming said eight of 21 Japanese bombers were shot down yesterday in a new raid on Yunnan Province.

Brig. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's American flying dragon fighter pilots also were said to have downed seven and perhaps 10 of 18 Japanese planes which attempted to attack an American air base Saturday afternoon.

American bombers attacked Japanese advanced bases in Yunnan Province, just across the Chinese border from Burma, and the RAF striking from India, bombed a Japanese airdrome at Heho in Central Burma.

Japanese planes raided Calcutta again this morning, but damage was described as slight. The British said there were fewer than 10 casualties.

The Tokyo radio said allied planes bombed and machinegunned Bangkok, capital of Thailand, early yesterday morning.

Butter Is Scarcer

New York, Dec. 28 (AP)—Butter, already scarce in the city's retail stores, was even scarcer in some of them after 22,000 pounds, scheduled for delivery today, were reported stolen from the basement ice box of a cold storage warehouse. The butter, valued at $6,000 to $8,000, wholesale, disappeared some time between Christmas Eve and early today.

THE NEW YEAR

Beyond the blue horizon
Where tomorrow waits the morn
A fateful year is sailing here
With spotless days unborn.

Beyond the blue horizon
There are peaceful, sunny skies
But in between we face a scene
Where stricken men must rise.
The year that waits to greets us
Uncertain tho' it be
Must lead the way to one fair day
When all the world is free.

Beyond the blue horizon
There's joy that time will bring
But courage high must never die
Where bells of freedom ring.
The new year holds a promise
Of brighter years in view
But you..and I..must toil..and sigh
To make our dreams come true.

Sunday Night Rain Causes Icy Roads

Driving Is Curtailed Again by Slippery Going

Rain which started around 9 o'clock Sunday night and continued through the night till around 8 o'clock this morning, froze on roads and walks in all this area, leaving a glare of ice that made walking or driving hazardous.

At the Trailways bus station it was stated that it was necessary last night to halt some buses until conditions got better, but that buses are running this morning, averaging about half an hour behind schedule. Mr. Van Gonsic said that icy conditions maintained all along the line, from Malone to New York, but that the worst going was encountered between New York and Albany.

It is understood that the northbound Greyhound bus got as far as New Paltz last night, but laid up there until the roads became safer.

Busses coming into the Crown street Terminal from Ellenville, Pine Hill and Saugerties, were running half to three-quarters of an hour late on their first trips this morning.

Road conditions apparently were better toward Kingston than some distance from the city. Deputy Sheriff George Reynolds, who comes down from Woodstock each morning, said that the upper end of the road particularly was coated with hard black ice that made driving dangerous. He noticed five northbound milk trucks stalled in the West Hurley section and a couple of others farther south along the road. A number of cars also had slid off the road, although apparently there had been no serious accidents. From the Avalon down the ice seemed to be more slushy and cut up, so that driving was somewhat better.

Class to Be Held For New Spotters

Group to Be Formed Next Week at High School

Local men and women as well as high school students desiring to prepare themselves to serve as "spotters," an activity considered one of the most important phases of civilian defense and known in military parlance as "the eyes and ears of the Army," are invited to join a new class that is being formed next week.

This class will be in charge of Mrs. George D. Logan, associate chief-observer of Kingston's Army Post whose qualification for this type of activity rates highly with the directorship in charge of Ulster county's Aircraft Warning Service of the First Fighter Command.

At the completion of this course, student observers will be assigned to serve with experienced "spotters" in order to round out their knowledge of the required functions. Student observers will find this class interesting. The course consists of a number of lectures on the army's requirements, rules and regulations, functions and duties.

The thrill of sending a "flash" message through a special code number and hearing the voice of the Army's Filter Board in New York say "thank you" is a reward in itself for the time and effort involved. But the "big moment" really comes when the student observer, a full-fledged "spotter" now, takes full charge of the post and assumes responsibility for the safety of the community.

A "spotter" is required to give but two-hours a week to this service and anyone interested to join this class of patriotic minded men and women responding to the Army's call to watch the sky-lanes of our community will contact Mrs. George D. Logan, associate chief-observer, 68 Garden street, in Kingston, or telephone 1544.

State Insurance Fund Office in Poughkeepsie

To render a more direct compensation insurance service to employers in Poughkeepsie and adjacent areas, the State Insurance Fund has opened a branch office at 16 Cannon street, Poughkeepsie. The office will be in charge of John F. Judge, widely experienced in compensation procedure. Mr. Judge formerly was manager of the Newburgh branch office of the State Fund, now transferred to Poughkeepsie.

Many employers in the district of which Poughkeepsie is the central point are policyholders in the State Fund will find the new office a convenience, enabling them to receive direct and prompt service in all matters relating to compensation insurance. At the new office also full information on compensation coverage will be available to any employer, whether or not he is a State Fund policyholder.

The new office will serve the counties of Dutchess, Orange, Putnam, Sullivan and Ulster.

Mayor, Pastor to Take Part in Broadcast

Mayor William F. Edelmuth and the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, pastor of the First Dutch Church of this city, will take part in the short wave radio broadcast on New Year's to the occupied Netherlands, under plans that are now maturing.

The short wave broadcast is being arranged by the Netherlands Information Bureau which has written the mayor and the Rev. Mr. Oudemool that men will be in Kingston on Wednesday with the necessary apparatus for recording the broadcast, which is to be sent out over the air waves the first of the year.

It is also planned to record the tolling of the old bell in the tower of the First Dutch Church. This bell was cast in Holland many years ago. Recordings will also be made of several old songs on the church organ by W. Whiting Fredenburgh, organist of the church.

Wilson's Warning of New War to Come Recalled on Anniversary of His Birth

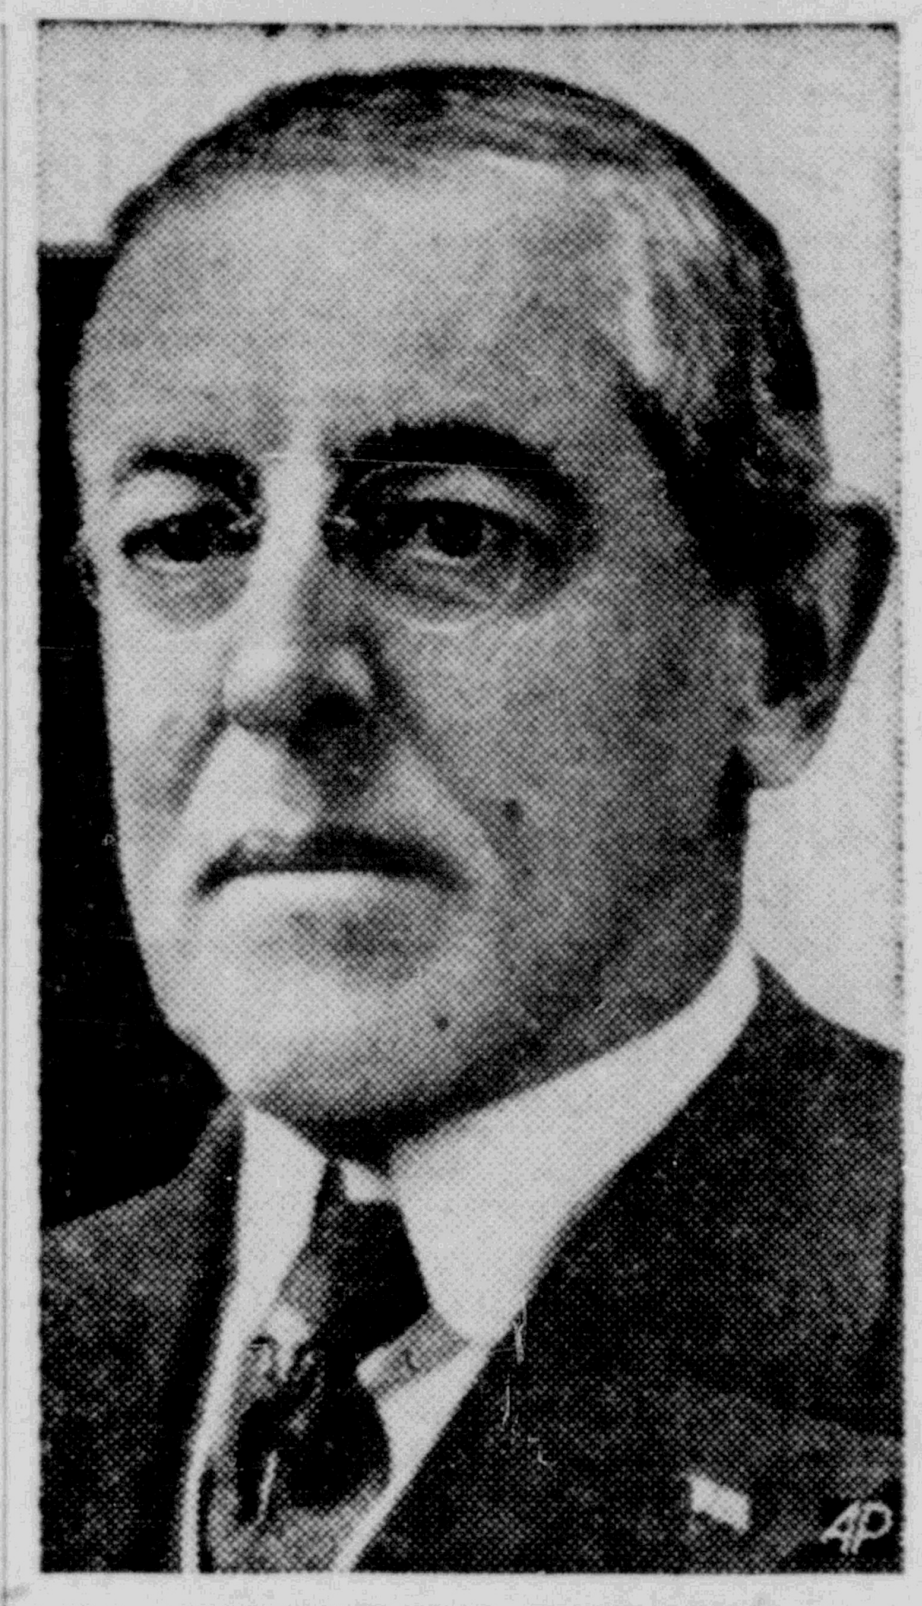
By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
AP Features Writer



WOODROW WILSON
..Predicted A Greater War..

Washington, Dec. 28—"I can predict with absolute certainty that within another generation there will be another world war if the nations of the world do not concert the method by which to prevent it."

President Wilson, speaking in Omaha, Sept. 8, 1919, on his unsuccessful League of Nations selling tour, sounds that warning to the American people. And a few days later in San Diego, he says:

"I do not hesitate to say that the war we have just been through, though it was shot through with terror of every kind, is not to be compared with the war we would have to face the next time. What the Germans used were toys as compared with what would be used in the next war."

A week later Wilson collapses from the strain of the war years and his fight for United States adherence to the league. He has made 38 speeches in three weeks in the cause which he contends "is greater than the Senate or the government."

His controversy with the Senate revolves around Article 10 of the League covenant under which member nations pledge "to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all members of the league."

Wilson's opponents are split into groups of so-called strong and mild reservationists and those who want "no part of the league." Some senators insist that "no American soldiers or sailors must be sent to fight in other lands at the bidding of the league."

The President, maintaining Article 10 is the core of the whole treaty, refuses to accept any reservations excepting minor alterations. Adherence to the league is interwoven with the peace treaty, and the Senate finally fails to ratify the treaty with reservations.

Most citizens of 1919 want to forget the war and "get out of the European mess." Political issues are the high cost of living and getting "back to normalcy" which the Republicans effectively adopt as an election slogan in the victorious campaign for Warren Harding.

Folks on the home front are busy welcoming the Yanks of 1918 returning from over there. Future wars seem very remote from the babies of 1919 who are to become the Yanks of 1942 and 1943.

Now, on the 86th anniversary of Woodrow Wilson's birth, the American Council of Public Affairs is releasing a book. "Wilson's Ideals." It is a compilation of statements by the first world war President on democracy, peace and the league, many of which hit the present situation squarely on the nose.

Advocates of U. S. leadership in a program for a durable peace are counting on Wilson's prophetic warnings to enlist public support for such a program. Citing polls which indicate from 70 to 80 per cent of the voters favor this country joining some association of nations to preserve world peace, they claim there has been a revolution in public opinion since Wilson's day.

From his sickbed in the White House, President Wilson sent a message to the Jackson Day dinner of the Democrats. It contained this statement:

"The maintenance of the peace of the world and the effective execution of the treaty depend upon the whole - hearted participation of the United States. I am not stating it as a matter of power. The point is that the United States is the only nation which has sufficient moral force with the rest of the world to guarantee the substitution of discussion for war. If we keep out of this agreement, if we do not give our guarantee, then another attempt will be made to crush the new nations of Europe."

Poletti Asks Italy Throw Out Duce And Pal, Hitler

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 28 (AP) — The nation's first state governor of Italian descent calls upon the people of Italy to "throw out both Hitler and Mussolini" and to "proclaim their devotion" to such champions of freedom as Garibaldi.

The plea was made by Governor Charles Poletti of New York last night in a speech he recorded in Italian for the Office of War Information. It was broadcast to England to be transmitted by short wave to Italy.

Speaking as "one whose parents were both born in Italy" and adding "it is my honor to be the first governor of Italian racial extraction in any state in the United States," the governor declared:

"We Americans of Italian origin, as Americans, appeal to the people of Italy to rise and proclaim their devotion to the ideals of leaders like Garibaldi, Cavour, Mazzini and Italy's other champions of freedom. We expect that at the strategic moment the Italian people will throw off both Hitler and Mussolini."

After recalling his student days in Italy, the governor told how American freedom had given him and others of Italian parentage "the opportunity of achieving high public office." He said "all of us . . . are making our full contribution to the victory of democratic freedom."

The Italian people must learn, he added, "their liberation can come only through victory of the United Nations."

In another talk last night, Poletti told New Yorkers via radio they are doing a "magnificent job" in making "full contribution to the success of the war."

He commended industry, labor and agriculture for working at "top speed." He said industrialists have abandoned discriminations against certain racial and religious groups. Labor likewise has gone "all out," the governor said, citing longer working hours and labor's acceptance of suspension of provisions of the labor law when necessary to boost production.

Poletti praised farmers for producing more, despite "colossal difficulties." Farm women particularly, he said, "have made great sacrifices."

New York City, Dec. 28—As chairman of the State War Council's Committee on Discrimination in Employment, Industrial Commissioner Frieda S. Miller today announced the promotion of Charles C. Berkley, Negro field representative of the Committee to the position of Executive Director, to replace Andrew C. Doyle who had served as director during a year's leave of absence from the State Mediation Board. Mr. Doyle, at the urgent request of Arthur S. Meyer, chairman of the board, has returned to his job as Supervising Labor Mediator in Albany.

"The state owes a great debt to Mr. Doyle whose mediation experience and sound judgment enabled him to pioneer in the development—for the first time in the United States—of methods of securing compliance with our anti-discrimination statutes by appeal and persuasion, with force as a last resort," Commissioner Miller said.

Mr. Berkley who has served as one of the Committee's five field representatives under Mr. Doyle has worked on special cases involving integration of minority groups in many of the largest war plants in New York city where labor surpluses created difficult problems of discrimination, the Commissioner said. Previous to his present position, Mr. Berkley was Industrial Secretary of the Brooklyn Urban League in which capacity he organized a coordinated program looking toward the training and placement of Negroes in war industries, worked with employers, labor unions and public groups in a successful effort to open employment opportunities for his race.

"Mr. Berkley brings an unusual measure of organizing ability to a new and difficult field where such ability is a prime requisite. I am proud of being able thus to recognize a member of the colored race on the basis of outstanding qualification, the same basis on which we urge such recognition in industry," Miss Miller declared.

"All loyal workers, be they aliens, Jews or Negroes, must now be allowed to work for victory, not only to win the war but because that's what we are fighting for. Discrimination against any minority jeopardizes all," said Mr. Berkley in a statement accepting appointment as director.

Commissioner Miller also announced the resignation of Lucille J. Buchanan, assistant executive director of the committee, to take effect December 31. Miss Buchanan is accepting a position in Washington.

Mr. Berkley has been active in improving employment opportunities for the colored race in Illinois, Pennsylvania and New Jersey as well as in New York city. In addition to his industrial experience he has engaged in life insurance. He is also author and journalist and as an avocation a lyric song writer. Educated at the University of Redlands in California, he holds a master's degree from the University of Pittsburgh in sociology and economics. He is married and lives in Brooklyn with his wife and two daughters.

January Quota Is 75 Men; 5 Colored

Next Contingent Will Go to Albany January 5

Kingston's draft board has been notified to send a quota of 75 men, five of them colored, to an army induction center in Albany for physical examinations on Tuesday, January 5.

This is the first quota of the new year, and it is expected that later in the month another quota, equally large, will be sent to an induction center.

Those who pass the physical tests in Albany next month will be immediately inducted into the U. S. Army, and granted a week's furlough before being sent to an army training camp.

Post-War Radio Will Perform Big Variety of Things

New York, Dec. 28 (AP)—Radio, after the war, will perform such chores as sewing, de-activating vegetables, hardening metals and gluing things together, says David Sarnoff, Radio Corporation of America president—but that's not half of it.

"The useful services of radio," Sarnoff said yesterday in year-end review, "will be broadened far beyond the communication field, into such realms as the R.C.A. electron microscope, radio-frequency heating; supersonics and no end of applications made possible by the development of new radio tubes, especially those designed to send and receive micro waves—tiny waves measured in centimeters."

Sarnoff said that many of radio's scientific achievements of 1942 remained military secrets, but would make Americans proud when revealed.

He asserted that the application of "radio frequency heating to speed industrial processes and at the same time increase their efficiency is rapidly coming to the fore."

"Radio waves," he said, "may now be used to heat, dry, glue, stitch, annel, weld, rivet and even to de-active enzymes. This new field is known as thermal radio. It can laminate an airplane propeller in minutes, compared to hours required by ordinary heat and pressure methods.

"Radio high-frequency 'furnaces' are a post-war prospect. In them, railroad ties will be seasoned quickly, and 'cakes' of textiles dried uniformly.

"Even rubber may be radio-cemented to wood or plastic; cloth stitched and steamed by radio heat; metals hardened; plywood glued; and fresh vegetables de-activated without loss of flavor or color.

"The possibilities in this new thermic realm of radio are unlimited, as indicated by remarkable advances in R.C.A. laboratories during the year.

Dusing, Present Business Agent, Challenges Right

Newburgh, N. Y., Dec. 28 (AP)—Samuel Nuzzo, installed at a special meeting yesterday as chief business agent of Local 17, International Hod Carriers and Common Laborers Union, made no attempt today to move into union headquarters and his election opponent declared "he'd better not try."

Nuzzo is on trial, now in adjournment until January 4, for misappropriating $9,844 in union funds when he was formerly business agent. Most of Local 17's 1,200 claimed members are engaged on a $300,000,000 New York city aqueduct project in the Hudson valley.

Frederick W. Dusing of Kerhonkson, who has been business agent since Nuzzo's ouster in a February election conducted under court order, declared "We're still in the driver's seat and we intend to stay there."

Nuzzo did not take over union headquarters, at 245 Broadway, although his trial lawyer, Henry Hirschberg, said this would be done "as soon as possible." Nuzzo stated "we're going to wait and do it right."

Nuzzo's installation took place after the regular meeting had been officially adjourned yesterday and Dusing challenged the right of Patrick Waldron, a representative of Joseph V. Moreschi, general president of the international, to call a special meeting for the ceremony.

Kenneth Canfield, Local 17 president, declared Waldron's action "proved without the slightest doubt that the International is firmly behind the corrupt Nuzzo faction. The Dusing administration will continue to conduct the business of this local on the same high plane as it has in the past."

Nuzzo was installed by Waldron on the basis of a November 15 election ordered by the local's election committee and won by Nuzzo over Dusing 135 to 27. This election was ruled valid by Moreschi and on Saturday by the union's general executive committee.

On November 29, however, another election, sponsored by Local 17's executive board, was conducted with Dusing receiving 249 votes to Nuzzo's 13.

Fulmer Condemns Food Statement Month in Advance

each variety. President Alfred J. Poth of the Connecticut State Retail Grocers' Association said the situation presented a "personal problem" for each grocer.

William Eden, director of purchases for American Stores Co., said in Philadelphia: "The only thing for a retailer to do is to take his goods off his shelves, especially in the self-serving markets."

Rep. Fulmer commented in Washington:

"The procedure is ridiculous. The announcement this far in advance can only result in a wave of buying and hoarding which will aggravate the situation. It is only natural that housewives who use canned foods extensively will start stocking up, especially when they are warned in advance that they had better get all they can while the getting is good."

Fulmer said the decision to ration canned foods amounted to belated official recognition of the truth of the Agricultural Committee's repeated warnings of the past that a food shortage was developing.

"This thing should have been taken in hand long ago instead of waiting this long," he commented. "And when it was decided that rationing was necessary, there should not have been an advance official tip-off. Instead, the first announcement should have frozen sales of all such food until the rationing machinery was set up."

Administrator Henderson pointed out that each consumer registering for the new ration book would have to declare all commercially processed foods in his possession, and "heavy penalties are provided for any applicant who makes a false declaration."

Foods Rations Will Start in February

much of every kind of food as he wants, and while "there may not be as much pleasure in eating," Wickard declared that "there will be enough for an adequate and healthy diet."

Food Goes to Allies

Speaking on the same program, Elmer Davis, director of war information, observed that some American food goes to the allies and said that "to hear some people talk, you would think that most of it is going to our allies."

"That is not so," he declared. "What goes to our allies is less than what goes to our own armed forces; and don't forget that to some extent this exchange of food works both ways. Some British food, and a great deal of Australian food, is supplied by the governments of those countries to our troops who are stationed there. . . .

Prior to the broadcast, Donald E. Montgomery, retiring consumers' counsel in the Agriculture Department, issued a statement protesting against advance announcement of plans for food rationing.

He called for the rationing of all foods except cereals and perishable fruits and vegetables, but declared that no previous announcements should be made, in order to "avoid tipping off trade speculators, pantry hoarders and pocketbook patriots."

Wickard and Davis said advance announcement was necessary to give the public time to become familiar with the point rationing system, which O.P.A. explained as follows:

"With a few minor exceptions, such as individuals living in institutions every member of the civilian population from the new born infant to the oldest inhabitant will have exactly the same number of points to spend during each ration period. These periods will be announced in advance.

"Point values will be identical in every store in the country and a housewife may shop for the family in any store she likes.

"The new point 'currency' for processed foods will be represented by the blue stamps in war ration book two, which contains both red and blue stamps. There are a total of 96 blue stamps and a numeral on the face of each shows its point value. Each stamp also bears a letter of the alphabet. These letters designate the ration period when stamps may be used.

"For example, all blue stamps bearing the letters A and B; or A through F; or any other combination, might be designated for use during a specific period. Since each letter of the alphabet appears on stamps totaling 16 points—one '8', one '5', one '2', and one '1'—the letters made valid in any one period determine the number of points that may be spent to buy the rationed foods. If only A and B stamps were validated, only 32 points could be spent during the first ration period, while if stamps marked A through F were designated, the holder would have 96 points to spend.

Three Important Facts

"There are three important facts to be remembered in this connection:

"The total number of points that will be allotted to each civilian has not yet been determined; Nor has the specific point value of any of the foods to be rationed. Points will be set for each commodity according to its supply at the time the ration period is announced.

"Possession of points merely entitles you to buy your share; you must pay for the rationed merchandise, as usual, in dollars and cents.

"The housewife has complete freedom of choice. She can spend her points any way she wishes, although, of course, the items that are scarce will have a higher point value, and hence, will use up her points faster.

"Food stores will be required to display prominently an official OPA poster showing point values of the various kinds of rationed foods according to container size. As point values are changed to reflect the shifting supply situation, new posters will be issued.

"It is not expected that it will be necessary to announce changes in point values more often than once a month. X X X

"There are three main points the consumer should remember about war ration book two.

"The color of the stamps (there are both red and blue) identifies the rationed commodities. Blue for the processed foods program. Red will be used later for meats.

"The letter of the alphabet on the stamp designates the ration period during which the stamp may be used. These periods will be announced in advance.

"The number on the stamp is its point value."

Land has been sown to a rubber-bearing plant in Sweden, but further development depends upon the possibility of getting more seed from Germany.

New York, Dec. 28 (AP)—Motors, rubbers and gold mines touched new highs for the year or longer in today's stock market while many leaders elsewhere failed to make progress.

Prices turned a shade mixed after a fairly steady start and, near the fourth hour, fractional variations either way clouded the direction. Sizable blocks of low-quoted issues again expanded volume.

Continuance of cheerful war news aided selected favorites. The recent advance, however, inspired some profit cashing on the idea that usual year-end rally might already have taken place. Belated tax offerings provided a mild handicap.

Bonds were narrow and commodities relatively steady.

Registering best marks for 1942 in the share division were General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Firestone Tire and Dome Mines. In front most of the time were Homestake Mining, Commonwealth & Southern Preferred, United Aircraft, North American and Allied Chemical. This Christmas group, complete with church, 12 houses, skating pond, people, and Santa and all his reindeer, took six months to build. The church is complete in every detail from its 59 steeples, ringing bell, pews, Bible and communion cup, to the strains of an organ, playing as though it came from the interior. There is a varying light effect from dusk to night, with lights in all the houses, shining out on the winter landscape. The background around the set was painted by Billy Barnett, and continues the scene with mountains and cloudy sky.

materials throughout this entire area. They declared that most of the vast triangle east of the Moscow-Rostov railroad and north of the Likhaya-Stalingrad line was in Russian hands.

The offensive was reaching so deep into the German rear that crated planes were reported being found at rail line stations such as Tatsinskaya, 50 miles east of Likhaya.

On the Velikie Luki front northwest of Moscow the Russians reported capturing four more communities, and the Moscow communique said "the German command is throwing its soldiers into fruitless counterattacks."

Southeast of Nalchick, on the Caucasus front, the communique said, a large village was captured by the Red Army after a fierce battle, and the Germans were dislodged from several hill positions.

The German high command acknowledged the pressure of Russian attacks along the entire front and said German troops fought "successful defensive battles" in the Don bend.

Pacific Drive Gains

Allied air power, on the offensive across the southwest Pacific from Burma to the Solomon Islands, was credited today with knocking down 33 to 36 Japanese airplanes, damaging at least four ships and bombing eight or more Japanese bases in week-end attacks.

These underlined the grim warning which the Japanese people were given by their Premier and War Minister, Gen. Hideki Tojo, that "the real war is starting from now."

One of the heaviest blows against the Japanese in the air was dealt by American lockheed lightnings in the skies above the Buna coastal battlefront in New Guinea.

Outnumbered more than three to one, 12 of the swift American pursuit planes engaged a force of 25 fighters and 15 bombers. A communique from allied headquarters in Australia said the lightnings shot down 15 planes—13 fighters and two bombers. None of the lightnings was lost, and only one was listed as damaged.

Allied medium bombers shot down three other Japanese fighters in this section and anti-craft fire downed another.

Other allied bombers heavily damaged a 15,000-ton transport and set three cargo vessels afire at Rabaul, New Britain.

Also attacked by allied planes were enemy warehouses at Madang and Finschhafen, near Vitiaz Strait in Northeastern New Guinea; supply depots and road transport near Laivai, in Timor; the airdrome at Cape Gloucester and a schooner in Jacquinot Bay, New Britain.

Allied ground forces were said to have made gains on both flanks of the last heavily fortified Japanese lines at Buna.

The Chinese air defense headquarters at Kunming said eight of 21 Japanese bombers were shot down yesterday in a new raid on Yunnan Province.

Brig. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's American flying dragon fighter pilots also were said to have downed seven and perhaps 10 of 18 Japanese planes which attempted to attack an American air base Saturday afternoon.

American bombers attacked Japanese advanced bases in Yunnan Province, just across the Chinese border from Burma, and the RAF striking from India, bombed a Japanese airdrome at Hebo in Central Burma.

Japanese planes raided Calcutta again this morning, but damage was described as slight. The British said there were fewer than 10 casualties.

The Tokyo radio said allied planes bombed and machinegunned Bangkok, capital of Thailand, early yesterday morning.

Sunday Night Rain Causes Icy Roads

Driving Is Curtailed Again by Slippery Going

Rain which started around 9 o'clock Sunday night and continued through the night till around 8 o'clock this morning, froze on roads and walks in all this area, leaving a glare of ice that made walking or driving hazardous.

At the Trailways bus station it was stated that it was necessary last night to halt some buses until conditions got better, but that buses are running this morning, averaging about half an hour behind schedule. Mr. Van Gonsic said that icy conditions maintained all along the line, from Malone to New York, but that the worst going was encountered between New York and Albany.

It is understood that the northbound Greyhound bus got as far as New Paltz last night, but laid up there until the roads became safer.

Busses coming into the Crown street Terminal from Ellenville, Pine Hill and Saugerties, were running half to three-quarters of an hour late on their first trips this morning.

Road conditions apparently were better toward Kingston than some distance from the city. Deputy Sheriff George Reynolds, who comes down from Woodstock each morning, said that the upper end of the road particularly was coated with hard black ice that made driving dangerous. He noticed five northbound milk trucks stalled in the West Hurley section and a couple of others farther south along the road. A number of cars also had slid off the road, although apparently there had been no serious accidents. From the Avalon down the ice seemed to be more slushy and cut up, so that driving was somewhat better.

THE NEW YEAR

Beyond the blue horizon
Where tomorrow waits the morn
A fateful year is sailing here
With spotless days unborn.

Beyond the blue horizon
There are peaceful sunny skies
But in between we face a scene
Where stricken men must rise.
The year that waits to greet us
Uncertain tho' it be
Must lead the way to one fair day
When all the world is free.

Beyond the blue horizon
There's joy that time will bring
But courage high must never die
Where bells of freedom ring.
The new year holds a promise
Of brighter years in view
But you and I must toil and sigh
To make our dreams come true.

A CORD OF WOOD

In the early days in this country when wood was the almost universal fuel, a cord of wood was eight feet long, four feet wide and four feet high, containing 128 cubic feet. Of late years the cord often has been sold as eight feet long, four feet high, but only as wide as the width of the sticks. It might be fourteen inches wide, or twenty-four, according to the width of the fireplace. Obviously, the man with the big fireplace usually got the most for his money.

The Canadian Wartime Prices and Trade Board has issued a statement which states a maximum roadside price. It assumes that when the 48-inch length is bought it should cost less in proportion, "because of less handling, less waste and considerably less cutting and labor," but anything less than the 48-inch length is a "short cord" and its price is to be regulated accordingly.

So, apparently, a cord is still a cord in the land of our northern neighbors. People who use wood all the time are familiar with proper prices and regulations in their own communities. But nowadays more fireplaces than for a long time are being used for real heat instead of mere pleasant adjuncts to living-rooms, and buyers of wood have had some unpleasant surprises. Perhaps, like the Canadians, they had better stand their ground and get a decision from their local O.P.A. before paying for a full cord and getting only a short one.

EXPLAINING A CRIMINAL

From any rational viewpoint Adolf Hitler seems insane. But it is the insanity of a clever and daring madman with not only an immense ambition but with a grudge gnawing at his soul. With his ambition he aims to dominate the world, and with his grudge he aims to exterminate the Jews. In both aims he has gone far, and must be stopped before the slaughter goes much farther.

He is diabolically clever in his procedure. Dorothy Thompson explains it plausibly in this way: "His object is to terrorize the Allies into negotiating a peace, playing on their humane feelings, and to create such a hatred of Germany in the world that the German people will fear to revolt against him, lest they all perish in the revenge that will follow."

In short, if she is right, the idea is to incriminate the German nation so deeply that the Germans will not dare to abandon him. It is a familiar strategy of criminals, to keep their dupes loyal. How far it has succeeded is hard to say. Perhaps far enough, at least, to prolong Hitler's insane war beyond its natural duration, and to make all Germans feared and hated for at least a generation to come.

BAD SPELLS

President Roosevelt acknowledges that he misspelt "generalissimo." This was in a longhand letter to the Chinese leader, Chiang Kai-shek. The President put in a second "l", which fortunately was caught by some eagle-eye before the letter went out.

Probably Mr. Roosevelt never took part in a spelling match. This old-time institution combined education and fun. Occasionally nowadays it has been revived for adults. This gives a chance to show off knowledge about the spelling of seldom used words like "sysygy" and "farinaceous." Only too often, however, the eager contestant succumbs not to such terrors, but to everyday words like "receive."

Most people don't spell quite so well as they think they do. The President, in joining their ranks, shows that he too is human.

It's good news that dusky old Haille Selassie, Emperor of Ethiopia, has joined our side. There's a fellow who never gives up.

It really isn't fair that some American soldiers, who were seasick all the way to Africa, now have to ride camels.

If we only had now about one-fourth of the tires and gasoline we've wasted!

PAINS

During the last war we had in our hospital three cases of painful shoulder that were found to be due to an "extra" curvical (in neck) rib pressed on the large nerve whose branches supplied shoulder, neck, arm and hand. By removal of this extra rib, these patients obtained relief from their pain. Where the extra rib could not be felt or the X-rays failed to show this extra rib, the pain was believed to be due to pressure from some other cause. It is interesting, therefore, to know that even if the extra rib is not present, hard fibrous tissue, in the same situation in the body as where the extra rib is found, may be pressing on the large nerve and causing the pain in shoulder, neck, arm, and hand.

In Surgery Review, Buenos Aires, Dr. L. Rogers states that this fibrous tissue may be an "extension" from the spinal bone or the hard portion of the scalenus muscle in this region.

What are the symptoms present when an extra rib or this fibrous tissue is pressing on this large nerve?

The symptoms at first come and go, but later there is constant pain in the shoulder which extends into the neck and down the arm, with numbness and tingling in forearm and fingers.

To distinguish this ailment from other conditions or injuries in the shoulder such as a bag of water under shoulder cap or a torn muscle about the shoulder, Dr. Rogers points out that the pain and other symptoms in pressure by curvical rib or fibrous tissue are relieved when the arm is placed in a splint which holds the arm out at the side in line with the shoulder. The fact that this position of the arm gives relief justifies the surgeon in separating to some extent the muscles pressing on the nerve and cutting away the hard fibrous tissue. The first rib is cut away to make more room for the nerve and muscles. Giving the nerve more room so that no muscle, fibrous, or bony tissue will press against it is the object of the operation.

I spoke before of this "cervical rib and scalenus muscle" group of symptoms some months ago, pointing out that this extra rib was the cause. It is interesting to know that fibrous tissue in the same place as the extra rib can cause these same symptoms and that these symptoms can be relieved by operation.

Science

By H. W. BLAKESLEE

An ace-in-the-hole discovery of 1942 was a new form of the synthetic rubber neoprene, which makes tires as good as natural rubber without requiring any natural rubber to be added. This is the first time in all rubber history such a synthetic has appeared.

A synthetic rubber for raincoats was made from the safety glass plastic, promising to save about 60,000 tons of natural rubber annually.

Ragweed and peanut oils were developed to replace shortages. Tapioca was made from midwestern sorghum. Glass fiber boards substituted for cork. Lily of the valley leaves became a source of digitalis. Menthol was produced from coal tars for another shortage. Vanadium was found in phosphate rock and alcohol made by solvents instead of by distillation. Steel was hardened with boron, new cutting and quenching oils were found, radio waves improved tin plating, sponge iron was developed to replace scrap for steel-making.

A new atomic power instrument, the betatron, was built to produce 100,000,000 volt electrons and X-rays. Wool was moth-proofed.

A. L. Herrera, Mexico City biologist, reported that mixtures of formaldehyde, ammonia, sulfur and cyanogen produced 6,000 microscopic forms which showed signs of being alive, a possible clue to the origin of life.

Nutrition, notably egg white and vitamins, gave promising results in cancer. Stilbestrol, the female sex hormone, relieved male prostatic cancer. Artificial fever and X-rays combined aided cancer.

There were explosive anesthetic from the U. S. Bureau of Mines, dicoumarin to prevent blood clots, a fibrinogen spray to stop surface bleeding, a locator for bits of metal in living tissues, plastic bandages for wounds, sulfadiazine for burns, a refrigeration ambulance for men with leg and arm wounds, albumin to replace plasma for transfusion, "sulfapyrazine" a new sulfa drug—and a new dye to show whether a cold is allergic.

B-1 was found useful for some types of mental disorder, C for hay fever and C and B-1 for hot weather, A for high blood pressure, K for aid in inhibiting tooth decay.

Astronomical studies indicated that clouds of dust and gas in interstellar space are condensing into stars.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

One of the most enjoyable experiences in my life—if the reader will forgive the personal note—is the time I attended the 13th annual reunion and dinner of the Ulster County Society in New York City. The dinner and reunion was held in the world famous Waldrof-Astoria Hotel in New York city, on January 12, 1929, and was the last dinner the society ever held in the hotel as the building was demolished that summer.

It was a memorable experience for me as it was the first time I had ever eaten in the old hotel or spent the night under its roof. If I recall correctly my room that night cost $7, and that did not include the meals.

The society began gathering long before the dinner was served in the historic "Peacock Walk" on the ground floor of the hotel. This "Peacock Walk" was famous as through it had walked many of the leading personalties of the world who had been guests or visitors at the hotel in the years it had operated.

I also recall that the music for the reunion was conducted by Harry Armstrong, the man who composed that world famous song "Sweet Adeline" which is still hummed and sung, especially by the older readers of this column.

Among those from Kingston who I recall offhand at the reunion were John M. Cashin, Arthur A. Davis, John W. Eckert, Senator Arthur H. Wicks, Dr. Charles D. Carter, Frank W. Thompson, Roger Loughran.

Also, M. H. Herzog, Dr. A. L. Hill, Chris. K. Loughran, C. Ray Everett, Gerard Betz, Harry Lazarus, Judge Harry E. Schirick, Judge John T. Loughran, George Burgevin, M. Edgar Powley, Charles R. O'Connor, Philip Elting, Mayor Palmer Canfield, Morris Samter and John Weber.

Undoubtedly there were many others whom I have omitted though not intentionally.

The dinner that night was served on the roof of the old hotel, and Oscar Tschirky, better known to the world as Oscar of the Waldorf was also present, and I believe it was he who arranged the menu that was served that evening.

Among the speakers that evening were John Cashin and Philip Elting. Plans were also made for a memorial to the late Joe Drake, the organizer and founder of the society.

Older readers will recall Joe Drake, who was long active in local Democratic politics, and for many years was a reporter for the Kingston Leader in the years at the turn of the century.

In fact the reporters whom I recall most easily are: Joe Drake, Harold "Sen" Linson, Ed Merritt, Wally Becker, and Jesse Decker, who were all active in the days when I was a cub reporter. Of that group the only one still living is Ed. Merritt.

SOCKS GLOBE TROTTERS

An Australia soldier is wearing woolen socks knitted by Mrs. M. Stewart of Sydney in the last war. They went to France, then to Gallipoli, where they were issued to the soldier. He did not see a note Mrs. Stewart put in one sock because he did not wear the pair until 25 years later. The soldier, now a lieutenant, found the note containing this rhyme: "Dear Tom or Dick or Jim or Jack, For whom these knitted socks were packed, We work and knit and pray for you, Australian lad so brave and true."

Events Of Record News Year Burst '10 Best Story' Limits

By CHARLES HONCE
Associated Press News Editor

The big news as 1942 closes is that the United Nations are on the offensive on virtually all fronts.

In Russia, in Africa, in the Southwest Pacific—in the air, on land and on the sea—the Allies are beginning to crowd the Axis in the first real show of concerted global strength.

A year ago only Russia had taken the offensive at Rostov. Elsewhere the United Nations—few fewer than today's thirty—were suffering a series of tragic and humiliating defeats.

A year—spurred by the vast productiveness of America, the dogged defense of Russia and British block-busting air raids—has seen the tide turn.

In a general sense there was only one big story this year—the war. Almost every happening of moment was tied up directly or indirectly with the main event. Likewise, there were so many stories of an important or dramatic nature that even by telescoping and combining it is impossible to fit them into a formal "ten best" as in other years. A dozen make a very minimum.

Here is the news roll call for 1942—based on the selections of AP editors, over whose desks flow millions of words a week:

A "SECOND FRONT" IS OPENED (Nov. 7)—At the very moment discussion of a second front was at white heat, the greatest amphibious expedition in history, involving 850 ships, a vast American Army accoutered with 700,000 articles of war, was converging on North Africa to make it a fact. This invasion, combined with Britain's smash of Rommel, gives the United Nations a springboard for a European attack. North African aftermaths saw Germany occupy the rest of France and the scuttling of most of the French Navy.

AMERICA TAKES OFFENSIVE IN PACIFIC—When the Navy released the blood-chilling pictures and story of Pearl Harbor, America already was secure in the knowledge that the sneak attack had been avenged, that the Japanese had suffered a series of disastrous defeats climaxed by the destructive Solomon Islands engagement (Nov. 13-15), and that American forces were on the offensive on Guadalcanal and in New Guinea. American victories in the Coral Sea and Midway battles were previous omens of Pacific recovery.

RUSSIA HOLDS AND COUNTER-ATTACKS—On Sept. 30 Hitler shouted that Stalingrad was a city "which we shall take; you may depend on it." But the Fuehrer was wrong again. The Verdun of World War II held through four terrific months of Nazi assault, and then almost from its battered buildings came an amazing Russian offensive that spread like wildfire along the vast Russian front.

JAPAN CARVES OUT AN EMPIRE—After mouthing about its Greater East Asia Co-Prosperity sphere for years, Japan set out forcibly to win it, and did. In a few short months the Nipponese overran the whole of the South Pacific and were battering at the gates of Australia. High spots in this sweep of conquest were the fall of strategic Singapore, the stubborn American resistance at Bataan, and Gen. MacArthur's escape to Australia.

TWO-PARTY GOVERNMENT STRENGTHENED IN U. S. (Nov. 3)—A favorite theme of some alarmists was that American two-party government was a dead duck. Well, the Republicans not only came back in the off-year elections to greatly strengthen their Congressional power but provided evidence of a coming struggle.

TOKYO IS BOMBED (April 18)—The Germans took F. D. R. strictly at his word when they broadcast that Tokyo had been bombed by American planes based on Shangri-La. And Shangri-La it remains.

AMERICA GOES ON WARTIME ECONOMY—One cup of coffee a day perhaps may epitomize America's conversation to a wartime basis, with every citizen touched by a vast system of price controls, wage stabilization and rationing, accompanied by zoning taxes. An incidental phase was the passing of the W. P. A.

SABOTEURS EXECUTED (Aug. 8)—Six of eight Nazi saboteurs who came ashore from German submarines paid for their daring in the electric chair in Washington, to bring to a close one of the most extraordinary incidents of the war.

EDDIE RICKENBACKER RESCUED (Nov. 14)—"I never lost faith and knew he would be rescued." Those were the words of Mrs. Eddie Rickenbacker when news came of the captain's rescue in the South Pacific. The man who always comes back had done it again.

DIEPPE IS RAIDED (Aug. 19)—The tragically punishing Canadian Commando raid on Dieppe was one of the most spectacular single incidents of the war and a dress rehearsal for the future. America learned that some of her sons had gone along.

BOMBERS RAID EUROPE—The British have a bomb they call a "block-buster." Aided by the ever growing might of America's air power, they have been pulverizing German and Italian cities in devastating raids. But the worst is yet to come. American heavy bombers and fighters, once damned an inadequate, have proven their superiority and are piling up for a concentrated air offensive.

BOSTON'S FIRE TRAGEDY (Nov. 28)—A tiny match flame in the hands of a 16-year-old busboy touched off a fire in a Boston night club that claimed the lives of nearly 500 merrymakers.

Surely one of the most unusual news stories was Premier Stalin's second front letter to Henry Cassidy of the Moscow bureau of The Associated Press. Others: Normandie burns; Carole Lombard killed in plane crash; 18-19-year-olds drafted; Cards win pennant; Churchill visits Roosevelt; Joe Louis quits ring; John Barrymore, George M. Cohan die; Willkie tours United Nations; Japs invade Aleutians.

SWISS DIG MORE COAL

Switzerland resumed production of coal as soon as the present war started and the output now equals the maximum reached in the First World War. As most mines are in the development stage production will continue to increase. The domestic output, it is estimated in Bern, will provide from five to 10 per cent of the country's requirements. Germany has delivered considerably less coal than the promised 200,000 tons a month.

American Military Leaders Are Hampered by British and Our Own Home Front in Distribution of Supplies

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Dec. 28—There's one word which describes aptly not only the status of the war effort of America but also that of the United Nations. That word is "imbalance."

Unless the condition is corrected, all previous estimates as to the length of World War II must be revised and likewise all previous estimates as to the number of men who will be killed or wounded.

The "imbalance" starts right here in Washington and extends to London. A necessary censorship over the facts and figures helps coincidentally, though not intentionally, to hide the tragic absence of a coordinated production to meet a coordinated distribution of weapons and supplies.

The British do not see eye to eye with our own people as to the way supplies shall be distributed in this global war and the military leaders of our nation find themselves handicapped by incompetence of administration on the home front which is tending to impair the civilian economy and create such a painful "imbalance" as to have repercussions on the production side. For while much rationing is necessary, the maldistribution and inefficiency that has accompanied it is inexcusable and indefensible—not the least element of which is the latest cry that "everything is needed for North Africa," a claim which is not confirmed by those who ought to know.

The central trouble, of course, is that the President is a poor administrator and that he makes the same mistakes of zeal and enthusiasm in particular directions that his co-worker, Prime Minister Churchill makes. Both men are temperamentally great and inspiring leaders but they have made some serious errors which in due time will be disclosed and through these will not mar the broad record of leadership, historians will ask why their fellow countrymen were so acquiescent and passive while such blunders were in process of being made.

At the moment the most spectacular blunder lies in the handling of the aircraft and submarine problem. Having neglected air power for years, the administration now has swung to such an extreme as to effect adversely the flow of materials to build the escort ships and the cruisers, destroyers and capital ships required to convoy supplies safely and to break down the submarine menace. And the submarine situation is bad. The sinkings near our own coast have let up somewhat but the losses on the other side of the ocean have mounted considerably. Much of the food, much of the oil, much of the gasoline needed both at home and overseas are at the bottom of the ocean. Not a single official estimate has been released by Britain and America since the war began to indicate the billions of dollars of materials and supplies lost through submarine activity.

"Victory through air power" has been a good slogan that has swept the country but it has come to mean victory through air power alone. Yet air power has more than a year of huge production at the expense of other needed weapons and the enemy has been permitted to increase its undersea warfare. Air power, is might be supposed, could destroy submarine bases but the enemy has been given ample time to build concrete caverns to protect them. Likewise the battleship Tirpitz and the cruisers Gneisenau and Scharnhorst are accessible to air bombers of the United Nations but they still lie undestroyed in Norwegian harbors while a considerable number of our surface naval vessels are tied up maintaining a costly vigil. Air power has failed to lick the submarines and to destroy the small remnant of Germany's nuisance navy. This is largely a British problem and more questions are asked about it and go unanswered than on any other single phase of naval war.

Air power has had its priorities but what has happened to the enormous amount of aircraft produced this past year. Has it been permitted to dribble away a little here and a little there? Air power is fully recognized as an essential part of modern warfare and in its proper place can make land and sea operations many times more effective than they ever have been. But our navy in the Pacific needs more air power or else it needs a coordinated command so as to make better use of it in that area. The Japanese do not have a separate air command but the navy controls all airplanes used in offensive and defensive operations in and around islands and other land bases. Propaganda for a separate air corps has cost America plenty and the existence of a separate air force in Britain independent of naval or military control by the regular armed services has to date failed to achieve the objectives that should by now have been reached.

These views are held not just by laymen observers but by men who ought to know and who can be classed as experts, men who want more and not less air power but who also want a better distribution of weapons and supplies so we can shorten the war.

The field of the arts in America never has been stronger than in 1942, despite Hitler and the demands of military service. There have been fewer new impulses—no new movement and no new topflight talent emerged, perhaps because war and innovation both are the province of youth. But neither artistically nor commercially has the field lost ground.

In painting and sculpture there literally has been nothing new—even some of the winners of the Metropolitan Museum of Art's Artists for Victory show won on canvasses eight years old. And actually the exhibition was assembled to enable the Met to make some purchases, at good fees.

Some important shows of the masters brought to light many canvasses stored in America. The Carnegie International was not held, however, and draining off the stimulus provided by the Federal Art Project was felt acutely in some quarters.

Music proved the hardy perennial. One symphony orchestra was closed out, in Detroit, but another has been born in Baltimore. Commercially the music field has been in better shape than in 1941, and the democratizing influence of the Federal Music Project, seconded by the normal trend toward simplification in war time, has made important contributions.

Musical programs have been happily absent. Italian and German music is being heard in the usual proportions.

The book world has been very sensitive to the demands and opportunities of war. Last May, in solemn conclave, the publishers decided that light reading was out for the duration. Then they went home, and discovered it wasn't true.

The two most widely circulated war experience books, W. L. White's "They Were Expendable" and Robert Trumbull's "The Raft," each had book club help. And in general the war book output has been a cut above the average in former wars.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — The behind-the-scenes maneuvering that resulted in the resignation of Leon Henderson as price administrator may well turn out to be one of the most important political stories of the war effort.

Twenty-four hours before the quick exchange of letters with the President that terminated Henderson's activities, the New Deal warhorse had determined to fight Congress and public opinion to the bitter end. He had cleared the decks for action. He had tossed overboard his corollary price administration job as chief of W.P.B. civilian supply. He had held a series of sessions with those labor leaders, economists and other influential friends who were willing to back his fight. He had held a more-than-hour-long press conference, explaining his views and vigorously defending O.P.A. orders that had been so severely criticized.

Insiders say that he had been (and could have still) the support of the President in any fight he wanted to wage against Congress to save price control.

In addition to that, Senator Prentiss M. Brown had flatly refused to take over the "difficult and thankless task" of becoming Henderson's successor.

What then changed the situation over night?

Henderson IS ill. Even if he had continued, he would have had to sacrifice some time to maintaining his health. The load of work and criticism he has been staggering under would have wrecked the health of stronger men. It brought a return of Henderson's old back ailment and damaged his eyesight seriously.

But Henderson is no quitter. It would take more than illness and the threat of a terrific drubbing at the hands of Congress to cause the embattled 47-year-old economist to give up the fight he has waged so hard and so long to prevent inflation by rationing and price control. What then caused him to step out?

The answer is James F. Byrnes, the economic stabilization chief, "the Second President."

Byrnes knew what was going to happen to Henderson when the new Congress cracked down and as one observer put it, he knew that "that shouldn't be allowed to happen to a dog," much less to one of the New Deal stalwarts, who no matter what his faults, had given eight years of tireless effort to the government.

He knew also that in the bitter fight that was coming, the whole anti-inflation program might be left a heap of wreckage. So the little "Second President" shifted into high gear and turned on the heat. He overrode the President's reluctance to sacrifice Henderson. He put Brown "on the spot" where he couldn't say "no" to taking over "the difficult and thankless task." There is a story too that he made a quick deal with the Congress farm bloc which may have far-reaching effects—may even eliminate the fight for a change in the parity law.

The result: There's an end to that get-Henderson movement which had snowballed into an avalanche. And one of the most colorful scrappers in Washington and perhaps one of the most misunderstood men is out of the wartime government—for the time at least. Those who know the President and those who know Henderson are sure that once his health is recovered, he'll be back.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "Children Are People," etc.)

Mourning Is Reserved for Private Life

With almost each succeeding year, one can note the change in the attitude toward mourning etiquette. In fact, the complete withdrawal from social life as it was described in the original edition of my own book "Etiquette" is as out of key with life today as was the chaperon of a still earlier day, without whom no properly brought up girl of 18 walked alone in the street of New York! This in part answers a question from the president of a woman's club, who asks if she should resign from this office because she is in mourning for her husband. Her letter continues: "If it is not necessary that I resign how soon can I preside at meetings? I am referring both to business meetings and program meetings at which it is often necessary for me to introduce speakers."

Further answer to this is that mourning is allowed to affect one's private life alone, and one's public or business life is continued as usual. The president of a club should be expected to continue with all of her duties, except those of a purely social character. She would not be expected to receive at a dance or be present at any big social gathering but she could with perfect propriety introduce the speakers at an educational or political meeting as well as that of any war service.

Bride's Clothes Are Simpler

Dear Mrs. Post: Have there been any wartime changes in wedding veils, and if so, can you tell me what is being worn? Also, what is being worn by bridesmaids and maids of honor in the way of headdress?

Answer: The greatest change is that an increasing number of war brides wear street clothes! Even so, bridal dresses are of course being worn about three-quarters of the time, but the dresses are very simple in effect, shorter trains, very little heavy satin and very few lace veils. Many veils are finger length, but just as many reach the end of the train. About the bridesmaids: Sometimes they wear flowers, sometimes they wear hats much the same as formerly but, as already said, the whole effect is simpler.

Train Journey for Soldier and His Girl

Dear Mrs. Post: Can you approve of my letting my daughter go with a young soldier friend to visit his family? He wants to stop off here on his way home when he gets his furlough and take her home with him. The journey after they leave here will require a day and a night on the train.

Answer: If their interest in each other is serious and you approve of him, and his mother or whoever is the head of his family has written her an unmistakably welcoming letter of invitation, there would be no impropriety in her going—especially now in war time. If they travel on one of the modern all day coach trains, they are of course in full view of a whole car full of chaperoning people all night as well as all day. Even if they go in an open pullman they are also well chaperoned by all the other passengers.

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad however to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "Announcing the Engagement." Be sure to send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Post, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 150, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y. Leaflets cannot be mailed unless self-addressed envelope bears correct amount of postage.

Class to Be Held For New Spotters

Group to Be Formed Next Week at High School

Local men and women as well as high school students desiring to prepare themselves to serve as "spotters," an activity considered one of the most important phases of civilian defense and known in military parlance as "the eyes and ears of the Army," are invited to join a new class that is being formed next week.

This class will be in charge of Mrs. George D. Logan, associate chief-observer of Kingston's Army post whose qualification for this type of activity rates highly with the directorship in charge of Ulster county's Aircraft Warning Service of the First Fighter Command.

At the completion of this course, student observers will be assigned to serve with experienced "spotters" in order to round out their knowledge of the required functions. Student observers will find this class interesting. The course consists of a number of lectures on the army's requirements, rules and regulations, functions and duties.

The thrill of sending a "flash" message through a special code number and hearing the voice of the Army's Filter Board in New York say "thank you" is a reward in itself for the time and effort involved. But the "big moment" really comes when the student observer, a full-fledged "spotter" now, takes full charge of the post and assumes responsibility for the safety of the community.

A "spotter" is required to give but two-hours a week to this service and anyone interested to join this class of patriotic minded men and women responding to the Army's call to watch the sky-lanes of our community will contact Mrs. George D. Logan, associate chief-observer, 68 Garden street, in Kingston, or telephone 1544.

Mayor, Pastor to Take Part in Broadcast

Mayor William F. Edelmuth and the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, pastor of the First Dutch Church of this city, will take part in the short wave radio broadcast on New Year's to the occupied Netherlands, under plans that are now maturing.

The short wave broadcast is being arranged by the Netherlands Information Bureau which has written the mayor and the Rev. Mr. Oudemool that men will be in Kingston on Wednesday with the necessary apparatus for recording the broadcast, which is to be sent out over the air waves the first of the year.

It is also planned to record the tolling of the old bell in the tower of the First Dutch Church. This bell was cast in Holland many years ago. Recordings will also be made of several old songs on the church organ by W. Whiting Fredenburgh, organist of the church.

Wilson's Warning of New War to Come Recalled on Anniversary of His Birth

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
AP Features Writer

Washington, Dec. 28—"I can predict with absolute certainty that within another generation there will be another world war if the nations of the world do not concert the method by which to prevent it."

President Wilson, speaking in Omaha, Sept. 8, 1919, on his unsuccessful League of Nations selling tour, sounds that warning to the American people. And a few days later in San Diego, he says:

"I do not hesitate to say that the war we have just been through, though it was shot through with terror of every kind, is not to be compared with the war we would have to face the next time. What the Germans used were toys as compared with what would be used in the next war."

A week later Wilson collapses from the strain of the war years and his fight for United States adherence to the league. He has made 38 speeches in three weeks in the cause which he contends "is greater than the Senate or the government."

His controversy with the Senate revolves around Article 10 of the League covenant under which member nations pledge "to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all members of the league."

Wilson's opponents are split into groups of so-called strong and mild reservationists and those who want "no part of the league."

Some senators insist that "no American soldiers or sailors must be sent to fight in other lands at the bidding of the league."

WOODROW WILSON
..Predicted A Greater War..

The President, maintaining Article 10 is the core of the whole treaty, refuses to accept any reservations excepting minor alterations. Adherence to the league is interwoven with the peace treaty, and the Senate finally fails to ratify the treaty with reservations.

Most citizens of 1919 want to forget the war and "get out of the European mess." Political issues are the high cost of living and getting "back to normalcy" which the Republicans effectively adopt as an election slogan in the victorious campaign for Warren Harding.

Folks on the home front are busy welcoming the Yanks of 1918 returning from over there. Future wars seem very remote from the babies of 1919 who are to become the Yanks of 1942 and 1943.

Now, on the 86th anniversary of Woodrow Wilson's birth, the American Council of Public Affairs is releasing a book. "Wilson's Ideals." It is a compilation of statements by the first world war President on democracy, peace and the league, many of which hit the present situation squarely on the nose.

Advocates of U. S. leadership in a program for a durable peace are counting on Wilson's prophetic warnings to enlist public support for such a program. Citing polls which indicate from 70 to 80 per cent of the voters favor this country joining some association of nations to preserve world peace, they claim there has been a revolution in public opinion since Wilson's day.

From his sickbed in the White House, President Wilson sent a message to the Jackson Day dinner of the Democrats. It contained this statement:

"The maintenance of the peace of the world and the effective execution of the treaty depend upon the whole - hearted participation of the United States. I am not stating it as a matter of power. The point is that the United States is the only nation which has sufficient moral force with the rest of the world to guarantee the substitution of discussion for war. If we keep out of this agreement, if we do not give our guarantee, then another attempt will be made to crush the new nations of Europe."

Poletti Asks Italy Throw Out Duce And Pal, Hitler

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 28 (AP) — The nation's first state governor of Italian descent calls upon the people of Italy to "throw out both Hitler and Mussolini" and to "proclaim their devotion" to such champions of freedom as Garibaldi.

The plea was made by Governor Charles Poletti of New York last night in a speech he recorded in Italian for the Office of War Information. It was broadcast to England to be transmitted by short wave to Italy.

Speaking as "one whose parents were both born in Italy" and adding "it is my honor to be the first governor of Italian racial extraction in any state in the United States," the governor declared:

"We Americans of Italian origin, as Americans, appeal to the people of Italy to rise and proclaim their devotion to the ideals of leaders like Garibaldi, Cavour, Mazzini and Italy's other champions of freedom. We expect that at the strategic moment the Italian people will throw off both Hitler and Mussolini."

After recalling his student days in Italy, the governor told how American freedom had given him and others of Italian parentage "the opportunity of achieving high public office." He said "all of us . . . are making our full contribution to the victory of democratic freedom."

The Italian people must learn, he added, "their liberation can come only through victory of the United Nations."

In another talk last night, Poletti told New Yorkers via radio they are doing a "magnificent job" in making "full contribution to the success of the war."

He commended industry, labor and agriculture for working at "top speed." He said industrialists have abandoned discriminations against certain racial and religious groups. Labor likewise has gone "all out," the governor said, citing longer working hours and labor's acceptance of suspension of provisions of the labor law when necessary to boost production.

Poletti praised farmers for producing more, despite "colossal difficulties." Farm women particularly, he said, "have made great sacrifices."

Increased demand from the outside world for lily bulbs brought prosperity to growers in Bermuda in the last year.

Berkley Is Named Executive Director

New York City, Dec. 28—As chairman of the State War Council's Committee on Discrimination in Employment, Industrial Commissioner Frieda S. Miller today announced the promotion of Charles C. Berkley, Negro field representative of the Committee to the position of Executive Director, to replace Andrew C. Doyle who had served as director during a year's leave of absence from the State Mediation Board. Mr. Doyle, at the urgent request of Arthur S. Meyer, chairman of the board, has returned to his job as Supervising Labor Mediator in Albany.

"The state owes a great debt to Mr. Doyle whose mediation experience and sound judgment enabled him to pioneer in the development—for the first time in the United States—of methods of securing compliance with our anti-discrimination statutes by appeal and persuasion, with force as a last resort," Commissioner Miller said.

Mr. Berkley who has served as one of the Committee's five field representatives under Mr. Doyle has worked on special cases involving integration of minority groups in many of the largest war plants in New York city where labor surpluses created difficult problems of discrimination, the Commissioner said. Previous to his present position, Mr. Berkley was Industrial Secretary of the Brooklyn Urban League in which capacity he organized a coordinated program looking toward the training and placement of Negroes in war industries, worked with employers, labor unions and public groups in a successful effort to open employment opportunities for his race.

"Mr. Berkley brings an unusual measure of organizing ability to a new and difficult field where such ability is a prime requisite. I am proud of being able thus to recognize a member of the colored race on the basis of outstanding qualification, the same basis on which we urge such recognition in industry," Miss Miller declared.

"All loyal workers, be they aliens, Jews or Negroes, must now be allowed to work for victory, not only to win the war but because that's what we are fighting for. Discrimination against any minority jeopardizes all," said Mr. Berkley in a statement accepting appointment as director.

Commissioner Miller also announced the resignation of Lucille J. Buchanan, assistant executive director of the committee, to take effect December 31. Miss Buchanan is accepting a position in Washington.

Mr. Berkley has been active in improving employment opportunities for the colored race in Illinois, Pennsylvania and New Jersey as well as in New York city. In addition to his industrial experience he has engaged in life insurance. He is also author and journalist and as an avocation a lyric song writer. Educated at the University of Redlands in California, he holds a master's degree from the University of Pittsburgh in sociology and economics. He is married and lives in Brooklyn with his wife and two daughters.

January Quota Is 75 Men; 5 Colored

Next Contingent Will Go to Albany January 5

Kingston's draft board has been notified to send a quota of 75 men, five of them colored, to an army induction center in Albany for physical examinations on Tuesday, January 5.

This is the first quota of the new year, and it is expected that later in the month another quota, equally large, will be sent to an induction center.

Those who pass the physical tests in Albany next month will be immediately inducted into the U. S. Army, and granted a week's furlough before being sent to an army training camp.

Post-War Radio Will Perform Big Variety of Things

New York, Dec. 28 (AP)—Radio, after the war, will perform such chores as sewing, de-activating vegetables, hardening metals and gluing things together, says David Sarnoff, Radio Corporation of America president—but that's not half of it.

"The useful services of radio," Sarnoff said yesterday in year-end review, "will be broadened far beyond the communication field, into such realms as the R.C.A. electron microscope, radio-frequency heating; supersonics and no end of applications made possible by the development of new radio tubes, especially those designed to send and receive micro waves—tiny waves measured in centimeters."

Sarnoff said that many of radio's scientific achievements of 1942 remained military secrets, but would make Americans proud when revealed.

He asserted that the application of "radio frequency heating to speed industrial processes and at the same time increase their efficiency is rapidly coming to the fore."

"Radio waves," he said, "may now be used to heat, dry, glue, stitch, annel, weld, rivet and even to de-active enzymes. This new field is known as thermal radio. It can laminate an airplane propeller in minutes, compared to hours required by ordinary heat and pressure methods."

"Radio high-frequency 'furnaces' are a post-war prospect. In them, railroad ties will be seasoned quickly, and 'cakes' of textiles dried uniformly.

"Even rubber may be radio-cemented to wood or plastic; cloth stitched and steamed by radio heat; metals hardened; plywood glued; and fresh vegetables de-activated without loss of flavor or color.

"The possibilities in this new thermic realm of radio are unlimited, as indicated by remarkable advances in R.C.A. laboratories during the year.

Because of their low cost, beans, which never were popular in Turkey, have become a principal food in that country.

Milk Sales Increase

New York, Dec. 23—Daily average sale of fluid milk during November increased 19 per cent over the same period a year ago, according to reports from leading distributors in 152 U. S. markets to the Milk Industry Foundation. In November daily average sales totaled 8,795,941 quarts compared with 7,391,602 quarts in November 1941. Milk company payrolls in November showed a decrease of 6.26 per cent and employment a decrease of 2.66 per cent compared with November 1941.

Church Finances

Lexington, Tenn. (AP) — "The Lord's Storehouse" and "God's Acres" have solved the financial problems of the Rock Hill Baptist Church, located in a small farming community near here. The church inaugurated the "God's Acres" plan two years ago, and now is flourishing financially. The plan is this: A member pledges the monetary value of a part of a crop or livestock. When the crop or animal is sold, it is turned over to the church treasurer. So the acre pledged is called "God's Acre." This year, anticipating higher prices, the members chipped in and erected a storehouse—"The Lord's Storehouse." There they stored the yields from various God's Acres," and took advantage of the best selling price.

Solution Of Saturday's Puzzle

OFFICE CAT

TRADE MARK REG.

By Junius

Doctor—Your master is decidedly better, but very irritable. He must be humored.

Butler—He expressed a desire to wring my neck, sir.

Doctor—Well—er—humor him.

In a certain school in New York there was a teacher, an energetic advocate of "Safety First", who opened her class each morning by rising and asking:

Teacher—Children, what would you do if fire was to break out in this building?

Children (in chorus)—We would rise in our places, step into the aisle and march quietly out of the building.

One morning when the children arrived at school they found themselves honored by the presence of Dr. Henry van Dyke. The teacher stepped before the class and, instead of the usual fire drill question, said:

Teacher—Children, what would you say if I were to tell you that Dr. Henry van Dyke is to speak to you this morning?

Children (instantly in chorus) —We would rise in our places, step into the aisle and march quietly out of the building.

Snow

The snow had fallen in darkness
through all of the live-long night,
And the land in silent grandeur
was robed in a mantle of white.
Then the sun in its regal splendor, came forth from the East at morn,
To bathe the earth in glory, till
it seemed like a world reborn.
O'er trees, and hedges, and housetops, lay the snow in its crystal flakes;
Like frames on the fairest of pictures, it bordered the rivers and lakes.
Then pure as the whitest of lilies
it covered the land from sight,
And buried the scars of winter
till the old world looked, just right.

Another Institution Passes

Scranton, Pa.—Five local businessmen who have been lunching together in an office for years will have to bring their own coffee—or do without.

The quintet applied to the O.P.A. for classification as institutional users of coffee, which would have permitted them to purchase beans for their luncheon beverage without affecting their individual rations.

The O.P.A. said no.

Oklahoma City—Capt. Charles Nissen, with the army in the South Pacific, may just stay there after the war's over.

He's swapped a native chief out of an island—with a package of cigarettes.

"That chief thought of everything," he wrote the folks. "I saw three native girls sunning themselves on the beach. There are cocoanut groves and crystal blue lagoons. It's one mile wide and two miles long."

The cigarettes, Nissen said, cost 11 cents.

No Kidding!

Gallup, N. M.—Place a big rooster in a burlap bag and put it under the hood at night.

This procedure, ranchers told a neighboring Indian, would keep the frost off the motor and make the car easy to start in the morning. Well, it didn't, because there weren't any spark plug wires, or any fan belt by the time morning rolled around.

The Indian, they explained, didn't have a rooster. He substituted a goat.

Only Two Quarts?

Boise, Idaho—The state's liquor supply lasted through the Christmas holidays but Fred Davis, supervisor of the state dispensary, doesn't know about New Year's.

Davis said present stocks might be depleted by January 1 unless reinforcements arrive. He blamed the transportation situation.

YoungMarineHero Visits New Paltz

Friend of Methodist Pastor Tells Dramatic Story

Elbert G. Brush, a young marine direct from Guadalcanal and 11 days and nights in the South Pacific, was a guest at the New Paltz Methodist parsonage, Sunday, December 20. He is an old friend of the pastor, the Rev. David Wesley Soper, and a former member of the church. He is related to the Paradies family of Tillson and to Mrs. Morgan Coutant of New Paltz. He is now living in White Plains.

Mr. Soper has described his young friend's Guadalcanal experiences in his weekly column and on the anniversary of Pearl Harbor, directed his remarks to the young marine's statement of personal Christian faith, illustrating his address with the youth's recent story.

A cross and a new testament, given him by Mr. Soper, were the only possessions Mr. Brush was able to save after harrowing experiences in the South Pacific. The striking quality of Mr. Brush's "sense of Divine presence" led Mr. Soper to tell the young man's story in printed form and he gave this small booklet to many friends in place of the usual Christmas card.

WOR has dramatized the marine's amazing story each Sunday evening in a coast to coast broadcast emanating from San Diego, Calif., for three weeks. Life magazine will carry a full account of the narrative with pictures and drawings.

Mr. Brush was with the first leathernecks to storm the Solomons August 7. Later in a raiding party of 45 men, he broke through Jap lines, returning with only 22 men. Wounded and mildly shell-shocked, he was taken out of Guadalcanal with 19 other wounded men by plane. At the takeoff, the radio compass was demolished by Japanese shrapnel. After flying 12 hours, the plane was forced down in the open sea, landing on a reef without supplies. The men were reduced to a diet of raw fish. Mr. Brush and a party of four left the plane in a makeshift raft to bring help, but the raft was driven back to the plane wing after two days of fruitless search.

Finally the men were rescued by planes and a destroyer and brought to San Diego.

The others had given up all hope of rescue, but Mr. Brush read the 23rd psalm to them and told them they would be saved. At the sound of the rescue plane's motors, everyone knelt down and offered up the Lord's prayer.

As he left the New Paltz Church, Mr. Brush said "This is the finest Christmas I have ever known."

413 Tragic Deaths Occur in Nation

Christmas Week-End Finds Highway Deaths Are Well in Lead

(By The Associated Press)

At least 413 persons met death by violence in the United States during the long holiday week-end, as the nation observed its second Christmas of the war.

Wartime duties and restrictions sharply reduced motor travel, yet highway accidents slowly mounted until no fewer than 255 lives were lost in the four-day period beginning Christmas Eve and ending early today.

The traffic death rate was far under last year, however, when 334 such deaths had been reported by dawn on December 26.

Mishaps in homes, fires, shootings and other miscellaneous causes brought death this year to 158 persons.

Highest toll was reported in California where 55 persons were killed, 40 of them in traffic accidents. Next was Illinois, with 37.

Only New Hampshire, North Dakota, South Dakota, Vermont, Wyoming and the District of Columbia reported no holiday deaths of violence.

New York had 17 traffic and 11 miscellaneous deaths; Connecticut 3 traffic and 15 miscellaneous deaths.

Newspapers Stay Wrongdoers' Foe

Massachusetts May Fix Uncertain Libel Laws

Boston, Dec. 28 (AP)—Asserting that newspapers still remain the best protection that the public has against wrongdoers, the Massachusetts Judicial Council declares that they "should not be hampered by the uncertainty that now exists as to the (libel) laws."

At the request of the State Legislature, the council made a study of several bills to amend libel laws and the law of libel in general, along with other statutes. The council made its report yesterday.

"Whatever criticism may be made, legitimately, of the press, it still remains the best protection the public has against wrongdoers," the council said, "and the fearless exposure of evil by the press should not be hampered by the uncertainty which now exists as to the laws."

The council recommended a statute, based on Maine law, to allow evidence, in mitigation of damages, that a plaintiff already has brought other libel actions for substantially the same libel. It would tend to eliminate so-called "multiple or chain" libel suits.

The council also suggested enactment of a measure that would say "the publication of defamatory matter in pleadings of civil proceedings shall not be privileged until after the opening of the public trial of a case on the merits." This recommendation was made after the group had discussed the laws of Massachusetts, New York and other states.

Renewing a recommendation of two years ago, the council called for enactment of legislation that would say:

"Whoever, by himself or his agent, makes a statement by radio broadcast which if published in writing would be a libel, shall be deemed to have made and published a libel, and shall be civilly and criminally responsible therefor according to the same provision of law, practice and procedure as in other proceedings for libel."

The council added, however, that such a provision would not subject the broadcasting company to liability for statements of which it had no advance knowledge and no opportunity to prevent.

Additional Gas and Rubber for Salesmen

After 11 months of unceasing work, declares the United Commercial Travelers, they have won a notable fight in behalf of business men in gaining approval of the O.P.A. for additional gas and rubber for salesmen.

The order was made with the expressed approval of W. M. Jeffers, rubber administrator, who held that if the small business man is to be kept alive, the salesmen must be allowed to continue to visit him.

With the splendid support and the assistance of the Virginia Division of T.P.A. and the Virginia Travelers Association, the order was able to win approval of a formula prepared by U.C.T. which assures salesmen twice as much gas and adequate provision for rubber for the next year.

The effort was started on January 2 and after repeated interviews and written arguments the first break was made when Mr. Jeffers agreed that salesmen were necessary to the business of the nation. His directive to the O.P.A. said the U.C.T. request was "Not too unreasonable" and that plans should be drafted by O.P.A. to meet the requests.

December 4 was the big day when O.P.A. finally agreed to make the change which allows salesmen of essential food, shelter, clothing, fuel and medical supplies, a maximum of 8,600 miles per year.

This amount is exclusive of the A or basic mileage which is allowed to every car owner and provides salesmen with approximately 10,000 miles per year.

It is the belief of officers of U.C.T. that this mileage will carry all salesmen safely through the year. Rubber allowances also go with the gas and salesmen are thus given consideration as a class and are recognized by the government as necessary workers in national defense.

Library to Receive Volume From Mrs. Philip Elting

The Kingston Library will be presented with a de luxe edition of the Encyclopedia of American Biography for 1941 by Mrs. Philip Elting of Maiden Lane. The volume contains a picture and biographical sketch of her husband, the late Honorable Philip Elting.

Mr. Elting's interest in public affairs and his influence as a leader are emphasized in the reading. In spite of this influence the biograph states that he accepted few offices himself although many were open to him. Only twice did he accept public positions. In 1908 he was appointed shipping commissioner by President Theodore Roosevelt and in 1923 President Harding appointed him Collector of the Customs for the Port of New York. This position he held under the administrations of President Coolidge and President Hoover.

Mr. Elting died July 20, 1941, as the biography states "after a long and active career which brought him honor as well as success and such stature that he ranked among the most influential figures in the life of the state for some four decades."

Kingston's Firemen Are Called Out Five Times

Kingston's fire department was called out five times on Saturday afternoon and Sunday for minor fires in the city, while one of the calls was to remove a cat from a tree in front of 420 Hasbrouck avenue.

The first call was at 6:30 o'clock at 714 Broadway where a range oil heater was out of adjustment in the apartment of Nathan Weinrauch.

At 9:07 o'clock Saturday night the firemen were called for a fire in a tree in the rear of 17 Ulster street.

Sunday morning at 9:12 o'clock steam pouring from a vent pipe at 13 Prince street, caused the fire department to be called.

That afternoon at 5:29 o'clock the fire department was called to 67 Hasbrouck avenue where a defective chimney had set fire to the floor timbers on the first floor in the building owned by Mrs. Sarah Parnett.

O.P.A. Must Raise Ceiling Price of Flour, Says Reed

Washington, Dec. 28 (AP)—Senator Reed (R.-Kas.) predicted today that the Office of Price Administration soon would find it necessary to increase the ceiling price on flour to avert a threatened bread shortage.

The Kansas senator declared that because of a price squeeze, 90 per cent of the nation's flour mills had quit taking orders three or four weeks ago. He pointed out that wheat was selling at $1.22 a bushel in Kansas City when price ceilings were set on flour, but now brings about $1.31.

"Manifestly," Reed said, "a miller cannot pay $1.31 for wheat and sell his flour on the basis of $1.22 wheat.

"A flour shortage, which means a bread shortage, impends unless this error of judgment on the part of O. P. A. corrected."

Marine Bullets End Fracas Among WhitesandNegroes

Vallejo, Calif., Dec. 28 (AP)—Bullets from a U. S. Marine Corps military patrolman's Tommy-gun brought an end last night to a week-end of rioting among white and Negro service men in the Vallejo waterfront amusement district.

City police said 400 service men milled around in last night's disorders, and half that number clashed in street and barroom fights Saturday night.

Leo Arthur Shaw, 18, wounded in the left arm, and George Carpenter, 26, shot in the left leg, were the only casualties of the Marine patrol's shooting.

Both are Negro sailors.

The previous night four white sailors were treated for slight wounds after fights with Negroes.

The trouble began last night after about 200 Negro sailors gathered at a night club and advanced into the street, police said, planning to "clean up" the town.

A half-block from the night club, a Marine patrol ordered the Negroes to halt. When they failed to do so, police declared, a Marine fired seven slugs from his Tommy-gun. Two Negroes were hit. A Marine non-commissioned officer fired three pistol shots over the Negroes' heads.

The Negro sailors halted, and waited while shore patrolmen and city police rounded up all other service men in the area and ordered them to quarters. The Negro sailors, thoroughly sobered by standing an hour or more in the cold, then were marched away.

Lives Are Saved By Train Fireman

Closes Live Steam Valve Before Trains Collide

Dixon, Ill., Dec. 28 (AP)—Investigators credited today the quick thinking of a fireman with preventing heavier toll in the wreck of two Chicago and Northwestern Railroad trains here in which two persons died and 30 others were injured.

The line's mail train, westbound from Chicago, plowed into the rear of the trans-continental passenger train, the San Francisco Challenger, at the Dixon station shortly before midnight Saturday. The Challenger was carrying 489 passengers, many of them soldiers and sailors returning to their stations after Christmas furloughs.

Harry R. Beisel, 32, of Melrose Park, fireman on the mail train, succeeded in closing off the live steam valve just before being thrown clear of the wreckage and thus prevented a possibly heavier toll of injuries from scalding.

The impact of the crash derailed three of the mail train cars and all 16 cars of the Challenger, which also was westbound from Chicago and had made a scheduled stop shortly before the wreck. The locomotive tender of the mail train left the tracks, rolling for about 50 feet before it crashed into the baggage room of the Dixon depot.

Tojo Tells Japs Real War Is in Beginning Stage

New York, Dec. 28 (AP)—A grim warning that the United Nations are planning important counter-strokes and that "the real war" is only starting was given the Japanese people over the week-end by their premier and war minister, Gen. Hideki Tojo, but the warning was sugared somewhat by flamboyant Japanese claims that the American, British and Netherlands navies have so far lost 38 per cent of their ships.

In an address to the Diet, broadcast by the Japanese and German radios, Tojo pointed out tough military problems in the Solomons, the Aleutians, India, and China, and declared Japan was busy day and night "providing against air raids and preparing for future war developments."

He gave the account as an apparent warning that no early victory could be expected, but declared Japan had been strengthened by receiving from conquered areas in the South Pacific 1,800,000 tons of raw materials, or 70 per cent more than Nippon's needs for a whole year.

Naval Minister Admiral Shigetaro Shimada advanced the claims of heavy allied naval losses—obviously greatly exaggerated—asserting 1,100,000 tons of allied warships have been sunk since the war began. He listed 11 battleships, 11 aircraft carriers, 46 cruisers, 48 destroyers, 93 submarines, and 54 other warships in this total, claimed 164 allied warcraft—including nine battleships and four carriers—had been damaged, and 424 allied merchant ships sunk and 503 captured.

And he added, in this account highly-colored for home-front consumption, that Japanese planes had destroyed 3,853 allied planes, while losing only 568.

Tojo hinted that trouble might break out anytime with Russia, now bound by a non-aggression treaty, but said Japan was ready.

"The defenses of our frontier in the north of Manchukuo," he said, "have been further strengthened in view of the continually changing world situation, so that the undisturbed progress of the eastern Asiatic war is guaranteed."

Rain Freezes and Coats City Streets; Taxis Suspend

Rain, that froze as fast as it fell, covered the streets and sidewalks of Kingston with a glare of ice Sunday night and early this morning, and rain continued to fall throughout the early hours of today. The storm created many traffic hazards, but up until 10 o'clock this morning no accidents in which persons were injured had been reported to the police department.

The glare of ice formed the worst traffic hazard since the storm of last Tuesday, when frozen rain left the streets and sidewalks in dangerous condition.

Early Sunday morning the thermometer at the city hall recorded a low of 13 degrees above zero, and as the morning advanced it gradually grew much warmer and during the afternoon and evening the mercury hovered between 33 and 34 degrees above zero.

The rainstorm broke over the city late Sunday night and continued throughout the night and early today. So dangerous did the streets become owing to the icy glare that bus and taxi service was interrupted.

The Board of Public Works had the sanding crews out as soon as the streets were slippery and the crews worked all night sanding the hills and intersections.

Writer Attributes Dearth Of Songs to Transportation

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 28 (AP)—Sigmund Romberg knows why World War Two has inspired no top marching songs such as "Over There"—it's because troops don't march any more.

Swift transport of soldiers by plane, parachute and truck is standing in the way of a new version of "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," the prolific composer of songs and musical comedies declares.

Here with a 45-piece orchestra on a concert tour, Romberg pointed out in an interview yesterday that good war songs are marching songs and said "armies aren't marching these days. One time a good rousing march was just the thing for keeping armies marching and spirits up."

Music is a necessity, and nothing is better for morale, Romberg asserted. He added the war won't injure the song writing business, although it will, of course, turn some of the current themes away from moonlight in June to bristling subjects.

Roosevelt's Son Is Given Medal

President's Son, Elliott, Is Decorated for Work in Photography

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Dec. 28 (AP)—Lieut. Col. Elliott Roosevelt, who commands a 12th force photographic unit, has been awarded the distinguished flying cross for "heroism and extraordinary achievement" in flights "made voluntarily with complete disregard for his personal safety."

The medal was pinned on the president's son yesterday by Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle, American airforce commander on the Tunisian front.

The citation said Roosevelt, as a member of parties surveying important ferry routes, "participated in long and dangerous flights over Arctic, Sub-Arctic and tropical regions, many of them being over water and uninhabited areas.

"On one expedition, Lieut. Col. Roosevelt was the only member who made every operational flight. As a result of his experience and energy he has been of great assistance in establishing ferry routes."

"As commanding officer of the photographic group assigned to the American forces in North Africa, Lieut. Col. Roosevelt personally participated in many flights deep into hostile and heavily-defended areas, acting as observer, navigator, photographer and radio operator."

The group's efficiency, the citation added, "is due in a large degree to the ability, leadership and inspiration of Lieut. Col. Roosevelt. His courage and skill reflect credit both on himself and on the military service."

Children Are Hurt In Auto Accident

None Seriously Injured but Cars Are Damaged

Three children were injured, although not seriously, in a collision between two automobiles Sunday noon on the Lapla road. Cars driven by James Hasenflue, 19, and Maravis Bryant, 47, both residents of the Lomontville section, were involved.

Nancy Bryant, 7, and her brother, Murdock, 10, riding in the Bryant car, were injured. Nancy had a bruised face and chin and lost several teeth; Murdock was cut and bruised about the forehead. Ivan Terwilliger, 15, riding in the other car, had recently recovered from an accident and was taken to the Kingston Hospital, but it was found that he had escaped with a bruised knee.

Deputy Sheriff Jacob DeWitt, who investigated, found that Hasenflue, driving toward Kingston, put on his brakes when he saw the Bryant car approaching near the top of a grade, but the car skidded on the icy roadway. Both cars were badly damaged in front, the Bryant car getting the worst of the collision.

Divorce Is Granted

An interlocutory decree of divorce has been granted Evelyn Allerton against her husband, Clinton Allerton of Catskill, by Justice Francis Bergan following trial of the action last August at Albany. Maurice A. Baker appeared for the plaintiff. Married in New York city on July 3, 1932, the plaintiff alleged acts in the town of Saugerties on May 26, 1942, upon which to base her complaint. The decree is interlocutory and provides that the custody of four minor children be given the plaintiff. The plaintiff may re-marry but it shall be unlawful for the defendant to again marry during the lifetime of the plaintiff.

F.B.I. Continues Its Search in Two Old Kidnapings

Washington, Dec. 28 (AP)—The F.B.I. is continuing its unrelenting hunt for the swarthy kidnaper who seized 10-year-old Charles Fletcher Mattson six years ago as he played with Christmas toys and then murdered the child while negotiating for a ransom.

On the sixth anniversary of the crime, Director J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation declared, "the Mattson case must and will be solved."

The abduction of the Tacoma, Wash., boy is one of two unsolved kidnapings since enactment of the "Lindbergh Law" in 1932 which made kidnaping a federal offense. The other is the kidnap-killing of 12-year-old Peter David Levine of New Rochelle, N. Y., February 24, 1938.

Hoover said that both cases still are active, with no thought of closing them until the criminals are caught, despite the heavy wartime demands on the F.B.I.

The Mattson boy was seized at Tacoma while he played with his brother and sister and a friend of the family December 27, 1936. His beaten body was found in the snow by a rabbit hunter near Everett, Wash., January 11.

The Levine boy disappeared between school and home. No one witnessed the crime. More than two months later the boy's wire-trussed body was washed ashore not far from his home.

The F.B.I. score in kidnapings is 233 solved out of 235 reported. It boasts that not a kidnap gang is operating. Since the bureau was given jurisdiction in such cases, 458 persons have been convicted, of whom 12 received the death penalty and 44 got life imprisonment.

In addition, nine kidnapers committed suicide, eight were killed by law officers, seven were killed by their own gangs and two were lynched.

At the moment, however, two convicted kidnapers under 99-year prison sentences are being hunted — Roger, The Terrible Touhy and his lieutenant, Basil (The Owl) Banghart, rated by F. B. I. as more dangerous than the one-time gang leader. They escaped with five other long-term convicts from the Stateville Penitentiary near Joliet, Ill., October 9. Toughy and Banghart abducted John (Jake the Barber) Factor near Chicago, July 1, 1933.

A CORD OF WOOD

In the early days in this country when wood was the almost universal fuel, a cord of wood was eight feet long, four feet wide and four feet high, containing 128 cubic feet. Of late years the cord often has been sold as eight feet long, four feet high, but only as wide as the width of the sticks. It might be fourteen inches wide, or twenty-four, according to the width of the fireplace. Obviously, the man with the big fireplace usually got the most for his money.

The Canadian Wartime Prices and Trade Board has issued a statement which states a maximum roadside price. It assumes that when the 48-inch length is bought it should cost less in proportion, "because of less handling, less waste and considerably less cutting and labor," but anything less than the 48-inch length is a "short cord" and its price is to be regulated accordingly.

So, apparently, a cord is still a cord in the land of our northern neighbors. People who use wood all the time are familiar with proper prices and regulations in their own communities. But nowadays more fireplaces than for a long time are being used for real heat instead of mere pleasant adjuncts to living-rooms, and buyers of wood have had some unpleasant surprises. Perhaps, like the Canadians, they had better stand their ground and get a decision from their local O.P.A. before paying for a full cord and getting only a short one.

EXPLAINING A CRIMINAL

From any rational viewpoint Adolf Hitler seems insane. But it is the insanity of a clever and daring madman with not only an immense ambition but with a grudge gnawing at his soul. With his ambition he aims to dominate the world, and with his grudge he aims to exterminate the Jews. In both aims he has gone far, and must be stopped before the slaughter goes much farther.

He is diabolically clever in his procedure. Dorothy Thompson explains it plausibly in this way: "His object is to terrorize the Allies into negotiating a peace, playing on their humane feelings, and to create such a hatred of Germany in the world that the German people will fear to revolt against him, lest they all perish in the revenge that will follow."

In short, if she is right, the idea is to incriminate the German nation so deeply that the Germans will not dare to abandon him. It is a familiar strategy of criminals, to keep their dupes loyal. How far it has succeeded is hard to say. Perhaps far enough, at least, to prolong Hitler's insane war beyond its natural duration, and to make all Germans feared and hated for at least a generation to come.

BAD SPELLS

President Roosevelt acknowledges that he misspelt "generalissimo." This was in a longhand letter to the Chinese leader, Chiang Kai-shek. The President put in a second "I", which fortunately was caught by some eagle-eye before the letter went out.

Probably Mr. Roosevelt never took part in a spelling match. This old-time institution combined education and fun. Occasionally nowadays it has been revived for adults. This gives a chance to show off knowledge about the spelling of seldom used words like "sysygy" and "farinaceous." Only too often, however, the eager contestant succumbs not to such terrors, but to everyday words like "receive."

Most people don't spell quite so well as they think they do. The President, in joining their ranks, shows that he too is human.

It's good news that dusky old Haille Selassie, Emperor of Ethiopia, has joined our side. There's a fellow who never gives up.

It really isn't fair that some American soldiers, who were seasick all the way to Africa, now have to ride camels.

PAINS

During the last war we had in our hospital three cases of painful shoulder that were found to be due to an "extra" curvical (in neck) rib pressed on the large nerve whose branches supplied shoulder, neck, arm and hand. By removal of this extra rib, these patients obtained relief from their pain. Where the extra rib could not be felt or the X-rays failed to show this extra rib, the pain was believed to be due to pressure from some other cause. It is interesting, therefore, to know that even if the extra rib is not present, hard fibrous tissue, in the same situation in the body as where the extra rib is found, may be pressing on the large nerve and causing the pain in shoulder, neck, arm, and hand.

In Surgery Review, Buenos Aires, Dr. L. Rogers states that this fibrous tissue may be an "extension" from the spinal bone or the hard portion of the scalenus muscle in this region.

What are the symptoms present when an extra rib or this fibrous tissue is pressing on this large nerve?

The symptoms at first come and go, but later there is constant pain in the shoulder which extends into the neck and down the arm, with numbness and tingling in forearm and fingers.

To distinguish this ailment from other conditions or injuries in the shoulder such as a bag of water under shoulder cap or a torn muscle about the shoulder, Dr. Rogers points out that the pain and other symptoms in pressure by curvical rib or fibrous tissue are relieved when the arm is placed in a splint which holds the arm out at the side in line with the shoulder. The fact that this position of the arm gives relief justifies the surgeon in separating to some extent the muscles pressing on the nerve and cutting away the hard fibrous tissue. The first rib is cut away to make more room for the nerve and muscles. Giving the nerve more room so that no muscle, fibrous, or bony tissue will press against it is the object of the operation.

I spoke before of this "cervical rib and scalenus muscle" group of symptoms some months ago, pointing out that this extra rib was the cause. It is interesting to know that fibrous tissue in the same place as the extra rib can cause these same symptoms and that these symptoms can be relieved by operation.

Science

By H. W. BLAKESLEE

An ace-in-the-hole discovery of 1942 was a new form of the synthetic rubber neoprene, which makes tires as good as natural rubber without requiring any natural rubber to be added. This is the first time in all rubber history such a synthetic has appeared.

A synthetic rubber for raincoats was made from the safety glass plastic, promising to save about 60,000 tons of natural rubber annually.

Ragweed and peanut oils were developed to replace shortages. Tapioca was made from midwestern sorghum. Glass fiber boards substituted for cork. Lily of the valley leaves became a source of digitalis. Menthol was produced from coal tars for another shortage. Vanadium was found in phosphate rock and alcohol made by solvents instead of by distillation. Steel was hardened with boron, new cutting and quenching oils were found, radio waves improved tin plating, sponge iron was developed to replace scrap for steel-making.

A new atomic power instrument, the betatron, was built to produce 100,000,000 volt electrons and X-rays. Wool was moth-proofed.

A. L. Herrera, Mexico City biologist, reported that mixtures of formaldehyde, ammonia, sulfur and cyanogen produced 6,000 microscopic forms which showed signs of being alive, a possible clue to the origin of life.

Nutrition, notably egg white and vitamins, gave promising results in cancer. Stilbestrol, the female sex hormone, relieved male prostatic cancer. Artificial fever and X-rays combined aided cancer.

There were explosive anesthetic from the U. S. Bureau of Mines, dicoumarin to prevent blood clots, a fibrinogen spray to stop surface bleeding, a locator for bits of metal in living tissues, plastic bandages for wounds, sulfadiazine for burns, a refrigeration ambulance for men with leg and arm wounds, albumin to replace plasma for transfusion, "sulfamerazine" a new sulfa drug—and a new dye to show whether a cold is allergic.

B-1 was found useful for some types of mental disorder, C for hay fever and C and B-1 for hot weather, A for high blood pressure, K for aid in inhibiting tooth decay.

Astronomical studies indicated that clouds of dust and gas in interstellar space are condensing into stars.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

One of the most enjoyable experiences in my life—if the reader will forgive the personal note—is the time I attended the 13th annual reunion and dinner of the Ulster County Society in New York City. The dinner and reunion was held in the world famous Waldrof-Astoria Hotel in New York city, on January 12, 1929, and was the last dinner the society ever held in the hotel as the building was demolished that summer.

It was a memorable experience for me as it was the first time I had ever eaten in the old hotel or spent the night under its roof. If I recall correctly my room that night cost $7, and that did not include the meals.

The society began gathering long before the dinner was served in the historic "Peacock Walk" on the ground floor of the hotel. This "Peacock Walk" was famous as though it had walked many of the leading personalties of the world who had been guests or visitors at the hotel in the years it had operated.

I also recall that the music for the reunion was conducted by Harry Armstrong, the man who composed that world famous song " Sweet Adeline" which is still hummed and sung, especially by the older readers of this column.

Among those from Kingston who I recall offhand at the reunion were John M. Cashin, Arthur A. Davis, John W. Eckert, Senator Arthur H. Wicks, Dr. Charles D. Carter, Frank W. Thompson, Roger Loughran.

Also, M. H. Herzog, Dr. A. L. Hill, Chris. K. Loughran, C. Ray Everett, Gerard Betz, Harry Lazarus, Judge Harry E. Schirick, Judge John T. Loughran, George Burgevin, M. Edgar Powley, Charles R. O'Connor, Philip Elting, Mayor Palmer Canfield, Morris Samter and John Weber.

Undoubtedly there were many others whom I have omitted though not intentionally.

The dinner that night was served on the roof of the old hotel, and Oscar Tschirky, better known to the world as Oscar of the Waldorf was also present, and I believe it was he who arranged the menu that was served that evening.

Among the speakers that evening were John Cashin and Philip Elting. Plans were also made for a memorial to the late Joe Drake, the organizer and founder of the society.

Older readers will recall Joe Drake, who was long active in local Democratic politics, and for many years was a reporter for the Kingston Leader in the years at the turn of the century.

In fact the reporters whom I recall most easily are: Joe Drake, Harold "Sen" Linson, Ed Merritt, Wally Becker, and Jesse Decker, who were all active in the days when I was a cub reporter. Of that group the only one still living is Ed. Merritt.

SOCKS GLOBE TROTTERS

An Australia soldier is wearing woolen socks knitted by Mrs. M. Stewart of Sydney in the last war. They went to France, then to Gallipoli, where they were issued to the soldier. He did not see a note Mrs. Stewart put in one sock because he did not wear the pair until 25 years later. The soldier, now a lieutenant, found the note containing this rhyme: "Dear Tom or Dick or Jim or Jack, For whom these knitted socks were packed, We work and knit and pray for you, Australian lad so brave and true."

Egypt is reported to be accumulating large stocks of cereals in order to maintain the basic price of flour at its present level for a long time.

Events Of Record News Year Burst '10 Best Story' Limits

By CHARLES HONCE
Associated Press News Editor

The big news as 1942 closes is that the United Nations are on the offensive on virtually all fronts.

In Russia, in Africa, in the Southwest Pacific—in the air, on land and on the sea—the Allies are beginning to crowd the Axis in the first real show of concerted global strength.

A year ago only Russia had taken the offensive at Rostov. Elsewhere the United Nations—few fewer than today's thirty—were suffering a series of tragic and humiliating defeats.

A year—spurred by the vast productiveness of America, the dogged defense of Russia and British block-busting air raids—has seen the tide turn.

In a general sense there was only one big story this year—the war. Almost every happening of moment was tied up directly or indirectly with the main event. Likewise, there were so many stories of an important or dramatic nature that even by telescoping and combining it is impossible to fit them into a formal "ten best" as in other years. A dozen make a very minimum.

Here is the news roll call for 1942—based on the selections of AP editors, over whose desks flow millions of words a week:

A "SECOND FRONT" IS OPENED (Nov. 7)—At the very moment discussion of a second front was at white heat, the greatest amphibious expedition in history, involving 850 ships, a vast American Army accoutered with 700,000 articles of war, was converging on North Africa to make it a fact. This invasion, combined with Britain's smash of Rommel, gives the United Nations a springboard for a European attack. North African aftermaths saw Germany occupy the rest of France and the scuttling of most of the French Navy.

AMERICA TAKES OFFENSIVE IN PACIFIC—When the Navy released the blood-chilling pictures and story of Pearl Harbor, America already was secure in the knowledge that the sneak attack had been avenged, that the Japanese had suffered a series of disastrous defeats climaxed by the destructive Solomon Islands engagement (Nov. 13-15), and that American forces were on the offensive on Guadalcanal and in New Guinea. American victories in the Coral Sea and Midway battles were previous omens of Pacific recovery.

RUSSIA HOLDS AND COUNTER-ATTACKS—On Sept. 30 Hitler shouted that Stalingrad was a city "which we shall take; you may depend on it." But the Fuehrer was wrong again. The Verdun of World War II held through four terrific months of Nazi assault, and then almost from its battered buildings came an amazing Russian offensive that spread like wildfire along the vast Russian front.

JAPAN CARVES OUT AN EMPIRE—After mouthing about its Greater East Asia Co-Prosperity sphere for years, Japan set out forcibly to win it, and did. In a few short months the Nipponese overran the whole of the South Pacific and were battering at the gates of Australia. High spots in this sweep of conquest were the fall of strategic Singapore, the stubborn American resistance at Bataan, and Gen. MacArthur's escape to Australia.

TWO-PARTY GOVERNMENT STRENGTHENED IN U. S. (Nov. 3)—A favorite theme of some alarmists was that American two-party government was a dead duck. Well, the Republicans not only came back in the off-year elections to greatly strengthen their Congressional power but provided evidence of a coming struggle.

TOKYO IS BOMBED (April 18)—The Germans took F. D. R. strictly at his word when they broadcast that Tokyo had been bombed by American planes based on Shangri-La. And Shangri-La it remains.

AMERICA GOES ON WARTIME ECONOMY—One cup of coffee a day perhaps may epitomize America's conversation to a wartime basis, with every citizen touched by a vast system of price controls, wage stabilization and rationing, accompanied by zoning taxes. An incidental phase was the passing of the W. P. A.

SABOTEURS EXECUTED (Aug. 8)—Six of eight Nazi saboteurs who came ashore from German submarines paid for their daring in the electric chair in Washington, to bring to a close one of the most extraordinary incidents of the war.

EDDIE RICKENBACKER RESCUED (Nov. 14)—"I never lost faith and knew he would be rescued." Those were the words of Mrs. Eddie Rickenbacker when news came of the captain's rescue in the South Pacific. The man who always comes back had done it again.

DIEPPE IS RAIDED (Aug. 19)—The tragically punishing Canadian Commando raid on Dieppe was one of the most spectacular single incidents of the war and a dress rehearsal for the future. America learned that some of her sons had gone along.

BOMBERS RAID EUROPE—The British have a bomb they call a "block-buster." Aided by the ever growing might of America's air power, they have been pulverizing German and Italian cities in devastating raids. But the worst is yet to come. American heavy bombers and fighters, once damned as inadequate, have proven their superiority and are piling up for a concentrated air offensive.

BOSTON'S FIRE TRAGEDY (Nov. 28)—A tiny match flame in the hands of a 16-year-old busboy touched off a fire in a Boston night club that claimed the lives of nearly 500 merrymakers.

Surely one of the most unusual news stories was Premier Stalin's second front letter to Henry Cassidy of the Moscow bureau of The Associated Press. Others: Normandie burns; Carole Lombard killed in plane crash; 18-19-year-olds drafted; Cards win pennant; Churchill visits Roosevelt; Joe Louis quits ring; John Barrymore, George M. Cohan die; Willkie tours United Nations; Japs invade Aleutians.

SWISS DIG MORE COAL

Switzerland resumed production of coal as soon as the present war started and the output now equals the maximum reached in the First World War. As most mines are in the development stage production will continue to increase. The domestic output, it is estimated in Bern, will provide from five to 10 per cent of the country's requirements. Germany has delivered considerably less coal than the promised 200,000 tons a month.

American Military Leaders Are Hampered by British and Our Own Home Front in Distribution of Supplies

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Dec. 28—There's one word which describes aptly not only the status of the war effort of America but also that of the United Nations. That word is "imbalance."

Unless the condition is corrected, all previous estimates as to the length of World War II must be revised and likewise all previous estimates as to the number of men who will be killed or wounded.

The "imbalance" starts right here in Washington and extends to London. A necessary censorship over the facts and figures helps coincidentally, though not intentionally, to hide the tragic absence of a coordinated production to meet a coordinated distribution of weapons and supplies.

The British do not see eye to eye with our own people as to the way supplies shall be distributed in this global war and the military leaders of our nation find themselves handicapped by incompetence of administration on the home front which is tending to impair the civilian economy and create such a painful "imbalance" as to have repercussions on the production side. For while much rationing is necessary, the maldistribution and inefficiency that has accompanied it is inexcusable and indefensible—not the least element of which is the latest cry that "everything is needed for North Africa," a claim which is not confirmed by those who ought to know.

The central trouble, of course, is that the President is a poor administrator and that he makes the same mistakes of zeal and enthusiasm in particular directions that his co-worker, Prime Minister Churchill makes. Both men are temperamentally great and inspiring leaders but they have made some serious errors which in due time will be disclosed and through these will not mar the broad record of leadership, historians will ask why their fellow countrymen were so acquiescent and passive while such blunders were in process of being made.

At the moment the most spectacular blunder lies in the handling of the aircraft and submarine problem. Having neglected air power for years, the administration now has swung to such an extreme as to effect adversely the flow of materials to build the escort ships and the cruisers, destroyers and capital ships required to convoy supplies safely and to break down the submarine menace. And the submarine situation is bad. The sinkings near our own coast have let up somewhat but the losses on the other side of the ocean have mounted considerably. Much of the food, much of the oil, much of the gasoline needed both at home and overseas are at the bottom of the ocean. Not a single official estimate has been released by Britain and America since the war began to indicate the billions of dollars of materials and supplies lost through submarine activity.

"Victory through air power" has been a good slogan that has swept the country but it has come to mean victory through air power alone. Yet air power has more than a year of huge production at the expense of other needed weapons and the enemy has been permitted to increase its undersea warfare. Air power, is might be supposed, could destroy submarine bases but the enemy has been given ample time to build concrete caverns to protect them. Likewise the battleship Tirpitz and the cruisers Gneisenau and Scharnhorst are accessible to air bombers of the United Nations but they still lie undestroyed in Norwegian harbors while a considerable number of our surface naval vessels are tied up maintaining a costly vigil. Air power has failed to lick the submarines and to destroy the small remnant of Germany's nuisance navy. This is largely a British problem and more questions are asked about it and go unanswered than on any other single phase of naval war.

Air power has had its priorities but what has happened to the enormous amount of aircraft produced this past year. Has it been permitted to dribble away a little here and a little there? Air power is fully recognized as an essential part of modern warfare and in its proper place can make land and sea operations many times more effective than they ever have been. But our navy in the Pacific needs more air power or else it needs a coordinated command so as to make better use of it in that area. The Japanese do not have a separate air command but the navy controls all airplanes used in offensive and defensive operations in and around islands and other land bases. Propaganda for a separate air corps has cost America plenty and the existence of a separate air force in Britain independent of naval or military control by the regular armed services has to date failed to achieve the objectives that should by now have been reached.

These views are held not just by laymen observers but by men who ought to know and who can be classed as experts, men who want more and not less air power but who also want a better distribution of weapons and supplies so we can shorten the war.

The field of the arts in America never has been stronger than in 1942, despite Hitler and the demands of military service. There have been fewer new impulses—no new movement and no new topflight talent emerged, perhaps because war and innovation both are the province of youth. But neither artistically nor commercially has the field lost ground.

In painting and sculpture there literally has been nothing new—even some of the winners of the Metropolitan Museum of Art's Artists for Victory show won on canvasses eight years old. And actually the exhibition was assembled to enable the Met to make some purchases, at good fees.

Some important shows of the masters brought to light many canvasses stored in America. The Carnegie International was not held, however, and draining off the stimulus provided by the Federal Art Project was felt acutely in some quarters.

Music proved the hardy perennial. One symphony orchestra was closed out, in Detroit, but another has been born in Baltimore. Commercially the music field has been in better shape than in 1941, and the democratizing influence of the Federal Music Project, seconded by the normal trend toward simplification in war time, has made important contributions.

Musical programs have been happily absent. Italian and German music is being heard in the usual proportions.

The book world has been very sensitive to the demands and opportunities of war. Last May, in solemn conclave, the publishers decided that light reading was out for the duration. Then they went home, and discovered it wasn't true.

The two most widely circulated war experience books, W. L. White's "They Were Expendable" and Robert Trumbull's "The Raft," each had book club help. And in general the war book output has been a cut above the average in former wars.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — The behind-the-scenes maneuvering that resulted in the resignation of Leon Henderson as price administrator may well turn out to be one of the most important political stories of the war effort.

Twenty-four hours before the quick exchange of letters with the President that terminated Henderson's activities, the New Deal warhorse had determined to fight Congress and public opinion to the bitter end. He had cleared the decks for action. He had tossed overboard his corollary price administration job as chief of W.P.B. civilian supply. He had held a series of sessions with those labor leaders, economists and other influential friends who were willing to back his fight. He had held a more-than-hour-long press conference, explaining his views and vigorously defending O.P.A. orders that had been so severely criticized.

Insiders say that he had been (and could have still) the support of the President in any fight he wanted to wage against Congress to save price control.

In addition to that, Senator Prentiss M. Brown had flatly refused to take over the "difficult and thankless task" of becoming Henderson's successor.

What then changed the situation over night?

Henderson IS ill. Even if he had continued, he would have had to sacrifice some time to maintaining his health. The load of work and criticism he has been staggering under would have wrecked the health of stronger men. It brought a return of Henderson's old back ailment and damaged his eyesight seriously. But Henderson is no quitter. It would take more than illness and the threat of a terrific drubbing at the hands of Congress to cause the embattled 47-year-old economist to give up the fight he has waged so hard and so long, to prevent inflation by rationing and price control. What then caused him to step out?

The answer is James F. Byrnes, the economic stabilization chief, "the Second President."

Byrnes knew what was going to happen to Henderson when the new Congress cracked down and as one observer put it, he knew that "that shouldn't be allowed to happen to a dog," much less to one of the New Deal stalwarts, who no matter what his faults, had given eight years of tireless effort to the government.

He knew also that in the bitter fight that was coming the whole anti-inflation program might be left a heap of wreckage. So the little "Second President" shifted into high gear and turned on the heat. He overrode the President's reluctance to sacrifice Henderson. He put Brown "on the spot" where he couldn't say "no" to taking over "the difficult and thankless task." There is a story too that he made a quick deal with the Congress farm bloc which may have far-reaching effects—may even eliminate the fight for a change in the parity law.

The result: There's an end to that get-Henderson movement which had snowballed into an avalanche. And one of the most colorful scrappers in Washington and perhaps one of the most misunderstood men is out of the wartime government—for the time at least. Those who know the President and those who know Henderson are sure that once his health is recovered, he'll be back.

Celluloid Is Used In Rebuilding Face

Faces Damaged in Warfare Will, Apparently, Be as Good as Formerly

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

New Orleans, Dec. 28—A new method of rebuilding faces with celluloid, under living skin, has been developed at Tulane University School of Medicine.

The celluloid faces look as good as new. Apparently the repair parts will last a lifetime. They have been used at Tulane for about two years to fill out facial depressions due to accidents. The technique was developed by Dr. Neal Owens, assistant professor of clinical surgery.

This use of celluloid for faces is new. World War I brought celluloid into use for depressions in skulls damaged in battle. The new technique promises well for remaking faces damaged in the present war.

Dr. J. Hogarth Pringle, English surgeon, is credited with introducing the head celluloid repairs. He has one patient who carried the same celluloid head plate for 40 years. Another received a severe blow on a head celluloid implant plate. The celluloid was dented, but the patient was not seriously injured.

For repairing faces, the celluloid is molded to form the missing contour. The piece is then fixed in place by sewing it to underlying tissues.

Living skin from a nearby part of the body is grafted to cover the plastic. This unites at its edges with the surrounding skin and continue to live. Sometimes the skin that covered the depression in the face can be used as the cover over the celluloid.

Dr. Owens says there are several advantages over the standard methods of repairing facial depressions. These older methods generally used a piece of cartilage to fill the depression. The cartilage comes from a rib.

Getting the cartilage requires a surgical operation on the chest. the cartilage method sometimes requires two or three further operations.

With celluloid, the entire repair is made in a single surgical operation. Dr. Owens said that both hospitalization of the patient and expenses are reduced.

In two years no piece of celluloid has had to be replaced. No unfavorable reactions have been encountered. The celluloid is a perfectly inert foreign body, that is, sets up no chemical reactions in living tissues.

He predicts that the use of celluloid for rebuilding lost contours will stop with head and face. The reason is that other parts of the body have enough fat and tissues to fill depressions.

Big 500-Foot Snow Slide Derails Passenger Train

Portland, Ore., Dec. 28 (AP)—A 500 foot slide of mud and snow hit a Southern Pacific passenger train 180 miles south of here in the Cascade mountains last night, knocking one car down a 30-foot incline, piercing another with a tree and injuring eight people, one seriously.

All of the injured were in the car, a diner, through which the tree trunk crashed.

The car which toppled down the embankment, another diner, was partically buried but all those inside were rescued without mishap. Eight cars in all, including six sleepers, were derailed. The sleepers, however, did not overturn.

GENERALS SALUTE GRAVES IN CASABLANCA

friends may be forgiven for being impatient. They live in a city rationed to death. A doctor's prescription is needed even for an aspirin tablet. They are permitted barely one change of clothes a year, only enough bread, sugar, rice, butter and other essential foods to cover rock-bottom needs. Even wine and cigarettes are rationed, and only two small packs of matches can be purchased a week.

Located at the hub of South Atlantic sea lanes, Dakar once found it easy to obtain the best of everything. Today young men hand the Americans notes penned in English—"Have you a package of American cigarettes?" or "Have you some chewing gum?"

Even Mother Nature has taken a crack at the proud city. Rainfall has been so light that water is obtainable only one hour daily.

Not a single privately-owned automobile is operated on gasoline in Dakar, only government cars. Most cabs are converted to charcoal burners, or jacked-up for the duration. Horse-drawn pony carts, gigs, and barouches ramble the streets and nearly every family has at least one bicycle. The last gasoline shipment came from Indo-China 18 months ago.

Dakar residents used to stumbling around at night in a total blackout now are looking forward to an end to the maddening war of nerves, to the end of the era when they frantically built scores of concrete pillboxes and air raid shelters throughout the city, and subtly camouflaged many with flower gardens. They need no longer scan the sea for wisps of smoke to confirm hectic invasion-rumors that "a big convoy was sighted coming this way."

The great majority of Dakar's people, 60 per cent soldiers and sailors, are openly pro-American. Townsfolk invited the Americans by scores to Christmas dinners, and have made it a point to salute or smile broadly whenever Americans pass down the street.

These people combat the gospel of the Middle-of-the-Roaders and pro-Nazis who preach that past German victories warn that their homefolks in France will be harmed if Dakar swings too solidly to the allies.

This new fifth column seeks to make the most of the cessation in the exchange of mail and packages with France since the allied occupation of North Africa, but fails to point out that ships still would be going home if the Nazis hadn't taken over all of France.

No private automobiles except those of certain Spanish officials and members of the diplomatic corps, are permitted to operate in Spanish Morocco.

Snow and Rain Cover East's Roads

State Police Advise Against Unnecessary Travel

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 28 (AP)—State Police advised automobile travel only when necessary in eastern New York today as snow and rain coated ice-slicked roads.

The Weather Bureau said snow was falling generally north of a line between Buffalo and Glens Falls, and rain south of this line. Temperatures were slightly below freezing to the north and slightly above 32 degrees on the other side of this line.

Light rain was forecast for the remainder of the day in the southern two-thirds of the state, and further snow in the northeast corner, with little temperature change. Three to eight inches of new snow had fallen by mid-morning in the northwest Adirondacks, where rain started yesterday.

Sanding crews were kept busy in the Albany section, but no serious accidents were reported.

NEW ENAMEL FOUND

Discovery of a new enamelling process by a South African is believed in Pretoria to be one of the most important developments in the composition of enamels since the middle of the eighteenth century. Vermiculite, a mineral mined in the Transvaal, is used in the process. The mineral withstands three times as much impact as ordinary enamel, and gives a coloration to the enamel, resulting in a large range of pastel shades with a metallic finish.

Georgia-U.C.L.A. Appear in Shape For Friday's Game

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 28 (AP)—Both Georgia and U. C. L. A. appear today to have achieved physical sharpness in their conditioning programs for Friday's football game in the Rose Bowl.

The California Bruins accomplished that state of affairs in the hard way, with several rough scrimmage sessions. Coach Babe Horrell believes in that type of approach. Before one important Pacific Coast Conference game he scrimmaged his squad an hour and one half. Georgia has rounded into form by running, more running and still more running.

Little Wally Butts, the Georgia tutor, has had his boys throwing and catching passes most of the time. If Georgia wins the Rose Bowl game, and most observers believe they will, they'll do it in the air. The U. C. L. A. line is tough to crack and Georgia hasn't won 10 games this year by the laborious method.

While there seems to be no tendency in either camp to underestimate the opposition, both are confident they are going to win. Butts has won his worrying contest with Horrell, hand down, by uttering not one optimistic sentence since his arrival, whereas the Babe did grudgingly admit his boys looked good in a recent scrimmage.

The Bruins are in a nice spot. They aren't expected to win. The so-called experts figure Georgia to be at least two touchdowns better. U. C. L. A. lost three games this year. They dropped their first two starts to Texas Christian, 7-6, and St. Mary's Navy Preflight, 18-7. Oregon beat 'em up north, 14-7, in a driving rainstorm.

In their own conference they lost only one game. The Pacific coast loop hasn't had an undefeated and untied team since the 1940 Stanford Indians of Clark Shaughnessy, and before that no team has gone through unscathed for about two decades.

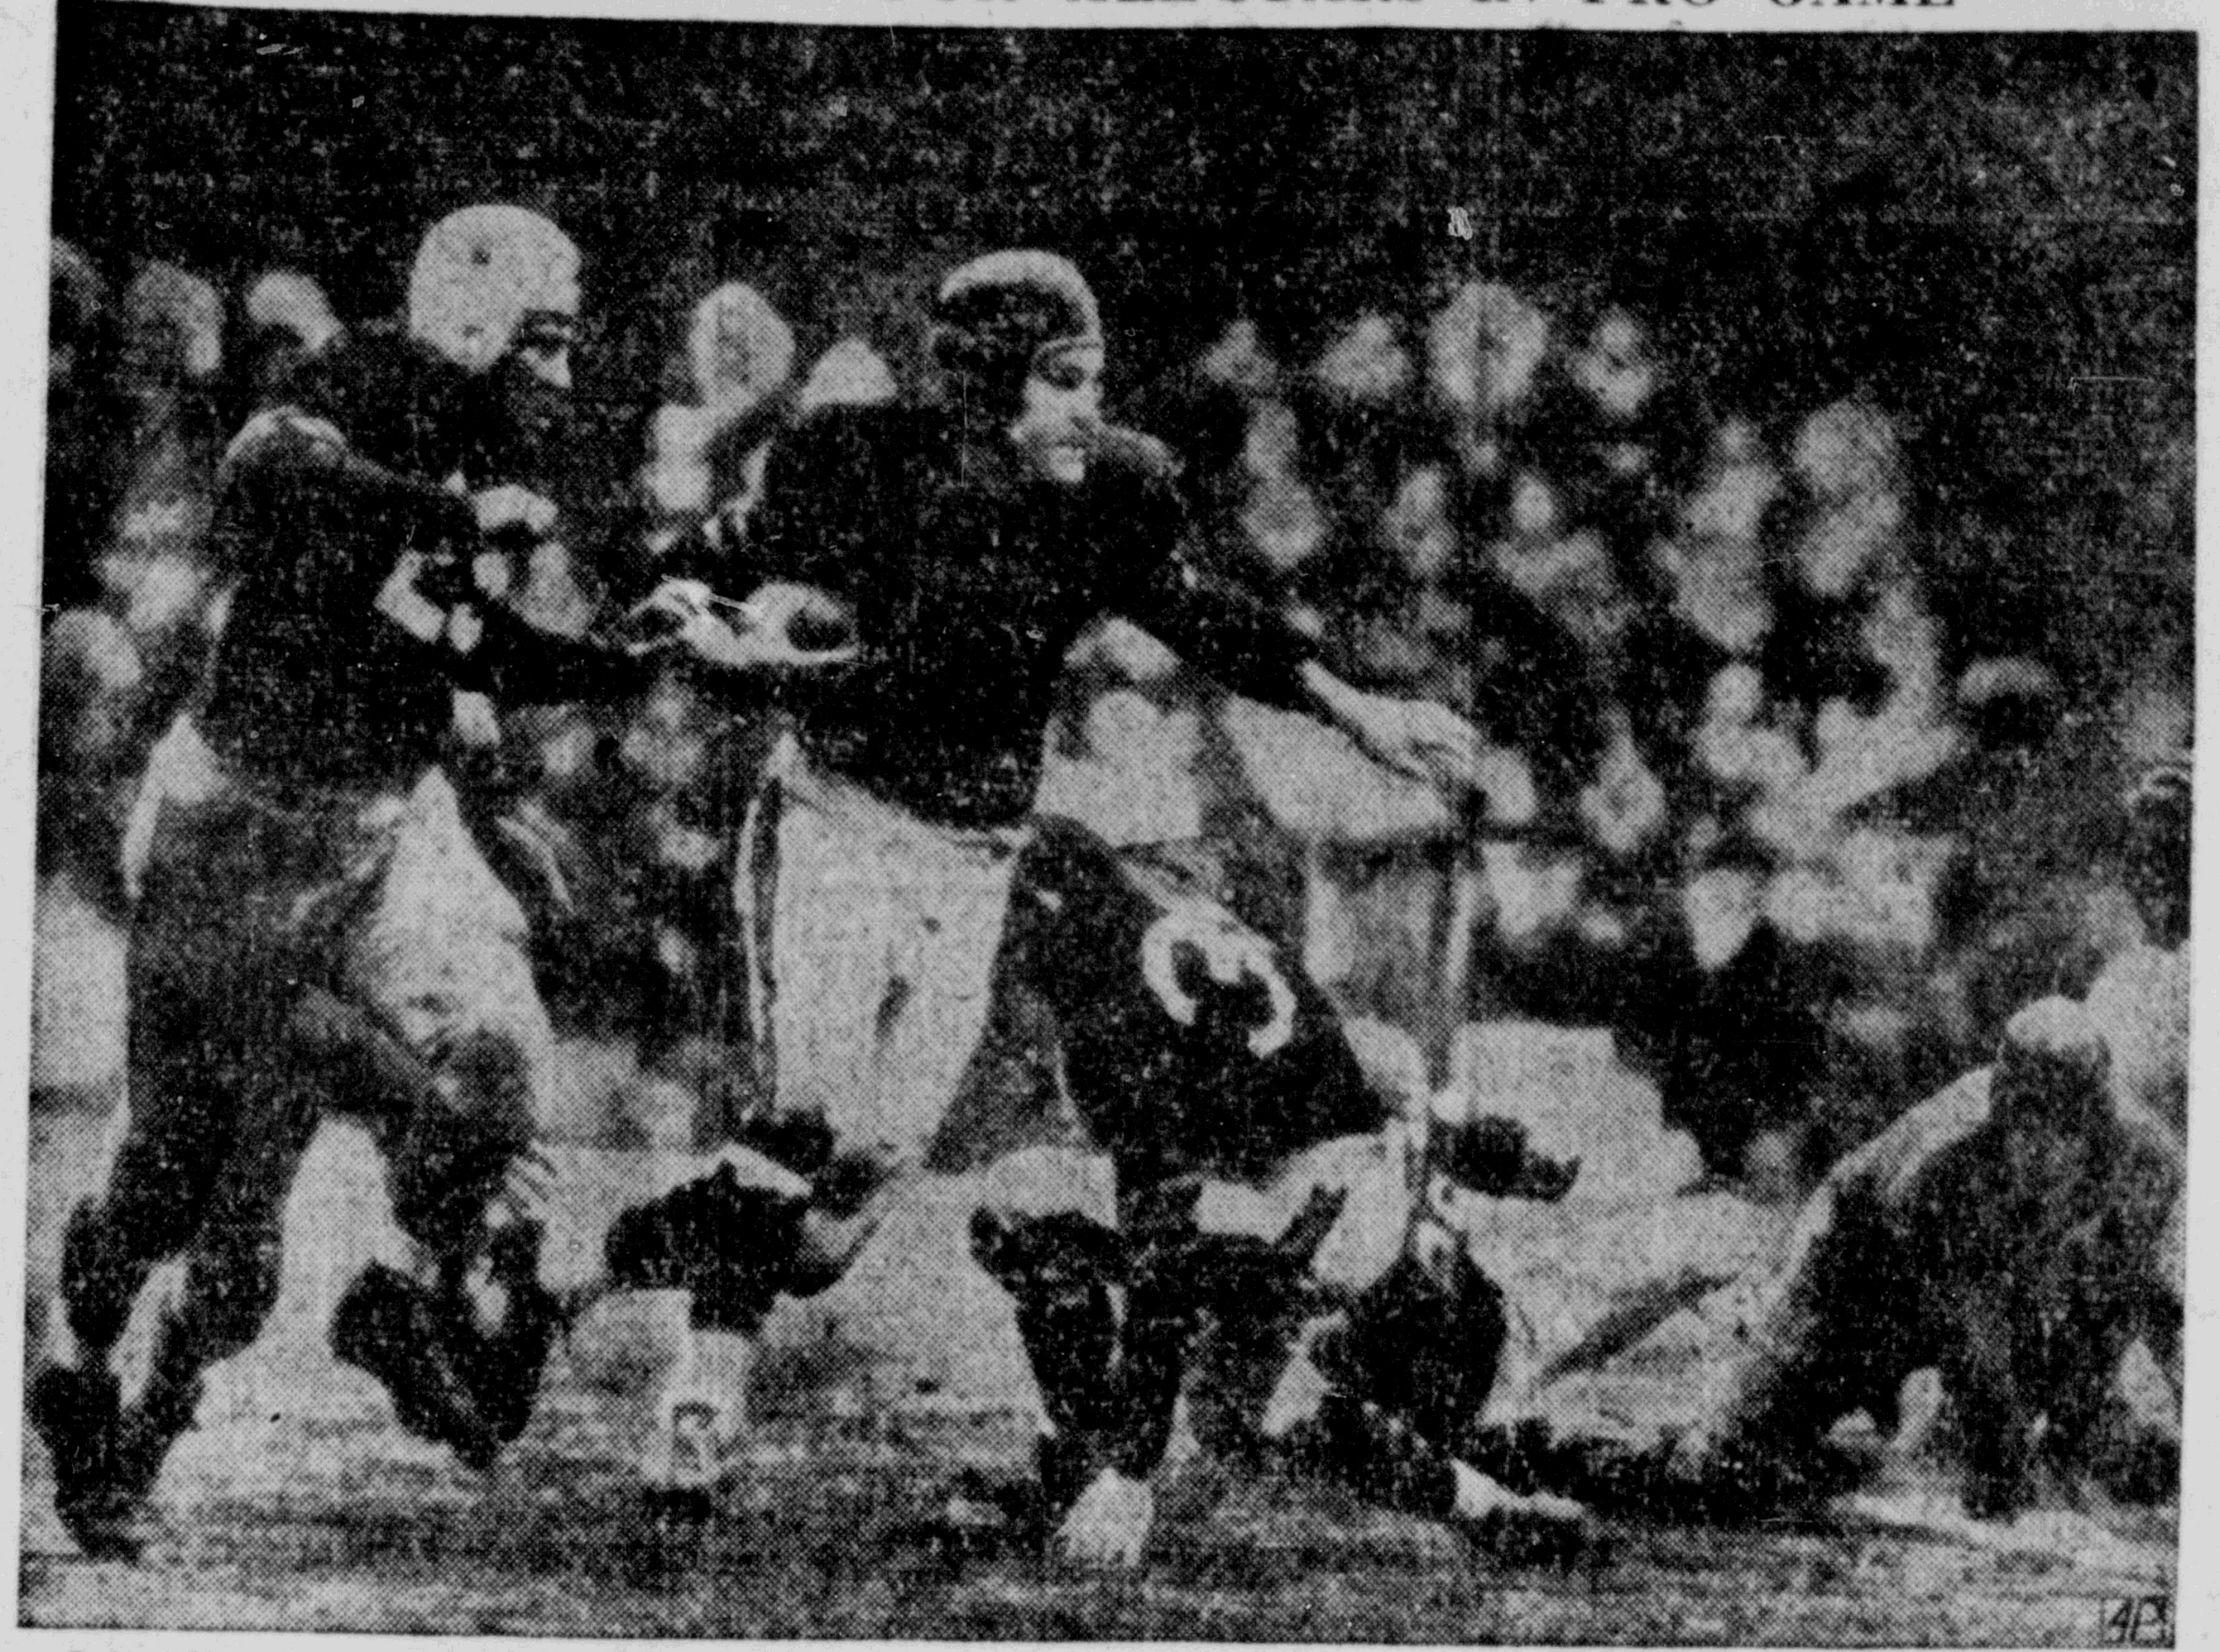
But while the west leads in the Rose Bowl games, 14 to 9, and while the west has taken the last five in a row, Georgia presents two superlative runners and passers, Charlie Trippi and Frankie Sinkwich, the like of which U. C. L. A. hasn't been called on to face this season.

Shortage of Catchers

San Francisco, Calif., Dec. 28 (AP)—"Present day kids are plenty smart. They read the papers and realize nobody ever hears about the catcher." So says Hap O'Connor, a semi-pro baseball umpire, who reports a real shortage of behind-the-players is developing in the professional leagues. "Tell the kiddies who won't be off to war for another year or so to get back of that plate and practice catching with all the tools on. The catcher is the most unappreciated man on the field—yet he's the smartest player . . ."

Panama has banned taxicab cruising.

BEAR BACK GAINS FOR ALL-STARS IN PRO GAME



John Petty (No. 10), Chicago Bears, back, skirts right end for an eight-yard gain in the first period of the pro bowl football game at Philadelphia between the National League All-Stars and the Washington Redskins. Dick Poillon (No. 25), finally stopped Petty, who had caught a short pass from Cecil Isbell, Green Bay Star. The All-Stars won, 17 to 14. The game was played for the benefit of the United Seamen's Service.

Rodgers Is First AlabamaFreshman To Make Bowl Trip

By JOHN WILDS

Miami, Fla., Dec. 28 (AP)—If Hosea Rodgers didn't run so much like Boston's fullback, Mike Holovak, he probably wouldn't be the first freshman player ever to make a bowl trip with an Alabama football team.

The six-foot, one-inch youngster had to take some hard knocks in exchange for coming to Miami for the Crimson tide's Orange Bowl date, but he's here.

Fourth string fullback and the only freshman on the squad, Rodgers has little chance of getting off the bench New Year's Day. He was brought along for the help he can give before the game, not during it.

"Rodgers is Holovak," explained Coach Frank Thomas today. "He is about Holovak's size, and his running is similar.

Rodgers himself figures All-America Mike might have some trouble if he starts running against Alabama.

"It's been pretty rough up there at Tuscaloosa lately," he sighed, telling about the tide line's slam-bang tackling and its efforts to solve Boston's T-formation plays from which Holovak operates.

"I couldn't make much headway. The line really has been on to that "T" up there in scrimmage."

At Brewton, Ala., last year, Rodgers was an All-Southern High School back. He played a total of six to eight minutes for Alabama during the season just closed, and compiled a nifty individual record.

He carried the ball three times from scrimmage, averaging 26.6 yards an effort, and ran back one punt 29 yards.

Odds Narrow on Cotton Bowl Game

Dallas, Dec. 28 (AP) — Betting odds narrowed today on the outcome of the seventh annual Cotton Bowl game with arrival of both participating teams—Georgia Tech and Texas.

Tech remained a slight favorite. Along betting row they quoted 6 and 7 and that's as close as any of the bowl battles of the past.

Coach Bill Alexander and 18 of his Georgia Tech players came in Saturday. Bobby Dodd, assistant coach, arrives today with 17 more. The two units, though traveling separately, held a joint workout at Memphis last week.

The Texas squad filtered in by ones and twos, the Longhorns coming after holiday visits to their homes. There will be no official welcome for the teams until tomorrow when a program will be held in downtown Dallas.

First practice sessions were scheduled this afternoon with both squads working out at the same field. Most of the time will be given over to photographers who, after today, will not be admitted to the field.

Ola, Captain of Team

Lake Placid, N. Y., Dec. 28 (AP)—Ola, the young Norwegian jumper who is the United States ski champion, is captain of a Norse team which will oppose a U. S. contingent in the collegiate winter program that gets under way Tuesday. Ola, who escaped from his Nazi-occupied homeland, uses only his first name to avoid possible reprisals on members of his family. He now is stationed with a Norwegian military outfit at Toronto .

Basketball by Mail

Billings, Mont., Dec. 28 (AP)—"It was a tough game, ma, and when the mail man gets here we'll see if we won . . ." Sports Editor Frank Hyde proposed in the Billings Gazette today that basketball competition be carried on by mail in Montana, northern Wyoming and western Dakota areas where transportation troubles are upsetting regular schedules. He'd have each team toss free throws, exchanging scores by mail.

Baugh Fails to Appear; All Stars Beat Redskins

Chicago Bears Get Some Measure of Revenge for Losing League Title

By TED MEIER

Philadelphia, Dec. 28 (AP)—The failure of Sammy Baugh, star of the champion Washington Redskins, to appear for yesterday's pro bowl football classic at Shibe Park caused a furore that overshadowed the National League All-Stars 17 to 14 victory over the league champions.

Commissioner Elmer Layden ordered an investigation to bring out the "full facts." Another league official explained: "From all we know Baugh might have had a legitimate excuse for not showing up. But so far we can find no legitimate reason for his not notifying us that he could not or was not coming."

Baugh declared at his Rotan, Tex. ranch home that "I tried my best to make the game. They were supposed to have a car ready for me in Sweetwater (about 30 miles from Rotan) so I could catch a plane out of Dallas about 11:50 p. m. Saturday night. The car was not there."

The announcement that Baugh would not play was made late Saturday night. Many in the crowd of 18,671 knew nothing about it when they appeared at the park.

All proceeds of the game, above minimum expenses, were turned over to the United Seamen's Service. The players were not paid and many of Baugh's Washington teammates were reported "sore" at his failure to appear.

George Stricker, director of public relations for the league, said Baugh was expected here Saturday morning, two airplane tickets having been delivered to his home on Tuesday. A telephone call to Rotan Saturday afternoon disclosed Baugh wasn't feeling well and didn't think he could make it.

M. Dorland Doyle, vice president of the Washington club, talked with Baugh and he finally agreed to make the trip, Strickler declared, adding:

"We made arrangements with the Sweetwater police to give Baugh an escort to Dallas. He was to get the 11:30 p. m. through plane or if he missed that the 1:30 a. m. plane for Washington. Late Saturday we were informed by the Sweetwater police Baugh had decided there wasn't time to get to Dallas so went back home."

The game itself gave the Chicago Bears some measure of revenge for losing the league title to the Redskins two weeks ago. Lee Artoe, Bear tackle, provided the winning three points by kicking a 43-yard field goal on the second play of the last quarter. Artoe's mighty booty climaxed a furious six minute period in which 24 of the 31 points were scored.

The Redskins took the lead in the first quarter on Ki Aldrich's 30-yard punt return for a touchdown. A 97-yard run by Pittsburgh's Bill Dudley after he intercepted a pass, tied the score in the third quarter. The All-Stars went ahead on John Petty's lunge from the two to cap a 51-yard advance, but the Redskins promptly tied it on a 15-yard aerial, Roy Zimmermann to Bob Seymour.

In the last 30 seconds Bob Masterson's field goal attempt from the 27 went wide. It was the first victory for the All-Stars since the pro bowl series began in 1938.

The gross gate was announced as $75,000. In addition $90,170 in War Bonds was sold between the halves.

International Champ

New York, Dec. 28 (AP)—Henry Majeski of Newark was confirmed as the International League's 1942 batting champion today by the official figures which showed he hit .345, far out in front of any rival. It was exactly the same percentage with which the stocky third baseman won the batting title of the Three-eye League five years ago. It also gave him an average of more than .300 for each of his three seasons with the Bears.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "Children Are People," etc.)

Mourning Is Reserved for Private Life

With almost each succeeding year, one can note the change in the attitude toward mourning etiquette. In fact, the complete withdrawal from social life as it was described in the original edition of my own book "Etiquette" is as out of key with life today as was the chaperon of a still earlier day, without whom no properly brought up girl of 18 walked alone in the street of New York! This in part answers a question from the president of a woman's club, who asks if she should resign from this office because she is in mourning for her husband. Her letter continues: "If it is not necessary that I resign how soon can I preside at meetings? I am referring both to business meetings and program meetings at which it is often necessary for me to introduce speakers."

Further answer to this is that mourning is allowed to affect one's private life alone, and one's public or business life is continued as usual. The president of a club should be expected to continue with all of her duties, except those of a purely social character. She would not be expected to receive at a dance or be present at any big social gathering but she could with perfect propriety introduce the speakers at an educational or political meeting as well as that of any war service.

Bride's Clothes Are Simpler

Dear Mrs. Post: Have there been any wartime changes in wedding veils, and if so, can you tell me what is being worn? Also, what is being worn by bridesmaids and maids of honor in the way of headdress?

Answer: The greatest change is that an increasing number of war brides wear street clothes! Even so, bridal dresses are of course being worn about three-quarters of the time, but the dresses are very simple in effect, shorter trains, very little heavy satin and very few lace veils. Many veils are finger length, but just as many reach the end of the train. About the bridesmaids: Sometimes they wear flowers, sometimes they wear hats much the same as formerly but, as already said, the whole effect is simpler.

Train Journey for Soldier and His Girl

Dear Mrs. Post: Can you approve of my letting my daughter go with a young soldier friend to visit his family? He wants to stop off here on his way home when he gets his furlough and take her home with him. The journey after they leave here will require a day and a night on the train.

Answer: If their interest in each other is serious and you approve of him, and his mother or whoever is the head of his family has written her an unmistakably welcoming letter of invitation, there would be no impropriety in her going—especially now in war time. If they travel on one of the modern all day coach trains, they are of course in full view of a whole car full of chaperoning people all night as well as all day. Even if they go in an open pullman they are also well chaperoned by all the other passengers.

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad however to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "Announcing the Engagement." Be sure to send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Post, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 150, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y. Leaflets cannot be mailed unless self-addressed envelope bears correct amount of postage.

Medical Inspector Praises Service

Casualty Rates Are Low; Work Is Done Well

By GEORGE TUCKER

Cairo, Dec. 22 (Delayed) (AP)—Brigadier General David N. W. Grant, who played a lot of baseball with Eppa Jeptha Rixey when the old Cincinnati fireballer was curving them high, wide and handsome for the University of Virginia, thinks the medical service of the U. S. Air Force has hit a new peak in efficiency and effectiveness.

The dust of the western desert still was on General Grant's blouse when he leaned against the fireplace in an air force headquarters building and talked about his five-week inspection of the African fronts.

"I went over them with a fine-tooth comb," he said. "Our low sick and casualty rates prove we've got the best medical service in the world. Tropical diseases haven't bothered us. We are bothered only by the ordinary ailments we are used to at home. Our boys are getting the same personal attention our daddies got from the old family doctor.

"The oddest injury I ran across was in central Africa. We caught up with a sick-and-injured car, and one of the men had a broken arm. When I asked him how it happened he said: 'I fell off a giraffe, sir.'"

It seems there was a wild giraffe which insisted on making friends with the men in camp. He would come every day for salt. When he lowered his neck to lick the salt, the men would jump on his neck. This would make him throw his head into the air and the men would slide down the giraffe's neck like a bannister, till they got on his back. This poor chap didn't quite make it.

The general said he was impressed by the efficiency of the entire medical service. "Our duties," he disclosed, "are to care for the sick and wounded until they reach a hospital. Medical officers handling this work are experts. Their whole careers have been based on familiarity with illnesses peculiar to the air service, such as altitude sickness, air sickness, and sickness from working with oxygen.

"After a three-month special course the medical officers serve a full year with air units before they are able to qualify as flight surgeons. Our sole object is to keep the boys flying and in maximum physical condition. These boys are a long way from home and we want their families to know the best is none too good for the lowest ranking man in the outfit."

Inspecting army camps is an old story to this six foot, 190-pound, hazel-eyed army doctor who got his medical degree at Virginia and went into the army 27 years ago. Ribbons on his blouse, that run in a straight line under gold wings on which are superimposed the twin snakes of Caduceus, emblem of the medical profession, tell only part of the story.

One is for service in World War I. Another is for service before Pearl Harbor. A third signifies he was with the army of occupation in Germany. "I was with the army of occupation two and a half years," he recalled.

"How long do you intend to stay in Germany this time?" I asked.

A slow smile broke over the general's face. "I'm not going to Germany this time. I'm going to Tokyo."

in order to help his Caucasus drive or that some other circumstances might impel them to cross the Bay of Bengal. Therefore, it is a matter of immense satisfaction to see these contingencies recede into the dim shadows.

There undoubtedly is another sort of invasion which the Japanese are attempting. That is the conquest of propaganda. Every effort is being made to create disaffection among the people of India, but the average native of this country has no delusions about his fate at the hands of the Japs if they ever got a hold here. The morale of the army is said to be air-tight.

India's presently vastly improved position is due not only to her own growing strength, but to the weakening of Japanese resources. Thanks for this must go to the operations of United States forces and their Allies in the Pacific.

Japan's heavy losses in aircraft, warships and cargo boats have greatly weakened her striking power and limited the range of her activities. In order to invade India on a big scale, the Japs must have control of the Bay of Bengal —please get out those maps I talk so much about—both in the air and on the water.

They must have transport ships with which to move their troops, equipment and supplies.

Those requisites would appear to be beyond their reach at this time. Certainly the Anglo-American air Forces have superiority in the air defensively although they lack absolute control, at witness the raids on Calcutta last week.

There is still another point in India's favor which I mentioned last week in a dispatch from Cairo. Every day the Allies come nearer to driving the Axis into the sea from Northern Africa, so much nearer do we come to the time when the Mediterranean will be opened again for shipping. This will mean that India no longer will have to depend on the long haul from Britain and the United States around South Africa for her war supplies. That will give the United Nations another mighty boost toward victory.

Just one word of warning is called for in making this optimistic report. I don't want to give the impression that Japan is beaten or that she won't fight like the devil she is. We have seen the Japs battling to the death in many theatres. Often when they don't die by the hand of the enemy, they commit suicide. We would be foolish not to anticipate hard and bloody work before we crush them.

Church Finances

Lexington, Tenn. (AP) — "The Lord's Storehouse" and "God's Acres" have solved the financial problems of the Rock Hill Baptist Church, located in a small farming community near here. The church inaugurated the "God's Acres" plan two years ago, and now is flourishing financially. The plan is this: A member pledges the monetary value of a part of a crop or livestock. When the crop or animal is sold, it is turned over to the church treasurer. So the acre pledged is called "God's Acre." This year, anticipating higher prices, the members chipped in and erected a storehouse—"The Lord's Storehouse." There they stored the yields from various God's Acres," and took advantage of the best selling price.

TRADE MARK REG.

By Junius

Doctor—Your master is decidedly better, but very irritable. He must be humored.
Butler—He expressed a desire to wring my neck, sir.
Doctor—Well—er—humor him.

In a certain school in New York there was a teacher, an energetic advocate of "Safety First", who opened her class each morning by rising and asking:
Teacher—Children, what would you do if fire was to break out in this building?
Children (in chorus)—We would rise in our places, step into the aisle and march quietly out of the building.
One morning when the children arrived at school they found themselves honored by the presence of Dr. Henry van Dyke. The teacher stepped before the class and, instead of the usual fire drill question, said:
Teacher—Children, what would you say if I were to tell you that Dr. Henry van Dyke is to speak to you this morning?
Children (instantly in chorus)—We would rise in our places, step into the aisle and march quietly out of the building.

Snow

The snow had fallen in darkness through all of the live-long night,
And the land in silent grandeur
was robed in a mantle of white.
Then the sun in its regal splendor, came forth from the East at morn,
To bathe the earth in glory, till
it seemed like a world reborn.
O'er trees, and hedges, and housetops, lay the snow in its crystal flakes;
Like frames on the fairest of pictures, it bordered the rivers and lakes.
Then pure as the whitest of lilies
it covered the land from sight,
And buried the scars of winter
till the old world looked, just right.

Lake Worth, Fla. (AP)—The manpower shortage isn't handicapping the Lake Worth municipal government enough so you'd notice it. The official family includes: Mrs. Lulu B. Morrow, city treasurer and tax collector; Mrs. Helen J. Fetter, police desk sergeant; Miss Mary L. Esarey, city attorney; Dr. Grace E. Papot, city health officer; Miss Helen A. Kovacek, assistant city manager; Miss Juanita Dermott, chamber of commerce secretary, and Miss Louise Brodbeck, manager of the merchandising department. They say they settle their differences in gentlemanly fashion and that there's no hair-pulling in the city government.

Another Institution Passes

Scranton, Pa.—Five local businessmen who have been lunching together in an office for years will have to bring their own coffee—or do without.

The quintet applied to the O.P.A. for classification as institutional users of coffee, which would have permitted them to purchase beans for their luncheon beverage without affecting their individual rations.

The O.P.A. said no.

The cigarettes, Nissen said, cost 11 cents.

Friend of Methodist Pastor Tells Dramatic Story

Elbert G. Brush, a young marine direct from Guadalcanal and 11 days and nights in the South Pacific, was a guest at the New Paltz Methodist parsonage, Sunday, December 20. He is an old friend of the pastor, the Rev. David Wesley Soper, and a former member of the church. He is related to the Paradies family of Tillson and to Mrs. Morgan Coutant of New Paltz. He is now living in White Plains.

Mr. Soper has described his young friend's Guadalcanal experiences in his weekly column and on the anniversary of Pearl Harbor, directed his remarks to the young marine's statement of personal Christian faith, illustrating his address with the youth's recent story.

A cross and a new testament, given him by Mr. Soper, were the only possessions Mr. Brush was able to save after harrowing experiences in the South Pacific. The striking quality of Mr. Brush's "sense of Divine presence" led Mr. Soper to tell the young man's story in printed form and he gave this small booklet to many friends in place of the usual Christmas card.

WOR has dramatized the marine's amazing story each Sunday evening in a coast to coast broadcast emanating from San Diego, Calif., for three weeks. Life magazine will carry a full account of the narrative with pictures and drawings.

Mr. Brush was with the first leathernecks to storm the Solomons August 7. Later in a raiding party of 45 men, he broke through Jap lines, returning with only 22 men. Wounded and mildly shell-shocked, he was taken out of Guadalcanal with 19 other wounded men by plane. At the takeoff, the radio compass was demolished by Japanese shrapnel. After flying 12 hours, the plane was forced down in the open sea, landing on a reef without supplies. The men were reduced to a diet of raw fish. Mr. Brush and a party of four left the plane in a makeshift raft to bring help, but the raft was driven back to the plane wing after two days of fruitless search.

Finally the men were rescued by planes and a destroyer and brought to San Diego.

The others had given up all hope of rescue, but Mr. Brush read the 23rd psalm to them and told them they would be saved. At the sound of the rescue plane's motors, everyone knelt down and offered up the Lord's prayer.

As he left the New Paltz Church, Mr. Brush said "This is the finest Christmas I have ever known."

Christmas Week-End Finds Highway Deaths Are Well in Lead

(By The Associated Press)

At least 413 persons met death by violence in the United States during the long holiday week-end, as the nation observed its second Christmas of the war.

Wartime duties and restrictions sharply reduced motor travel, yet highway accidents slowly mounted until no fewer than 255 lives were lost in the four-day period beginning Christmas Eve and ending early today.

The traffic death rate was far under last year, however, when 334 such deaths had been reported by dawn on December 26.

Mishaps in homes, fires, shootings and other miscellaneous causes brought death this year to 158 persons.

Highest toll was reported in California where 55 persons were killed, 40 of them in traffic accidents. Next was Illinois, with 37.

Only New Hampshire, North Dakota, South Dakota, Vermont, Wyoming and the District of Columbia reported no holiday deaths of violence.

New York had 17 traffic and 11 miscellaneous deaths; Connecticut 3 traffic and 15 miscellaneous deaths.

Newspapers Stay Wrongdoers' Foe

Massachusetts May Fix Uncertain Libel Laws

Boston, Dec. 28 (AP)—Asserting that newspapers still remain the best protection that the public has against wrongdoers, the Massachusetts Judicial Council declares that they "should not be hampered by the uncertainty that now exists as to the (libel) laws."

At the request of the State Legislature, the council made a study of several bills to amend libel laws and the law of libel in general, along with other statutes. The council made its report yesterday.

"Whatever criticism may be made, legitimately, of the press, it still remains the best protection the public has against wrongdoers," the council said, "and the fearless exposure of evil by the press should not be hampered by the uncertainty which now exists as to the laws."

The council recommended a statute, based on Maine law, to allow evidence, in mitigation of damages, that a plaintiff already has brought other libel actions for substantially the same libel. It would tend to eliminate so-called "multiple or chain" libel suits.

The council also suggested enactment of a measure that would say "the publication of defamatory matter in pleadings of civil proceedings shall not be privileged until after the opening of the public trial of a case on the merits." This recommendation was made after the group had discussed the laws of Massachusetts, New York and other states.

Renewing a recommendation of two years ago, the council called for enactment of legislation that would say:

"Whoever, by himself or his agent, makes a statement by radio broadcast which if published in writing would be a libel, shall be deemed to have made and published a libel, and shall be civilly and criminally responsible therefor according to the same provision of law, practice and procedure as in other proceedings for libel."

The council added, however, that such a provision would not subject the broadcasting company to liability for statements of which it had no advance knowledge and no opportunity to prevent.

Additional Gas and Rubber for Salesmen

After 11 months of unceasing work, declares the United Commercial Travelers, they have won a notable fight in behalf of business men in gaining approval of the O.P.A. for additional gas and rubber for salesmen.

The order was made with the expressed approval of W. M. Jeffers, rubber administrator, who held that if the small business man is to be kept alive, the salesmen must be allowed to continue to visit him.

With the splendid support and the assistance of the Virginia Division of T.P.A. and the Virginia Travelers Association, the order was able to win approval of a formula prepared by U.C.T. which assures salesmen twice as much gas and adequate provision for rubber for the next year.

The effort was started on January 2 and after repeated interviews and written arguments the first break was made when Mr. Jeffers agreed that salesmen were necessary to the business of the nation. His directive to the O.P.A. said the U.C.T. request was "Not too unreasonable" and that plans should be drafted by O.P.A. to meet the requests.

December 4 was the big day when O.P.A. finally agreed to make the change which allows salesmen of essential food, shelter, clothing, fuel and medical supplies, a maximum of 8,600 miles per year.

This amount is exclusive of the A or basic mileage which is allowed to every car owner and provides salesmen with approximately 10,000 miles per year.

It is the belief of officers of U.C.T. that this mileage will carry all salesmen safely through the year. Rubber allowances also go with the gas and salesmen are thus given consideration as a class and are recognized by the government as necessary workers in national defense.

New Britain May Close Its Schools

New Britain, Conn., Dec. 28 (AP).—Mayor George A. Quigley said today that because of the fuel oil shortage, and the possibility that supplies of anthracite coal may not be adequate, he would recommend to the board of education the closing of schools during January and February.

Under the mayor's plan the schools would remain in session in July and August. Quigley said he also planned to ask clergymen to arrange union religious services on Sundays during the winter months.

Library to Receive Volume From Mrs. Philip Elting

The Kingston Library will be presented with a de luxe edition of the Encyclopedia of American Biography for 1941 by Mrs. Philip Elting of Maiden Lane. The volume contains a picture and biographical sketch of her husband, the late Honorable Philip Elting.

Mr. Elting's interest in public affairs and his influence as a leader are emphasized in the reading. In spite of this influence the biograph states that he accepted few offices himself although many were open to him. Only twice did he accept public positions. In 1908 he was appointed shipping commissioner by President Theodore Roosevelt and in 1923 President Harding appointed him Collector of the Customs for the Port of New York. This position he held under the administrations of President Coolidge and President Hoover.

Mr. Elting died July 20, 1941, as the biography states "after a long and active career which brought him honor as well as success and such stature that he ranked among the most influential figures in the life of the state for some four decades."

Kingston's Firemen Are Called Out Five Times

Kingston's fire department was called out five times on Saturday afternoon and Sunday for minor fires in the city, while one of the calls was to remove a cat from a tree in front of 420 Hasbrouck avenue.

The first call was at 6:30 o'clock at 714 Broadway where a range oil heater was out of adjustment in the apartment of Nathan Weinrauch.

At 9:07 o'clock Saturday night the firemen were called for a fire in a tree in the rear of 17 Ulster street.

Sunday morning at 9:12 o'clock steam pouring from a vent pipe at 13 Prince street, caused the fire department to be called.

That afternoon at 5:29 o'clock the fire department was called to 67 Hasbrouck avenue where a defective chimney had set fire to the floor timbers on the first floor in the building owned by Mrs. Sarah Parnett.

O.P.A. Must Raise Ceiling Price of Flour, Says Reed

Washington, Dec. 28 (AP)—Senator Reed (R.-Kas.) predicted today that the Office of Price Administration soon would find it necessary to increase the ceiling price on flour to avert a threatened bread shortage.

The Kansas senator declared that because of a price squeeze, 90 per cent of the nation's flour mills had quit taking orders three or four weeks ago. He pointed out that wheat was selling at $1.22 a bushel in Kansas City when price ceilings were set on flour, but now brings about $1.31.

"Manifestly," Reed said, "a miller cannot pay $1.31 for wheat and sell his flour on the basis of $1.22 wheat.

"A flour shortage, which means a bread shortage, impends unless this error of judgment on the part of O. P. A. corrected."

A final decree of divorce has been granted Fay Pettinger Stewart of 72 Garden street, from her husband, Raymond Stewart of Orange, N. J. The wife by the terms of the decree is granted the custody of the three children and alimony of $25 a week. City Judge Matthew V. Cahill was the wife's attorney. The decree was granted by Supreme Court Justice Russell in Albany.

Marine Bullets End Fracas Among WhitesandNegroes

Vallejo, Calif., Dec. 28 (AP)—Bullets from a U. S. Marine Corps military patrolman's Tommy-gun brought an end last night to a week-end of rioting among white and Negro service men in the Vallejo waterfront amusement district.

City police said 400 service men milled around in last night's disorders, and half that number clashed in street and barroom fights Saturday night.

Leo Arthur Shaw, 18, wounded in the left arm, and George Carpenter, 26, shot in the left leg, were the only casualties of the Marine patrol's shooting.

Both are Negro sailors.

The previous night four white sailors were treated for slight wounds after fights with Negroes.

The trouble began last night after about 200 Negro sailors gathered at a night club and advanced into the street, police said, planning to "clean up" the town.

A half-block from the night club, a Marine patrol ordered the Negroes to halt. When they failed to do so, police declared, a Marine fired seven slugs from his Tommy-gun. Two Negroes were hit. A Marine non-commissioned officer fired three pistol shots over the Negroes' heads.

The Negro sailors halted, and waited while shore patrolmen and city police rounded up all other service men in the area and ordered them to quarters. The Negro sailors, thoroughly sobered by standing an hour or more in the cold, then were marched away.

Lives Are Saved By Train Fireman

Closes Live Steam Valve Before Trains Collide

Dixon, Ill., Dec. 28 (AP)—Investigators credited today the quick thinking of a fireman with preventing heavier toll in the wreck of two Chicago and Northwestern Railroad trains here in which two persons died and 30 others were injured.

The line's mail train, westbound from Chicago, plowed into the rear of the trans-continental passenger train, the San Francisco Challenger, at the Dixon station shortly before midnight Saturday. The Challenger was carrying 489 passengers, many of them soldiers and sailors returning to their stations after Christmas furloughs.

Harry R. Beisel, 32, of Melrose Park, fireman on the mail train, succeeded in closing off the live steam valve just before being thrown clear of the wreckage and thus prevented a possibly heavier toll of injuries from scalding.

The impact of the crash derailed three of the mail train cars and all 16 cars of the Challenger, which also was westbound from Chicago and had made a scheduled stop shortly before the wreck. The locomotive tender of the mail train left the tracks, rolling for about 50 feet before it crashed into the baggage room of the Dixon depot.

Tojo Tells Japs Real War Is in Beginning Stage

New York, Dec. 28 (AP)—A grim warning that the United Nations are planning important counter-strokes and that "the real war" is only starting was given the Japanese people over the week-end by their premier and war minister, Gen. Hideki Tojo, but the warning was sugared somewhat by flamboyant Japanese claims that the American, British and Netherlands navies have so far lost 38 per cent of their ships.

In an address to the Diet, broadcast by the Japanese and German radios, Tojo pointed out tough military problems in the Solomons, the Aleutians, India, and China, and declared Japan was busy day and night "providing against air raids and preparing for future war developments."

He gave the account as an apparent warning that no early victory could be expected, but declared Japan had been strengthened by receiving from conquered areas in the South Pacific 1,800,000 tons of raw materials, or 70 per cent more than Nippon's needs for a whole year.

Naval Minister Admiral Shigetaro Shimada advanced the claims of heavy allied naval losses—obviously greatly exaggerated—asserting 1,100,000 tons of allied warships have been sunk since the war began. He listed 11 battleships, 11 aircraft carriers, 46 cruisers, 48 destroyers, 93 submarines, and 54 other warships in this total, claimed 164 allied warcraft—including nine battleships and four carriers—had been damaged, and 424 allied merchant ships sunk and 503 captured.

And he added, in this account highly-colored for home-front consumption, that Japanese planes had destroyed 3,853 allied planes, while losing only 568.

Tojo hinted that trouble might break out anytime with Russia, now bound by a non-aggression treaty, but said Japan was ready.

"The defenses of our frontier in the north of Manchukuo," he said, "have been further strengthened in view of the continually changing world situation, so that the undisturbed progress of the eastern Asiatic war is guaranteed."

Rain Freezes and Coats City Streets; Taxis Suspend

Rain, that froze as fast as it fell, covered the streets and sidewalks of Kingston with a glare of ice Sunday night and early this morning, and rain continued to fall throughout the early hours of today. The storm created many traffic hazards, but up until 10 o'clock this morning no accidents in which persons were injured had been reported to the police department.

The glare of ice formed the worst traffic hazard since the storm of last Tuesday, when frozen rain left the streets and sidewalks in dangerous condition.

Early Sunday morning the thermometer at the city hall recorded a low of 13 degrees above zero, and as the morning advanced it gradually grew much warmer and during the afternoon and evening the mercury hovered between 33 and 34 degrees above zero.

The rainstorm broke over the city late Sunday night and continued throughout the night and early today. So dangerous did the streets become owing to the icy glare that bus and taxi service was interrupted.

The Board of Public Works had the sanding crews out as soon as the streets were slippery and the crews worked all night sanding the hills and intersections.

Writer Attributes Dearth Of Songs to Transportation

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 28 (AP)—Sigmund Romberg knows why World War Two has inspired no top marching songs such as "Over There"—it's because troops don't march any more.

Swift transport of soldiers by plane, parachute and truck is standing in the way of a new version of "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," the prolific composer of songs and musical comedies declares.

Here with a 45-piece orchestra on a concert tour, Romberg pointed out in an interview yesterday that good war songs are marching songs and said "armies aren't marching these days. One time a good rousing march was just the thing for keeping armies marching and spirits up."

Music is a necessity, and nothing is better for morale, Romberg asserted. He added the war won't injure the song writing business, although it will, of course, turn some of the current themes away from moonlight in June to bristling subjects.

Roosevelt's Son Is Given Medal

President's Son, Elliott, Is Decorated for Work in Photography

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Dec. 28 (AP)—Lieut. Col. Elliott Roosevelt, who commands a 12th force photographic unit, has been awarded the distinguished flying cross for "heroism and extraordinary achievement" in flights "made voluntarily with complete disregard for his personal safety."

The medal was pinned on the president's son yesterday by Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle, American airforce commander on the Tunisian front.

The citation said Roosevelt, as a member of parties surveying important ferry routes, "participated in long and dangerous flights over Arctic, Sub-Arctic and tropical regions, many of them being over water and uninhabited areas.

"On one expedition, Lieut. Col. Roosevelt was the only member who made every operational flight. As a result of his experience and energy he has been of great assistance in establishing ferry routes."

"As commanding officer of the photographic group assigned to the American forces in North Africa, Lieut. Col. Roosevelt personally participated in many flights deep into hostile and heavily-defended areas, acting as observer, navigator, photographer and radio operator."

The group's efficiency, the citation added, "is due in a large degree to the ability, leadership and inspiration of Lieut. Col. Roosevelt. His courage and skill reflect credit both on himself and on the military service."

Children Are Hurt In Auto Accident

None Seriously Injured but Cars Are Damaged

Three children were injured, although not seriously, in a collision between two automobiles Sunday noon on the Lapla road. Cars driven by James Hasenflue, 19, and Maravis Bryant, 47, both residents of the Lomontville section, were involved.

Nancy Bryant, 7, and her brother, Murdock, 10, riding in the Bryant car, were injured. Nancy had a bruised face and chin and lost several teeth; Murdock was cut and bruised about the forehead. Ivan Terwilliger, 15, riding in the other car, had recently recovered from an accident and was taken to the Kingston Hospital, but it was found that he had escaped with a bruised knee.

Deputy Sheriff Jacob DeWitt, who investigated, found that Hasenflue, driving toward Kingston, put on his brakes when he saw the Bryant car approaching near the top of a grade, but the car skidded on the icy roadway. Both cars were badly damaged in front, the Bryant car getting the worst of the collision.

Divorce Is Granted

An interlocutory decree of divorce has been granted Evelyn Allerton against her husband, Clinton Allerton of Catskill, by Justice Francis Bergan following trial of the action last August at Albany. Maurice A. Baker appeared for the plaintiff. Married in New York city on July 3, 1932, the plaintiff alleged acts in the town of Saugerties on May 26, 1942, upon which to base her complaint. The decree is interlocutory and provides that the custody of four minor children be given the plaintiff. The plaintiff may re-marry but it shall be unlawful for the defendant to again marry during the lifetime of the plaintiff.

F.B.I. Continues Its Search in Two Old Kidnapings

Washington, Dec. 28 (AP)—The F.B.I. is continuing its unrelenting hunt for the swarthy kidnaper who seized 10-year-old Charles Fletcher Mattson six years ago as he played with Christmas toys and then murdered the child while negotiating for a ransom.

On the sixth anniversary of the crime, Director J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation declared, "the Mattson case must and will be solved."

The abduction of the Tacoma, Wash., boy is one of two unsolved kidnapings since enactment of the "Lindbergh Law" in 1932 which made kidnaping a federal offense. The other is the kidnap-killing of 12-year-old Peter David Levine of New Rochelle, N. Y., February 24, 1938.

Hoover said that both cases still are active, with no thought of closing them until the criminals are caught, despite the heavy wartime demands on the F.B.I.

The Mattson boy was seized at Tacoma while he played with his brother and sister and a friend of the family December 27, 1936. His beaten body was found in the snow by a rabbit hunter near Everett, Wash., January 11.

The Levine boy disappeared between school and home. No one witnessed the crime. More than two months later the boy's wire-trussed body was washed ashore not far from his home.

The F.B.I. score in kidnapings is 233 solved out of 235 reported. It boasts that not a kidnap gang is operating. Since the bureau was given jurisdiction in such cases, 458 persons have been convicted, of whom 12 received the death penalty and 44 got life imprisonment.

In addition, nine kidnapers committed suicide, eight were killed by law officers, seven were killed by their own gangs and two were lynched.

At the moment, however, two convicted kidnapers under 99-year prison sentences are being hunted — Roger, The Terrible Touhy and his lieutenant, Basil (The Owl) Banghart, rated by F. B. I. as more dangerous than the one-time gang leader. They escaped with five other long-term convicts from the Stateville Penitentiary near Joliet, Ill., October 9. Toughy and Banghart abducted John (Jake the Barber) Factor near Chicago, July 1, 1933.

Japanese railways are reported to have purchased 1,210 locomotives and 8,882 cars and coaches in 1941.

Celluloid Is Used In Rebuilding Face

Faces Damaged in Warfare Will, Apparently, Be as Good as Formerly

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

New Orleans, Dec. 28—A new method of rebuilding faces with celluloid, under living skin, has been developed at Tulane University School of Medicine.

The celluloid faces look as good as new. Apparently the repair parts will last a lifetime. They have been used at Tulane for about two years to fill out facial depressions due to accidents. The technique was developed by Dr. Neal Owens, assistant professor of clinical surgery.

This use of celluloid for faces is new. World War I brought celluloid into use for depressions in skulls damaged in battle. The new technique promises well for remaking faces damaged in the present war.

Dr. J. Hogarth Pringle, English surgeon, is credited with introducing the head celluloid repairs. He has one patient who carried the same celluloid head plate for 40 years. Another received a severe blow on a head celluloid implant plate. The celluloid was dented, but the patient was not seriously injured.

For repairing faces, the celluloid is molded to form the missing contour. The piece is then fixed in place by sewing it to underlying tissues.

Living skin from a nearby part of the body is grafted to cover the plastic. This unites at its edges with the surrounding skin and continue to live. Sometimes the skin that covered the depression in the face can be used as the cover over the celluloid.

Dr. Owens says there are several advantages over the standard methods of repairing facial depressions. These older methods generally used a piece of cartilage to fill the depression. The cartilage comes from a rib.

Getting the cartilage requires a surgical operation on the chest. the cartilage method sometimes requires two or three further operations.

With celluloid, the entire repair is made in a single surgical operation. Dr. Owens said that both hospitalization of the patient and expenses are reduced.

In two years no piece of celluloid has had to be replaced. No unfavorable reactions have been encountered. The celluloid is a perfectly inert foreign body, that is, sets up no chemical reactions in living tissues.

He predicts that the use of celluloid for rebuilding lost contours will stop with head and face. The reason is that other parts of the body have enough fat and tissues to fill depressions.

Big 500-Foot Snow Slide Derails Passenger Train

Portland, Ore., Dec. 28 (AP)—A 500 foot slide of mud and snow hit a Southern Pacific passenger train 180 miles south of here in the Cascade mountains last night, knocking one car down a 30-foot incline, piercing another with a tree and injuring eight people, one seriously.

All of the injured were in the car, a diner, through which the tree trunk crashed.

The car which toppled down the embankment, another diner, was partically buried but all those inside were rescued without mishap. Eight cars in all, including six sleepers, were derailed. The sleepers, however, did not overturn.

A hospital train took the injured to Eugene and the remainder of the passengers and crew continued the journey aboard the first nine cars of the 20 car train which were ahead of the slide.

friends may be forgiven for being impatient. They live in a city rationed to death. A doctor's prescription is needed even for an aspirin tablet. They are permitted barely one change of clothes a year, only enough bread, sugar, rice, butter and other essential foods to cover rock-bottom needs. Even wine and cigarettes are rationed, and only two small packs of matches can be purchased a week.

Located at the hub of South Atlantic sea lanes, Dakar once found it easy to obtain the best of everything. Today young men hand the Americans notes penned in English—"Have you a package of American cigarettes?" or "Have you some chewing gum?"

Even Mother Nature has taken a crack at the proud city. Rainfall has been so light that water is obtainable only one hour daily.

Not a single privately-owned automobile is operated on gasoline in Dakar, only government cars. Most cabs are converted to charcoal burners, or jacked-up for the duration. Horse-drawn pony carts, gigs, and barouches ramble the streets and nearly every family has at least one bicycle. The last gasoline shipment came from Indo-China 18 months ago.

Dakar residents used to stumbling around at night in a total blackout now are looking forward to an end to the maddening war of nerves, to the end of the era when they frantically built scores of concrete pillboxes and air raid shelters throughout the city, and subtly camouflaged many with flower gardens. They need no longer scan the sea for wisps of smoke to confirm hectic invasion rumors that "a big convoy was sighted coming this way."

The great majority of Dakar's people, 60 per cent soldiers and sailors, are openly pro-American. Townsfolk invited the Americans by scores to Christmas dinners, and have made it a point to salute or smile broadly whenever Americans pass down the street.

These people combat the gospel of the Middle-of-the-Roaders and pro-Nazis who preach that past German victories warn that their homefolks in France will be harmed if Dakar swings too solidly to the allies.

This new fifth column seeks to make the most of the cessation in the exchange of mail and packages with France since the allied occupation of North Africa, but fails to point out that ships still would be going home if the Nazis hadn't taken over all of France.

No private automobiles except those of certain Spanish officials and members of the diplomatic corps, are permitted to operate in Spanish Morocco.

Snow and Rain Cover East's Roads

State Police Advise Against Unnecessary Travel

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 28 (AP)—State Police advised automobile travel only when necessary in eastern New York today as snow and rain coated ice-slicked roads.

The Weather Bureau said snow was falling generally north of a line between Buffalo and Glens Falls, and rain south of this line. Temperatures were slightly below freezing to the north and slightly above 32 degrees on the other side of this line.

Light rain was forecast for the remainder of the day in the southern two-thirds of the state, and further snow in the northeast corner, with little temperature change. Three to eight inches of new snow had fallen by midmorning in the northwest Adirondacks, where rain started yesterday.

Sanding crews were kept busy in the Albany section, but no serious accidents were reported.

NEW ENAMEL FOUND

Discovery of a new enamelling process by a South African is believed in Pretoria to be one of the most important developments in the composition of enamels since the middle of the eighteenth century. Vermiculite, a mineral mined in the Transvaal, is used in the process. The mineral withstands three times as much impact as ordinary enamel, and gives a coloration to the enamel, resulting in a large range of pastel shades with a metallic finish.

Will Be Held Tuesday at Jack Martin's Alley's; Over 100 Men and Women to Bowl

The first "Bomber" bowling matches of the 1942 season will take place Tuesday evening at Jack Martin's alleys on Albany avenue. The matches will feature over 100 men and women bowlers of the city and vicinity. The games will start at 7:30 o'clock and continue throughout the evening.

Proprietor Martin has arranged a novel program for the evening and everyone participating will aid directly the cause of the United Nations in a purchase of a bomber for U. S. fliers. The alleys are said to be in excellent condition and a large attendance is anticipated to witness the matches.

Immediately following the games there will be a Yuletide party held at the alleys at which time Mr. Martin will be host to the bowlers and friends.

There will be no admission charge.

Georgia-U.C.L.A. Appear in Shape For Friday's Game

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 28 (AP)—Both Georgia and U. C. L. A. appear today to have achieved physical sharpness in their conditioning programs for Friday's football game in the Rose Bowl.

The California Bruins accomplished that state of affairs in the hard way, with several rough scrimmage sessions. Coach Babe Horrell believes in that type of approach. Before one important Pacific Coast Conference game he scrimmaged his squad an hour and one half. Georgia has rounded into form by running, more running and still more running.

Little Wally Butts, the Georgia tutor, has had his boys throwing and catching passes most of the time. If Georgia wins the Rose Bowl game, and most observers believe they will, they'll do it in the air. The U. C. L. A. line is tough to crack and Georgia hasn't won 10 games this year by the laborious method.

While there seems to be no tendency in either camp to underestimate the opposition, both are confident they are going to win. Butts has won his worrying contest with Horrell, hand down, by uttering not one optimistic sentence since his arrival, whereas the Babe did grudgingly admit his boys looked good in a recent scrimmage.

The Bruins are in a nice spot. They aren't expected to win. The so-called experts figure Georgia to be at least two touchdowns better. U. C. L. A. lost three games this year. They dropped their first two starts to Texas Christian, 7-6, and St. Mary's Navy Preflight, 18-7. Oregon beat 'em up north, 14-7, in a driving rainstorm.

In their own conference they lost only one game. The Pacific coast loop hasn't had an undefeated and untied team since the 1940 Stanford Indians of Clark Shaughnessy, and before that no team has gone through unscathed for about two decades.

But while the west leads in the Rose Bowl games, 14 to 9, and while the west has taken the last five in a row, Georgia presents two superlative runners and passers, Charlie Trippi and Frankie Sinkwich, the like of which U. C. L. A. hasn't been called on to face this season.

Shortage of Catchers

San Francisco, Calif., Dec. 28 (AP)—"Present day kids are plenty smart. They read the papers and realize nobody ever hears about the catcher." So says Hap O'Connor, a semi-pro baseball umpire, who reports a real shortage of behind-the-players is developing in the professional leagues. "Tell the kiddies who won't be off to war for another year or so to get back of that plate and practice catching with all the tools on. The catcher is the most unappreciated man on the field—yet he's the smartest player . . ."

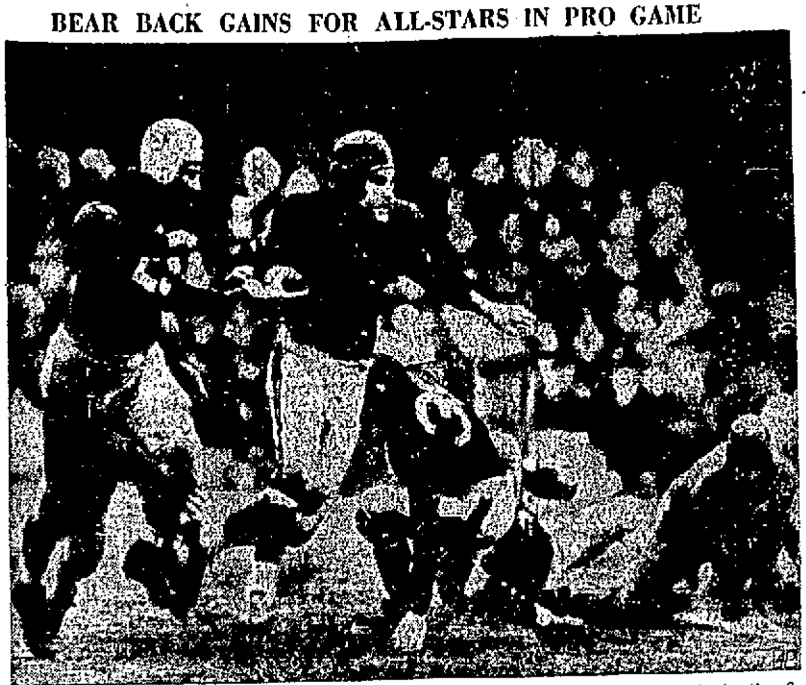
BEAR BACK GAINS FOR ALL-STARS IN PRO GAME



John Petty (No. 10), Chicago Bears, back, skirts right end for an eight-yard gain in the first period of the pro bowl football game at Philadelphia between the National League All-Stars and the Washington Redskins. Dick Poillon (No. 25), finally stopped Petty, who had caught a short pass from Cecil Isbell, Green Bay Star. The All-Stars won, 17 to 14. The game was played for the benefit of the United Seamen's Service.

Rodgers Is First AlabamaFreshman To Make Bowl Trip

By JOHN WILDS

Miami, Fla., Dec. 28. (AP)—If Hosea Rodgers didn't run so much like Boston's fullback, Mike Holovak, he probably wouldn't be the first freshman player ever to make a bowl trip with an Alabama football team.

The six-foot, one-inch youngster had to take some hard knocks in exchange for coming to Miami for the Crimson tide's Orange Bowl date, but he's here.

Fourth string fullback and the only freshman on the squad, Rodgers has little chance of getting off the bench New Year's Day. He was brought along for the help he can give before the game, not during it.

"Rodgers is Holovak," explained Coach Frank Thomas today. "He is about Holovak's size, and his running is similar.

"So the freshman has been playing in Holovak's position in our defensive scrimmages against Boston's plays."

Rodgers himself figures All-America Mike might have some trouble if he starts running against Alabama.

"It's been pretty rough up there at Tuscaloosa lately," he sighed, telling about the tide line's slambang tackling and its efforts to solve Boston's T-formation plays from which Holovak operates.

"I couldn't make much headway. The line really has been on to that "T" up there in scrimmage."

At Brewton, Ala., last year, Rodgers was an All-Southern High School back. He played a total of six to eight minutes for Alabama during the season just closed, and compiled a nifty individual record.

He carried the ball three times from scrimmage, averaging 26.6 yards an effort, and ran back one punt 29 yards.

Alabama supporters say he is one of the most promising players to enter the school in recent years.

Along with 34 others squad members, Rodgers limbered up yesterday in the tide's first practice after reaching Miami—a brief session called by Thomas for the sole purpose of letting the team work out the stiffness acquired in a 24-hour train ride.

Boston College players spent Sunday surf bathing at Miami Beach and sightseeing through the area.

Odds Narrow on Cotton Bowl Game

Dallas, Dec. 28 (AP) — Betting odds narrowed today on the outcome of the seventh annual Cotton Bowl game with arrival of both participating teams—Georgia Tech and Texas.

Tech remained a slight favorite. Along betting row they quoted 6 and 7 and that's as close as any of the bowl battles of the past.

Coach Bill Alexander and 18 of his Georgia Tech players came in Saturday. Bobby Dodd, assistant coach, arrives today with 17 more. The two units, though traveling separately, held a joint workout at Memphis last week.

The Texas squad filtered in by ones and twos, the Longhorns coming after holiday visits to their homes. There will be no official welcome for the teams until tomorrow when a program will be held in downtown Dallas.

First practice sessions were scheduled this afternoon with both squads working out at the same field. Most of the time will be given over to photographers who, after today, will not be admitted to the field.

Ola, Captain of Team

Lake Placid, N. Y., Dec. 28 (AP)—Ola, the young Norwegian jumper who is the United States ski champion, is captain of a Norse team which will oppose a U. S. contingent in the collegiate winter program that gets under way Tuesday. Ola, who escaped from his Nazi-occupied homeland, uses only his first name to avoid possible reprisals on members of his family. He now is stationed with a Norwegian military outfit at Toronto.

Basketball by Mail

Billings, Mont., Dec. 28 (AP)—"It was a tough game, ma, and when the mail man gets here we'll see if we won . . ." Sports Editor Frank Hyde proposed in the Billings Gazette today that basketball competition be carried on by mail in Montana, northern Wyoming and western Dakota areas where transportation troubles are upsetting regular schedules. He'd have each team toss free throws, exchanging scores by mail.

Baugh Fails to Appear; All Stars Beat Redskins

By TED MEIER

Philadelphia, Dec. 28 (AP)—The failure of Sammy Baugh, star of the champion Washington Redskins, to appear for yesterday's pro bowl football classic at Shibe Park caused a furore that overshadowed the National League All-Stars 17 to 14 victory over the league champions.

Commissioner Elmer Layden ordered an investigation to bring out the "full facts." Another league official explained: "From all we know Baugh might have had a legitimate excuse for not showing up. But so far we can find no legitimate reason for his not notifying us that he could not or was not coming."

Baugh declared at his Rotan, Tex. ranch home that "I tried my best to make the game. They were supposed to have a car ready for me in Sweetwater (about 30 miles from Rotan) so I could catch a plane out of Dallas about 11:50 p. m. Saturday night. The car was not there."

The announcement that Baugh would not play was made late Saturday night. Many in the crowd of 18,671 knew nothing about it when they appeared at the park.

All proceeds of the game, above minimum expenses, were turned over to the United Seamen's Service. The players were not paid and many of Baugh's Washington teammates were reported "sore" at his failure to appear.

George Stricker, director of public relations for the league, said Baugh was expected here Saturday morning, two airplane tickets having been delivered to his home on Tuesday. A telephone call to Rotan Saturday afternoon disclosed Baugh wasn't feeling well and didn't think he could make it.

M. Dorland Doyle, vice president of the Washington club, talked with Baugh and he finally agreed to make the trip, Strickler declared, adding:

"We made arrangements with the Sweetwater police to give Baugh an escort to Dallas. He was to get the 11:30 p. m. through plane or if he missed that the 1:30 a. m. plane for Washington. Late Saturday we were informed by the Sweetwater police Baugh had decided there wasn't time to get to Dallas so went back home."

The game itself gave the Chicago Bears some measure of revenge for losing the league title to the Redskins two weeks ago. Lee Artoe, Bear tackle, provided the winning three points by kicking a 43-yard field goal on the second play of the last quarter. Artoe's mighty booty climaxed a furious six minute period in which 24 of the 31 points were scored.

The Redskins took the lead in the first quarter on Ki Aldrich's 30-yard punt return for a touchdown. A 97-yard run by Pittsburgh's Bill Dudley after he intercepted a pass, tied the score in the third quarter. The All-Stars went ahead on John Petty's lunge from the two to cap a 51-yard advance, but the Redskins promptly tied it on a 15-yard aerial, Roy Zimmermann to Bob Seymour.

In the last 30 seconds Bob Masterson's field goal attempt from the 27 went wide. It was the first victory for the All-Stars since the pro bowl series began in 1938.

The gross gate was announced as $75,000. In addition $90,170 in War Bonds was sold between the halves.

International Champ

New York, Dec. 28 (AP)—Henry Majeski of Newark was confirmed as the International League's 1942 batting champion today by the official figures which showed he hit .345, far out in front of any rival. It was exactly the same percentage with which the stocky third baseman won the batting title of the Three-eye League five years ago. It also gave him an average of more than .300 for each of his three seasons with the Bears.

Medical Inspector Praises Service

By GEORGE TUCKER

Cairo, Dec. 22 (Delayed) (AP)—Brigadier General David N. W. Grant, who played a lot of baseball with Eppa Jeptha Rixey when the old Cincinnati fireballer was curving them high, wide and handsome for the University of Virginia, thinks the medical service of the U. S. Air Force has hit a new peak in efficiency and effectiveness.

The dust of the western desert still was on General Grant's blouse when he leaned against the fireplace in an air force headquarters building and talked about his five-week inspection of the African fronts.

"I went over them with a fine-tooth comb," he said. "Our low sick and casualty rates prove we've got the best medical service in the world. Tropical diseases haven't bothered us. We are bothered only by the ordinary ailments we are used to at home. Our boys are getting the same personal attention our daddies got from the old family doctor.

"The oddest injury I ran across was in central Africa. We caught up with a sick-and-injured car, and one of the men had a broken arm. When I asked him how it happened he said: 'I fell off a giraffe, sir.'"

It seems there was a wild giraffe which insisted on making friends with the men in camp. He would come every day for salt. When he lowered his neck to lick the salt, the men would jump on his neck. This would make him throw his head into the air and the men would slide down the giraffe's neck like a bannister, till they got on his back. This poor chap didn't quite make it.

The general said he was impressed by the efficiency of the entire medical service. "Our duties," he disclosed, "are to care for the sick and wounded until they reach a hospital. Medical officers handling this work are experts. Their whole careers have been based on familiarity with illnesses peculiar to the air service, such as altitude sickness, air sickness, and sickness from working with oxygen.

"After a three-month special course the medical officers serve a full year with air units before they are able to qualify as flight surgeons. Our sole object is to keep the boys flying and in maximum physical condition. These boys are a long way from home and we want their families to know the best is none too good for the lowest ranking man in the outfit."

Inspecting army camps is an old story to this six foot, 190-pound, hazel-eyed army doctor who got his medical degree at Virginia and went into the army 27 years ago. Ribbons on his blouse, that run in a straight line under gold wings on which are superimposed the twin snakes of Caduceus, emblem of the medical profession, tell only part of the story.

One is for service in World War I. Another is for service before Pearl Harbor. A third signifies he was with the army of occupation in Germany. "I was with the army of occupation two and a half years," he recalled.

"How long do you intend to stay in Germany this time?" I asked.

A slow smile broke over the general's face. "I'm not going to Germany this time. I'm going to Tokyo."

in order to help his Caucasus drive or that some other circumstances might impel them to cross the Bay of Bengal. Therefore, it is a matter of immense satisfaction to see these contingencies recede into the dim shadows.

There undoubtedly is another sort of invasion which the Japanese are attempting. That is the conquest of propaganda. Every effort is being made to create disaffection among the people of India, but the average native of this country has no delusions about his fate at the hands of the Japs if they ever got a hold here. The morale of the army is said to be air-tight.

India's presently vastly improved position is due not only to her own growing strength, but to the weakening of Japanese resources. Thanks for this must go to the operations of United States forces and their Allies in the Pacific.

Japan's heavy losses in aircraft, warships and cargo boats have greatly weakened her striking power and limited the range of her activities. In order to invade India on a big scale, the Japs must have control of the Bay of Bengal —please get out those maps I talk so much about—both in the air and on the water.

They must have transport ships with which to move their troops, equipment and supplies.

Those requisites would appear to be beyond their reach at this time. Certainly the Anglo-American air Forces have superiority in the air defensively although they lack absolute control, at witness the raids on Calcutta last week.

There is still another point in India's favor which I mentioned last week in a dispatch from Cairo. Every day the Allies come nearer to driving the Axis into the sea from Northern Africa, so much nearer do we come to the time when the Mediterranean will be opened again for shipping. This will mean that India no longer will have to depend on the long haul from Britain and the United States around South Africa for her war supplies. That will give the United Nations another mighty boost toward victory.

Just one word of warning is called for in making this optimistic report. I don't want to give the impression that Japan is beaten or that she won't fight like the devil she is. We have seen the Japs battling to the death in many theatres. Often when they don't die by the hand of the enemy, they commit suicide. We would be foolish not to anticipate hard and bloody work before we crush them.
